'License to kill or be killed'

Slayings mount as mental patients roam streets

By MARY NEISWENDER
Staff Writer

Authorities believe a madman who butchered five young men in as many months is operating under a state hospital pass described by some as a license to "kill or be killed" — a pass issued to hundreds as the state rushes to close mental hospitals.

The violent kill.

The nonviolent are being killed.

The latest — and still free — mass murderer, who has left parts of bodies strewn from Carson to Seal Beach, is believed by police to be one of these ex-mental patients.

Independent psychiatrists claim it's a strong possibility.

State hospital employes are almost certain.

And they claim to know of what they speak.

Doctors — longtime state hospital employes — have complained that they are being forced to discharge patients they consider sick.

Nurses have complained of inadequate state hospital staffing which prevents accepting additional patients — even those considered very sick — and gives cause to discharge others, also "very sick."

Aides complain that violent patients are put in nonviolent wards because of staffing problems and in order to facilitate discharge.

All complain that the sick — the mentally ill — are being turned out to the community.

More and more often the front pages of newspapers throughout the state carry stories of state hospital patients whose names — only days before — were on the hospital roles.

Latest is the name of Charles Richard Soper who was let out the gates of Camarillo State Hospital on May 4. Two weeks later he killed his wife, three of his five children and himself.

The problem was, first hand witnesses say, that everyone knew it was going to happen — everyone, that is, except the people who decided, despite his background, that he was now able to function normally.

The case is a classic example, say hospital employes, of stories heard more and more frequently throughout the state.

Soper, who had been in and out of mental hospitals from 1965 to 1968, was brought to Metropolitan State Hospital in Norwalk on Jan. 30, 1971, by police "because he threatened to kill his wife and five children and his mother. He broke up all the furniture in their house, and, shortly before, he had been observed by police chasing children with a wrench in a public park."

Official records confirm he was certified as mentally ill — diagnosed as schizophrenic-paranoid with a drug dependency (barbiturates, hashish and marijuana) — on Feb. 3, 1971, but was discharged from the hospital six days later under provisions of the Lanterman-Petris-Short Act. The act gives mental patients "civil rights" and eliminates an abuse — that of putting a person in a mental hospital and leaving him there longer than necessary.

BUT THE BILL, opponents say, causes worse abuses. It allows the mentally ill to decide for themselves how much treatment they should receive or if they should receive any. It allows them to stay in a mental institution a far shorter time than is necessary to "cure" them.

Soper apparently decided he didn't need more treatment.

So from February 1971 until December 1972 he was "in community." His activities during this time are difficult to trace. However, neighbors in Carson fill in some of the gaps.

"THERE WAS something definitely wrong with the man. Every-

Gov. Reagan hopes to be high-roller

Takes presidential bid to governors

By BOB SCHMIDT
From Our State Bureau

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE — Gov. Ronald Reagan will take a national sounding on his controversial state revenue controls proposal during the next four days — getting at the same time an early reading on his presidential possibilities — as the states' chief executives gather here for the 65th annual National Governors' Conference.

The meeting will begin informally today, with Nevada Gov. Mike O'Callaghan greeting the governors at the plush Sahara Tahoe Hotel.

The conference has work sessions scheduled for Monday, Tuesday, and early Wednesday, concluding Wednesday with the election of new officials.

Reagan will outline his tax proposal at a Monday afternoon executive session, and it is at that time that he should be able to estimate how his plan has been received by other governors. The session will be held behind closed doors, so the governors will not have to observe the courtesies expected at a public discussion, and Reagan will find out in a hurry what is thought of his plan. On March 22, he sent copies of the proposal to each governor, most of whom passed it along to their fiscal experts for analysis.

THE PROPOSAL calls for a ceiling to be placed on the tax rate levied by the state on personal incomes. Over a 15-year period, the ceiling would be lowered each year until the state's demand on the total gross income of California taxpayers would be no higher than 7 per cent.

At the time the plan was announced, Reagan said he was "firmly convinced that California has an unparalleled opportunity to show the way to the rest of the nation..."

This has been translated by some observers as a kickoff to a long drive aimed at capturing the N.Y. harbor 'sea of flame'

Crash toll 7 dead, 9 missing

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Seven seamen were dead and nine others were missing and presumed dead Saturday after an American cargo ship, outbound in the early morning darkness, impaled its prow amidships of an oil-laden Belgian tanker at anchor in New York Harbor, touching off an inferno of explosions and fire.

Huge fireballs leaped into the night sky as the 610-foot American containership, Sea Witch, plowed into the starboard beam of the 700-foot Esso Brussels, which was riding at anchor just off Staten Island, north of the Verrazano Bridge.

Oil spilling from the gaping slash in the tanker's side turned the surrounding waters into a sea of flame as crewmen from both ships rushed to their decks. The two vessels also were partially engulfed in flames.

Shortly after the 12:42 a.m. accident, a score of tugboats from all over the harbor joined fire department and Coast Guard vessels converging on the scene to rescue the seamen, some from the decks of their blazing ships and some from the water.

Meanwhile, the flaming vessels drifted on the tide in a southerly direction, passing under the Verrazano Bridge, which was closed to traffic because of the flames shooting up through its superstructure.

At least 63 of the 79 persons aboard the two vessels were rescued and taken to hospitals in Brooklyn and Staten Island.

THE DEAD included Capt. John Paterson, 55, of Clifton, N.J. who was the master of the American Export Lines vessel Sea Witch. She had embarked at midnight for a journey to Norfolk and the Caribbean island of Aruba, with a bulk cargo that was not immediately identified by company officials. Paterson, according to witnesses, suffered a heart attack during his ship's evacuation.

The missing men included the master of the Esso Brussels, Capt. Constantine Derk. His ship had arrived from Nigeria and was lying at anchor off the quarantine station a half-mile north of the bridge. She was carrying a cargo of 313,000 barrels of crude oil, which was to be off-loaded at Exxon's refineries at Bayonne, N.J.

U.S. aide slain in Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Gunmen believed to be members of a leftist guerrilla group Saturday assassinated a U.S. Army colonel attached as an adviser to Iran's army forces.

Firing at close range, two men on a motorcycle shot Lt. Col. Lewis L. Hawkins, 42, of Plymouth, Ind., seconds after he left his home to go to his office at 6:30 a.m., the government said.

Police said they suspected the killers belonged to a radical leftist guerrilla group which has carried out killings, bank robberies, sabotage and kidnapings, including an unsuccessful attempt to abduct former U.S. Ambassador Douglas MacArthur Jr.

Last Thursday, eight guerrillas of the leftist group were executed by a firing squad at Ahwaz in southern Iran. They had been convicted of killings and blowing up bridges and roads.

Coast Guard inspects fire-damaged tanker

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (UPI)—The Coast Guard sent a boarding party onto the Panamanian tanker Lagos Erie Saturday to determine how badly the ship was damaged by an explosion and fire which injured five crewmen.

Two Coast Guardmen and eight Lagos Eric Crewmen boarded the ship to inspect damage and learn if the fire was out.

Dean says he met often with Nixon amid plot

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH

WASHINGTON — John W. Dean III has told the chief counsel of the Senate Watergate Committee that he met alone and in small groups with President Nixon more than 40 times between late January and early April of this year, sources close to the case said Saturday.

Dean, the former White House counsel, said this, according to the sources, during a more than four-hour private conference with Samuel Dash, the committee's chief counsel.

In that conference Dean said he could supply firsthand testimony about those meetings that he believed would show that Nixon had a "substantial knowledge" of what high White House officials were doing about the Watergate investigations, one closely involved source said.

Dean also told Dash, this source said, that the President showed a "great interest" in making sure that "things were handled right — taken care of."

The White House, asked for comment early Saturday afternoon, at first refused to discuss the report that Dean had met far more frequently than previously known with Nixon.

However, at 6:45 p.m. Gerald L. Warren, the deputy press secretary to the President, called and volunteered the following statement:

"This story and a similar story to be carried in tomorrow's Washington Post appear to be part of a careful, coordinated strategy by an individual, or individuals, determined to prosecute a case against the President in the press, using innuendo, distortion of fact and outright falsehood.

"This manipulation of the press involves an unprecedented assault on judicial and administrative due process. Its objective, stated in the simplest terms, is to destroy the President. We categorically deny the assertions and implications of this story."

Dash was told, the Times source said, that Dean met only 10 times with the President between July, 1970, when he was named White House counsel, and early 1973. Over the next three months, however, the source said, as the possibility of further disclosures about Watergate became more threatening, Dean began meeting "more and more frequently and often" with the President, both with small groups and alone.

Asked whether the meetings always concerned Watergate and related matters, the source said: "Dean was not involved with Russia and China, I can assure you."

The source said that most of Dean's specific directives came from H.R. Haldeman, the former White House chief of staff who resigned April 30 because of Watergate.

The source also suggested that Dean may have tape-recorded some of his White House conversations during the January-April period.

"Everybody taped everybody else then," the source said. "Dean did it himself."

It was the conference with

Cox, Ervin meet, fail to end dispute

By JAMES DOYLE
Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON — The special Watergate prosecutor, Archibald Cox, met with the Senate Watergate Committee chairman, Sam J. Ervin Jr. Saturday, but they failed to resolve their differences over the conduct of their separate inquiries into the scandal, according to informed sources.

Cox and his assistant, Harvard professor James Vorenberg, met unexpectedly with Ervin and Georgetown law professor Samuel Dash, chief counsel of the Senate committee, Saturday morning in Ervin's office. Cox had indicated Friday that he would meet with Ervin early next week.

The participants agreed that the substance of the meeting should not be disclosed, but it was learned that the four men held a friendly and wide-ranging conversation about their mutual problems, and the possible conflicts faced by the prosecutor's team and the Senate select committee.

One participant said that the tone of the meeting was that of "four professional people discussing professional problems," and that the theme was, how can we proceed without interfering with each other?

While both sides reportedly expressed hope that they could establish a harmonious working relationship, Cox was unable to win from Ervin any concessions on the procedure laid out by the Senate committee for its inquiry.

Cox is known to have some doubts that the Senate hearings can continue long without interfering with future judicial proceedings in the Watergate scandal.

The Ervin committee hearings are scheduled to resume Tuesday.

Cox's principal request to other investigators with whom he has met has been that they make no major moves in the case until he has had a chance to study their possible effects on the total case.

One area that he is known to be studying is the effect of granting immunity from further prosecution to particular witnesses before either grand juries or Senate committees.

Cox has declined to say whether he will honor limited grants of immunity, or promises of non-prosecution, which have been made by the U.S. Attorney's office in Washington to some of those involved in the case in a minor way.

The question of limited immunity is one that Cox had hoped to 7 slashed in party fracas

By JOHN SHEEHAN

An 18-year-old Long Beach girl and 21-year-old Pico Rivera man were reported out of danger Saturday following a wild knife-slashing attack by a 17-year-old youth who was angered because he couldn't pet a dog, Downey police said.

Deborah Campbell, of 1035 Virginia Court, and Steven O'Toole, of 6416 Cord Ave., were among those stabbed, along with five other persons, including the slasher's own 15-year-old brother, who tried to stop the attack about 11:30 p.m. at a party at 9613 Cecilia Ave., police said.

The 17-year-old, who police refused to identify because of his age, was booked for suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder. His brother was held but not booked, police added.

Police said O'Toole was attending the party when the suspect attempted to pet O'Toole's dog. Both men got into an argument and the youth pulled a knife and stabbed O'Toole in the back, police said.

Five other persons at the party — all unarmed — also were stabbed, police said, including:

— Miss Campbell, stabbed in the abdomen, said to be in fair condition at Downey Community Hospital;

— Thomas Coronado, 22, of the Cecilia Street address, stabbed in the back and in serious condition at Downey Community hospital;

—Frank Edwards, 27, of 8639 Imperial Highway, Downey, stabbed in the groin and in serious condition at the same hospital;

—Roy Covert, 21, of 9309 Dinsdale St., Downey, cut on the right cheek, treated and released; and —Matthew Dahl, 25, of 9138 Lubec St., Downey, slashed on the leg, treated and released.

Agnew foresees 'troubled times'

Combined News Services

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew told graduating college seniors in Philadelphia Saturday they will be walking into "troubled times" when they leave the campus.

Addressing 1,800 Drexel University graduates and a capacity audience of about 14,000 persons, Agnew said he could not say "in all good conscience, that a world without war is visible on the horizon."

He made no reference to the Watergate scandal and pointed to health care, the welfare system and a dwindling energy supply as among the country's most pressing "crises."

About 100 students demonstrated peacefully against the bombing of Cambodia across fron Convention Hall where he spoke.

"We have entered a period of conciliation and near cordiality with our former adversaries," the vice president said, "but I cannot stand here and tell you ... that a world without crime, without poverty, without oppression or discrimination is achievable in the foreseeable future."

Agnew, presented an honorary doctor of letters degree, said much of the world's discontent and frustration "can be traced to our failure to reach the impossible standards so casually set by many of us.

"I an convinced that each generation messes things up in its particular way," he said. "But I will point out that when my generation messed things up it was by failure to look at the world realistically."

Good-bye

David Peterson, who was born into slavery in 1850 and lived more than 122 years in the obscurity of Southern cotton fields and poor urban neighborhoods, was buried Saturday in a black cemetery near his ramshackle home in Dallas.

Friends packed into the Greater Emmanuel Baptist Church, a white frame building on a dirt road, to say good-bye to "Grandpa."

Peterson died Thursday after Parkland Hospital doctors were forced to amputate both of his legs. Peterson, who came to the hospital in March suffering from an infected toe, could never overcome the illness and eventually gangrene developed.

Peterson was eulogized by mourners "not for being old, but for being a man. He'll be missed by all of us because he was a true friend," said one man who stepped forward to address the mourners.

Firestone

Private funeral services for the late rubber industry magnate Harvey S. Firestone Jr. are scheduled in Akron, Ohio, Tuesday afternoon at the Idabelle Firestone Memorial Chapel of St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Interment will follow at the Firestone family plot in Columbiana, Ohio.

Firestone, 75, former board chairman of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., died of cancer Friday at his Akron home.

Vets honored

Former Treasury Secretary John Connally led a crowd of 45,000 Americans in honoring the Vietnan veterans in a cheering celebration in the Cotton Bowl Saturday night in Dallas.

"Free men will draw from their example for all recorded time," Connally said of the veterans. "These men lived for their country and we are all the richer for it."

The Vietnam Veterans Homecoming Celebration, hosted by soft drink magnate W. W. Clements, computer billionaire H. Ross Perot and 23 others, was a tribute to the servicemen killed, wounded or missing in action in Vietnam and the former POWs.

Labor talk

Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan said Saturday in New York the old rules shutting minorities and women out of the labor market were dead and that crises such as the Watergate must not be permitted to get in the way of meeting the challenge of the future.

"Let others in the world worry about the Watergates and floodgates or any other kind of gates," Brennan told the Black Trade Unionists Committee of New York's Central Labor Council.

"If the people involved are guilty let them be exposed and punished by the American system of justice. But the Watergates must not be allowed to shut down the machinery of government because we have a future that's worth working for."

Traditional

Pope Paul VI said Saturday some persons distort the thinking of his predecessor, John XXIII, "as if he were the patron of protesters."

Pope Paul said the pontiff who set off a chain reaction of renewal in the Roman Catholic Church was, in fact, "imbibed with tradition." He spoke in a homily during a solemn Mass in St. Peter's Basilica marking the 10th anniversary of Pope John's death.

Pope John died on June 3, 1963, after a papacy of 4½ years. Many change-prone sectors in the church have accused Pope Paul of slowing down or even stopping the updating that his predecessor inaugurated for Roman Catholicism.

Pope Paul turned a solemn commemorative celebration into a passionate defense of his own policies.

Skyjack tale

British airline pilots are protesting the publication of the exploits of a Leila Khaled, a Palestinian skyjacker, a spokesman for the British Airline Pilots' Association said Saturday.

"We take the strongest possible exception to this book being published in this country," said Gordon Hurley. The pilots believe the autobiography might endanger air travel.

Miss Khaled's book, "My People Shall Live," is scheduled for publication in Britain on Monday. In it Miss Khaled, 27, describes how, in August 1969, she hijacked a Trans World Airlines Boeing 707 which was later blown up on the ground in Damascus.

A pilot spokesman said the book "glamorizes the whole business and bestows some kind of approval on it."

Celebration

Britain celebrated Queen Elizabeth's 47th birthday and the 20th anniversary of her coronation Saturday with a sun-splashed panoply of military splendor. Palace officials in London scotched rumors she planned an early abdication in favor of her son, Prince Charles.

Huge crowds turned out in warm weather to cheer the queen as they did for her coronation on a cold, gray morning on June 2, 1953, and to watch the trooping the color ceremony marking her official birthday.

Weak point

Russia believes the United States' "jugular vein" is its reliance on oil from the Middle East, Adm. Elmo Zumwalt said Saturday in Cambridge, Mass.

Zumwalt, chief of naval operations, told a Massachusetts Institute of Technology convocation he doubted the Soviets would engage the U.S. in costly land wars but instead would "take a slice at a time" by attempting to close off the Middle East oil supply. Zumwalt said within seven years the U.S. will be relying on the Middle East for half of its oil.

Zumwalt addressed a convocation celebrating the 100th anniversary of the graduation of the first woman from MIT.

Good time

The FBI Saturday was checking on some of the bills left behind by a man who paid $45,000 in cash for three speed boats, then scattered thousands more on the water as he sped away in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

A man described as gorilla-like by employes at the Everglades Marina created quite a stir when he showed up with three women companions Friday, put down the cash and took off. As he left, he scattered hundred dollar bills in the water. Several startled fishermen jumped in to retrieve the bills.

The identity of the man or where he and his companions had gone remained unknown. One rumor circulating in boating circles in this resort city is that he is a recent recipient of a large inheritance "out to have a good time."

Dissatisfied

Several University of Michigan graduating medical students don't care if Dr. Marcus Welby is a hit in the television ratings. They want a real life doctor as their commencement keynote speaker.

Actor Robert Young, star of the popular television series "Marcus Welby, M.D.," is scheduled as the commencement speaker next Friday night for the university's medical school graduation ceremony in Ann Arbor.

But some of the graduating seniors plan to hold a counter-commencement across the street at the Michigan League Ballroom Thursday night, with Dr. Benjamin Spock, famed baby doctor and peace activist, as speaker.

David Morens, one of the dissident students, said seniors in the medical school had given their first three choices for commencement speaker as Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., Spock, and Young, in that order. Morens said Kennedy declined the invitation and Spock was passed over for television's "Dr. Welby."

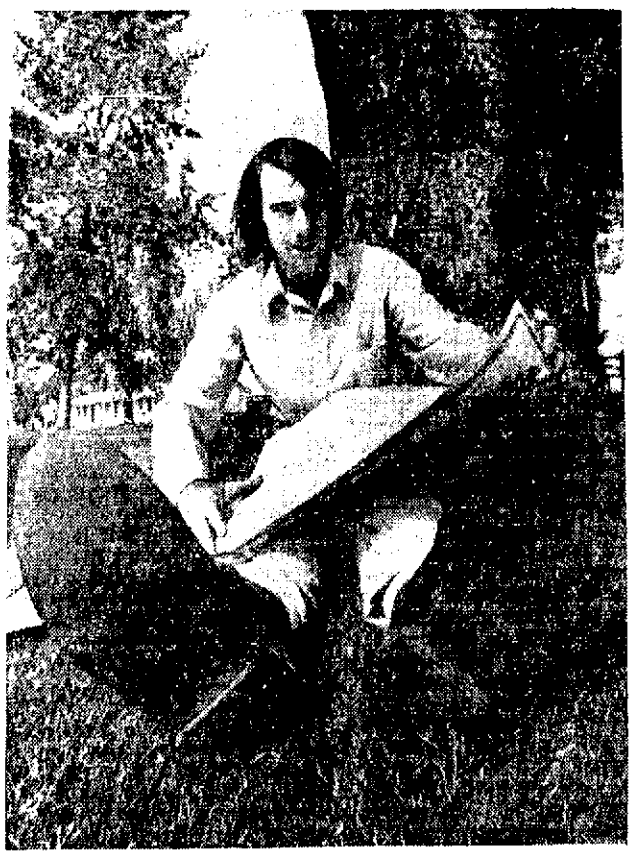

Preparing

With the last in a series of talks with European leaders behind him, President Nixon began preparing Saturday for his summit meetings with Soviet Communist Party leader Leonid Brezhnev later this month.

Nixon worked in the seclusion of his Camp David mountaintop retreat in Maryland where he and Brezhnev are expected to hold some of their summit meetings after the Soviet leader arrives in Washington June 18.

Mrs. Nixon, their daughter and son-in-law, Julie and David Eisenhower, and the President's companion, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, who flew in from Key Biscayne, Fla., also were at Camp David, 60 miles northwest of Washington.

A White House spokesman said Nixon started going over briefing papers on various subjects he will discuss with Brezhnev and that he also reviewed material dealing with unspecified economic and energy matters. (Related story on Page A-8.)

Long walk

Mike Miller, 21, looks over route he will take on a hike beginning June 16 — from his hometown of Sierra Madre, Calif., to York Beach, Maine. Miller said he had been thinking of taking a long walk for some time and decided on California-Maine route because no one had ever done it before. He plans to push his dad's mail cart ahead of him, filled with supplies.

Pioneering Yale females end hard, proud 4 years

By MICHAEL KNIGHT
New York Times Service

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — The first full class of undergraduate women to attend Yale since the university was founded 272 years ago will graduate Monday, looking back on four struggling years with fierce pride, a sense of accomplishment and the hope that it will be easier for the women who follow them.

The 196 women, the first to complete four years of undergraduate coeducation at Yale (there have been women graduate students for decades), have survived the academic rigors of one of the nation's top universities, and the burden of pioneering in what they see as a fundamentally male-oriented institution.

"WHEN YOU'RE a Yalie, you're a Yalie, no doubt about it," Amy Solomon, the first woman to register at Yale in 1969 said proudly. "Some of the older alumni regret that I can say that, but they can't take it away from me."

The four years have changed both the women and the university. York Street here is dotted with women students in breezy summer clothes, the university health service has a gynecology and birth control clinic, Yale's only undefeated athletic team this year was the women's tennis team, and Mory's, the venerable members-only restaurant, has been embroiled in legal maneuvers ever since it declined to invite women students to join.

"I loved it, it was a rich four years," recalled Molly Cox. "The first week was a little bumpy, but as soon as the men realized we were human and not superwomen, it was OK."

In many ways the women quickly made themselves at home and became part of the university. Statistical surveys indicated they worked harder and got somewhat better grades than the 940 men graduating with them, a fact that some of the men found threatening.

"YALE IS a fantastic place as far as academics and education are concerned," Miss Solomon said. "But social attitudes are really no different than those outside and I was very saddened to realize that the men who came in with me are still chauvinists. They are older, but they haven't changed."

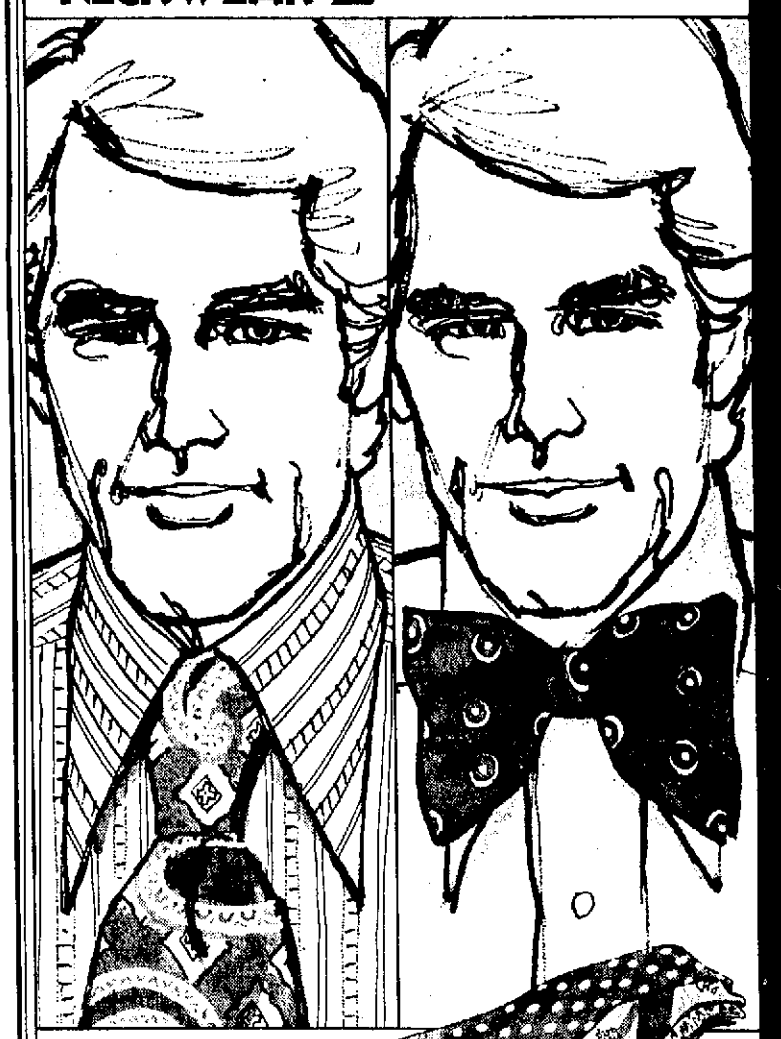

"I hope the women who will follow will have less pioneering to do. We said we'd be pioneers, but we didn't realize it would really be so. The freshmen women this year tell me the women in my class are really weird, and I guess it was our experiences that made us that way."

Despite their successes in some fields, the women found their academic interests were sometimes taken lightly, that their small numbers made it hard to find friends, and that, most of all, there remained in the air an indelible feeling of male dominance.

The problems of women at Yale were the special concern of Dr. Elga Wasserman, until recently special assistant to the university president for the education of women. Her office, mistakenly but commonly known as the "women's rights office," was a refuge and rallying point for the women until it was phased out this semester.

THE WOMEN have met with a mixed reaction from the men, striking some as overly ambitious and overly studious, and others as charming.

L.A. freeway stereotype not true

Los Angeles residents log the equivalent of 2,000 trips around the world every day in their vehicles, but a recent report notes most of the mileage is on city streets rather than the freeways which stereotype the area.

Drivers logged nearly twice as many miles on streets than on freeways in 1972. "This is apparently due to the decline and almost demise in new freeway construction in the city," a city engineer's traffic report said.

Last year 18.5 billion miles were clocked on roadways in the city, the nation's third largest.

The report also noted that Los Angeles, where cars are as much a part of life as subways are in New York City, exceeds 24 states in the number of registered motor vehicles. Vehicle registration has increased at a rate almost twice that of the city's population growth during the past two years, the report said.

But while the number of vehicles mushrooms, the number of fatal accidents is declining, the study said. In 1972, 338 persons lost their lives on city streets and freeways, eight less than the year before.

Cranston opposes bank reform

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said Saturday he opposes any major financial institution reforms like those proposed by the Hunt Commission.

The commission, appointed by President Nixon in 1969, proposed sweeping changes in commercial banks, savings and loan associations and other thrift institutions. It made 90 recommendations which would eliminate many differences between the institutions.

Backers bucking 'roadblock'

Panel to hear 7 death bills

By CHARLES McFADDEN

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Backers of seven bills to impose a mandatory death penalty for such crimes as skyjackings and torture murders will try to shove their proposals around a major legislative roadblock this week.

The roadblock is the Assembly Committee on Criminal Justice, which so far this year has stopped all bills seeking to put California's gas chamber back in action for a broader spectrum of crimes.

Committee members are scheduled to hear the seven capital punishment bills Wednesday during a special night session. One of seven already has cleared the state Senate. It is authored by Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, and would restore the death penalty for torture slayers and cop killers.

WHILE DEATH penalty backers have been fuming at its opposition, the committee has been having troubles of its own.

First, committee chairman Robert Crown, a Democrat from Alameda who opposed capital punishment, was killed May 21 in a traffic accident while jogging.

Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, filled the vacancy with freshman Assemblyman Julian Dixon, a Democrat from Los Angeles and a past fee of death penalty legislation. At the same time, Moretti named Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Beverly Hills, as committee chairman.

In naming Sieroty, who opposes the death penalty, Moretti passed over the committee's vice chairman, Assemblyman John Miller. Miller, also an opponent of capital punishment, promptly — and angrily — resigned from the committee.

That leaves Moretti with one more vacancy to fill and sources in his office say he will announce his choice before the Wednesday hearing.

Here's a rundown on the death penalty bills that will be up Wednesday:

POLICE — This bill by Assemblyman Floyd Wakefield, R-South Gate, would impose a mandatory death penalty on the killer of a policeman on duty or on the murderer of a public official, or fore deliberately causing the dath of a passenger on a ship, plane, but or other vehicle. A separate bill by freshman Assemblyman Mike Antonovich, R-Los Angeles, confines itself to killers of peace officers.

SKYJACKING — Two bills by Antonovich would send skyjackers to the gas chamber, even if the plane eventually landed without injury to passengers, or for murder committed in an attempt to skyjack.

FIREMEN—This bill by Assemblyman John Briggs, R-Fullerton, could impose a mandatory death penalty for the first-degree murder of a fireman on duty, or a convict in a state prison. It would also include policemen.

FIRST DEGREE — This measure by Antonovich would simply provide mandatory death upon conviction of first-degree murder.

TORTURE — This Senate-passed bill would impose the death penalty for a wide variety of capital crimes, including torture slayings.

Wed in Mexico? Maybe not

TIJUANA, Mexico (UPI) — No delay, no blood test, no witnesses. Just pay the $35 and it's "instant marriage."

That is what the Tijuana "lawyers" have been telling unsuspecting Americans for years.

Is the marriage valid? A prominent San Diego attorney, an expert on Mexican law, says probably not.

"If over the years you have been married, you have done things like filing income tax returns, signing contracts and owning property — all as husband and wife," Paul Rosado said, "but the legality of all these actions can be cast in doubt by the invalidity of the marriage."

It all works like this.

Americans anxious to marry in a hurry stream into the marriage offices where they are told they can be wed on the spot by proxy.

Simple enough, but according to Rosado, there is only one official "marrying agency" in Mexico — the civil registry.

And despite what the backroom lawyers say, marriage in Mexico when it is done legally is not much different than in the United States — a medical exam by a Mexican physician, two witnesses to certify there are no impediments to marriage, no coercion, at least 18 years of age. Those are the requirements.

How do the phony lawyers and marriage brokers get away with it?

Simple enough, anyone can buy official forms for 16 cents. After that a phony signature from the mayor and a judge and a phony seal, and there it is — a phony certificate that looks exactly like the real thing.

The only difference, Rosado said, is that no where is it recorded. No record, no marriage.

What can the outraged American couple do?! Very little, according to Rosado.

"If you go in and say I've heard you are phony, they say 'sue me,'" Rosado said.

Aside from the outrage, the legal problems still exist, and they can be very real when proof of marriage is important.

California law protects Americans who find their marriages are not valid. Rosado said if the marriage is entered into in good faith; the couple receive all the benefits of a legally married couple.

Federal law, however, is different. Unless you are legally married, you are not a wife or widow in the eyes of the law — a problem that can be perplexing and complex.

And not only is your marriage invalid in the United States, but the Mexicans don't recognize it either.

Negotiations with writers break off

Mandatory car smog tests on

New York Times Service

CHICAGO — Chicago has become the first city in the nation to begin mandatory tests on the exhaust emissions of private motor vehicles.

The tests Friday were also among the first of a variety of measures that states and municipalities across the country must begin taking in the months ahead as they strive to meet federal air quality standards to take effect in mid-1975.

THIS city's seven initial testing stations were not exactly swamped with customers Friday, but those who did take the two-minute test matched their sputtering machines against a sophisticated computer.

If the cars passed, they got a windshiled sticker. If they failed, they got a printout of what was wrong and a 30-day deadline for repairs.

Mayor Richard J. Daley, whose 1970 limousine earned clean air sticker No. 1, has said all the city's 1.2 million motor vehicles will have been tested by the end of the year, when the city authorities may begin stopping cars registered in the suburbs and ticketing pollution violators.

The environmental Protection Agency in Washington has established a complex array of air quality standards to be met by the cities and states. The agency is expected to rule on June 15 on each state's package of proposals to meet the standards.

The seven stations in Chicago (the number will be expanded in coming months) each cost $90,000. They will be open from noon to 8 p.m. seven days a week. Their cost and the employes' salaries are financed from a $3.5-million rise in city vehicles sticker fees.

THE TESTS, which are free, were carefully designed to reduce not only air pollution but also a treasured, old Windy City tradition — the bribe. Machines make the measurements. Machines decide who passes. Machines decide who fails. And machines spit out the results. A man hands the decision to the driver.

Readings are given to a sealed computer which has already been fed the car's year and engine specifications. The computer compares the measurements with the appropriate exhaust standards and trips a green (pass) or red (fail) light.

Friday the red light flashed for the test's first failure, a rusty, unmarked police car.

Gas consumption hits all-time peak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gasoline consumption in the U.S. hit an all-time high of 102 billion gallons in 1972, according to an annual survey released Saturday by the American Petroleum Institute (API).

The 1972 figure of 102,615,535,000 gallons represented a 6.5 per cent increase over the 96,348,943,000 gallons consumed in 1971, and a 54.9 per cent growth over the 66,255,943,000 gallons consumed in the U.S. in 1962.

"GIVEN the number of new cars being sold and the proliferation of fuel-consuming devices, unless there is a drastic change in the buying habits of American motorists, it appears that the strong demand for gasoline will continue unabated during 1973," API President Frank N. Ikard said.

He called on the nation's motorists "to adopt conservation practices that will help them get the most out of a gallon of gasoline."

The API report noted that the three leading gasoline-consuming states in 1972 continued to be California (10.1 billion gallons), Texas (7.1 billion gallons) and New York (6.8 billion gallons).

Speculators may force big food cost hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Saturday speculation in the commodities markets could drive food prices 15 to 20 per cent above their present levels this year.

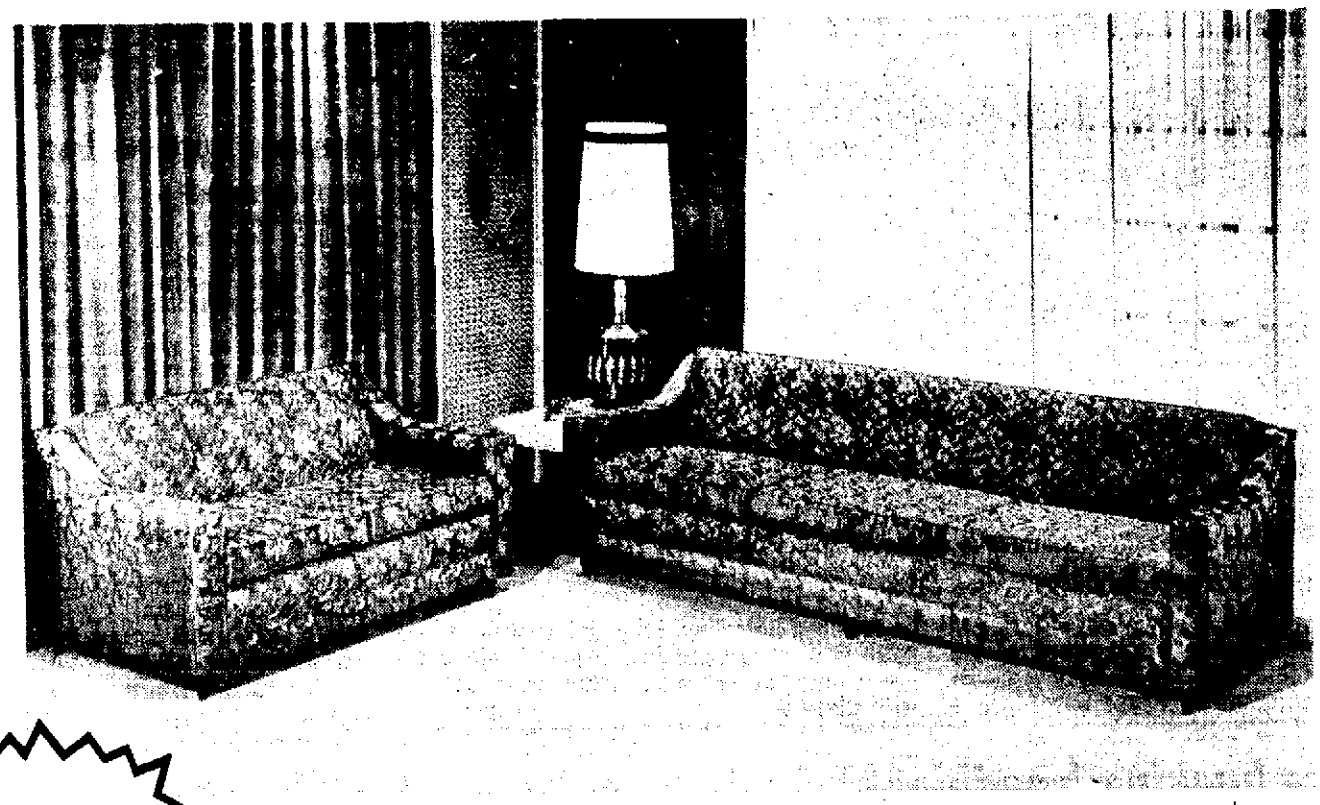

He urged more vigorous regulation by the Commodity Exchange Authority (CEA) and said his Seante permanent investigations subcommittee has been looking into the CEA's role and into possible "manipulation" of futures prices.

Taps on the 'innocent'

Hoover aide tells of bugs

By JEREMIAH O'LEARY
Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON — Twelve of the 17 U.S. officials and newspapermen whose phones were tapped by the FBI between 1969 and 1971 were completely innocent of involvement in national security leaks, former FBI official Willian C. Sullivan said Saturday.

It was to safeguard the identity of the innocent parties, the one-time assistant to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said, that he removed the wiretap logs and authorizations from his office and gave them to assistant Atty. Gen. Robert Mardian.

Sullivan, for many years head of the FBI's Domestic Intelligence Division, would not disclose the identities of any who were subjected to electronic surveillance. It is known that four were newsmen and that the list of officials tapped was furnished by the office of President Nixon's national security adviser, Henry A. Kissinger.

Sullivan said he became worried about the security of the wiretap file when he had a falling out with Hoover late in 1971. Believing his FBI days were numbered, he said, he went to Mardian and told him the wiretap documents were in his office, not in regular files.

"HOOVER had told me to keep them in my office," Sullivan said. "He never told me why. I told Mardian that the documents on the taps, requested by the White House and authorized by the Justice Department, were in my office and asked what I should do with them.

"Mardian said he didn't have authority to tell me what to do but would ask other people. Later, he came to me and said he had taken it up with others and that the attorney general (John N. Mitchell) had authorized me to give then to Mardian rather than have them floating around in my file cabinet."

Sullivan said he never knew what Mardian did with the documents until they became pertinent to the trial of Dr. Daniel Ellsberg, and that he called Mardian in Arizona to ask where they were. That call came about when assistant Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen contacted Sullivan last month concerning the whereabouts of the documents. Mardian told him, Sullivan said, that the documents had been turned over to White House aide John D. Ehrlichman because he (Mardian) "couldn't imagine a safer place for them."

Sullivan said his instructions from Mardian when he handed over the documents last fall were to refer

'Right up to the last day (Hoover) . . . was sharp and vital. Our disputes were . . . professional.'

— Sullivan

any questions from any source to the attorney general. But there were no inquiries until the climax of the Ellsberg trial and it was in Ehrlichman's safe that the FBI found and recovered the documents.

"Before I left the FBI," Sullivan said, "I told Mark Felt (his successor) that the documents were in Mardian's possession. As far as I was concerned, they were not lost, misplaced or misused. I got rid of them so they could not be used for improper purposes."

Sullivan also said that he and Hoover conferred several times between July 23 and July 28, 1970, when they received the plan approved by Nixon for expanded intelligence operations. This plan included resumption of previously accepted counterintelligence practices such as wiretaps, surveliance, and surreptitious entry, mail cover, and even techniques for mass arrests in major disorders.

RESUMPTION of the intelligence activities was in a list of options approved by an interagency committee consisting of the FBI, CIA, the Defense Intelligence Agency and the National Security Agency, with Hoover as chairman.

Sullivan said: "When the working paper came to the FBI, Hoover called me in two or three times and asked me what I thought, what were the dangers in each option. We approved some of the recommendations but we agreed that others held dangers. It was a matter of expediency, not principle.

"Hoover was concerned about his image and his place in history. And he would never undertake an intelligence operation without the protection of proper and legal authorization. There was nothing new or original in the proposals. They were all things we had been doing for years until Hoover suspended many of our intelligence operations in 1966.

"The upshot of it was that we favored some of the options but opposed others. I can't say what went on in his mind but he rejected the whole plan because there were parts of it we agreed should not be approved. That finished it."

Sullivan said that if the FBI had been doing what it should have been doing in the 1966-71 period, "this ad hoc committee (the White House "plumbers") would never have come into existence."

SULLIVAN, 61, now corrdinator for narcotics intelligence at the Justice Department, said the plumbers went far beyond what anyone intended then to do. He said he had never met E. Howard Hunt Jr., knew G. Gordon Liddy only slightly and had found Egil Krogh Jr., a White House aide who authorized the burglary at the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist, to be incomn unicative.

Sullivan emphatically denied that he had ever said that Hoover was of "unsound mind," as an interviewer recently quoted him.

"I disagreed with Hoover in some of his decisions," Sullivan said, "But I never questioned the soundness of his mind. Right up to the last day I saw him he was sharp and vital, old but not senile. It was his reasoning and his judgment I disagreed with and I broke with him deliberately because the situation at the FBI in 1971 had become terrible."

"OUR disputes were on professional judgements," Sullivan added.

He indicated that his major disagreement with Hoover was on the suspension of FBI surveillance of foreign intelligence agents.

Other sources have said that Sullivan, a career counterintelligence man, had favored continued concentration on foreign espionage agents when Hoover, in 1966, was breaking liaison with other government agencies and suspending FBI undercover operations.

FRANK RINAUDO GRIEVES AFTER STRIKING CHILD
Diaper-clad Tot Was Wandering in Street Before Dawn

Tot killed, mom blamed

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Police Saturday charged a young mother and three men with negligent homicide in the death of the woman's 2-year-old son, who was struck by a car when he wandered away from an alleged marijuana party.

Police said that Mrs. Yolanda Maria Turner and three men were "having a pot party." Her son, Richard James Turner IV, was with them, police said, but the child wandered away apparently unnoticed, clad in a diaper, pajama top and clutching a baby bottle.

The child was struck about 5:30 a.m. by a car driven by Frank Rinaudo, 57.

"Who would expect a child of that age to be in the middle of the highway at that time of the morning?" Rinaudo said. He was not charged.

Drug charges were filed against Mrs. Turner and the men.

Police at first were unable to identify the tot. It was not until Mrs. Turner called at 11 a.m. to report him missing that they made the identification.

Trustees back college head

NEW YORK (AP) — The Antioch College board of trustees has defeated by a 2-1 margin a motion of no confidence in the Ohio institution's president and his handling of a 43-day-old student strike.

The trusttes voted in executive session after former Antioch President Arthur E. Morgan, 95 wrote the board to charge James Dixon with responsibility for the student unrest.

The vote, taken Friday, was announced Saturday.

Dixon said Saturday he had neither seen nor heard about Morgan's letter "and in fact I couldn't care less."

Congressmen list outside interests

By HOWARD FIELDS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than a third of the members of the House — 170 out of 433 — have outside income-producing business or professional ties, the National Committee for an Effective Congress (NCEC) said Saturday.

The NCEC, a nonprofit bipartisan organization, based its information on reports submitted to the House Ethics Committee by the legislators themselves. House members are required to file reports disclosing specific financial, business and professional incomes by April 30 of each year.

THE NCEC SAID that it was important to note that the overwhelming majority of non-freshmen congressmen have no professional or managerial business affiliations beyond their $42,500-a-year legislative salary.

"Undoubtedly, many of these men and women have conscientously and deliberately avoided any outside relationship which gives rise to real or potential conflicts of interest, or even to the appearance of such possible conflict," the committee said.

"If this has meant financial hardship, it seems to have been more than offset by the desire to preserve the integrity of public office and to assure the freedom of independent judgment."

The NCEC did not report on the incomes of senators, claiming that "Senate disclosure requirements ... are so limited as to be meaningless."

In reviewing the House reports, which were described as "limited and incomplete," the NCEC said it discovered that 60 of the 433 congressmen reported associations with law practices and at least 44 reported associations with banks, savings and loan associations or other financial institutions.

ANOTHER 53 reported direct links with other businesses, and some of them reported two or more kinds of affiliation.

Other than to say that 19 had affiliations with law practices as of April 30, the report did not review affiliations of freshmen congressmen because the reports required listing of 1972 income. All freshmen of necessity had outside income before they were elected, it said.

Twenty-one of the non-freshmen were affiliated with banks, 12 with savings and loan associations, 6 with insurance companies, 7 with insurance and real estate agencies, 4 with other financial institutions such as title companies, mutual funds or finance corporations, 9 with real estate development or management companies, 14 with farms and 35 with various other businesses, the NCEC said.

It listed 32 congressmen who had affiliations in two or more of those listings.

The NCEC said Rep. James M. Collins, R-Tex., had the most connections, receiving income from six farms and affiliations with two real estate firms.

Rep. James H. Quillen listed income from two businesses, two real estate and insurance agencies and one bank, it said.

Listing as many as four outside incomes were Reps. Robert B. Mathias, R-Calif.; Sam Hanna, D-Calif.; Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen, R-N.J.; and Peter A. Peyser, R-N.Y.

Terrorists free exec, grab teen

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Kidnapers released a Coca-Cola Bottling Co. executive Saturday, but grabbed a teen-age girl and continued to hold several other victims hostage, including two ranking military men and a man who bragged he would not be kidnaped because he was a friend of the president.

Kidnapers in Cordoba, 441 miles northwest of the capital, freed Oscar Castell Saturday morning. Castell had been held since May 21. The amount of ransom was not disclosed, but sources close to the case said it was delivered to en unspecified location in an American bank's armored car.

Company spokesmen said Castell, one of more than 50 kidnap victims this year, was safe.

Armando Persico of Buenos Aires Saturday reported the kidnaping of his daughter, Mirtha, 17, but said he had not yet received any communication from the abductors.

Industrialist Rolando Larraux, 58, who only two months ago escaped an attempt to kidnap him and was widely quoted as saying no further such attempts would be made against him after inauguration day, May 25, because he was a friend of the new president, Hector J. Campora, was kidnaped Wednesday. Executives of Larraux Dairy Co. confirmed that a ransom was demanded.

Police and the Otis Elevator Co. reported no new contacts with a self-proclaimed guerrilla who called Otis to demand "donations" of some $500,000 to needy causes and a doubling of salaries for Otis employes to avoid a kidnaping of a company executive.

Otis sent its top foreign executives to Brazil and indicated in a statement it would close its plant in Argentina rather than pay.

Ford Motor Argentina is still "donating" $1 million to specified causes because of threats of kidnaping of Ford executives by the leftist Peoples Revolutionary Army (ERP).

Sources said Saturday that members of the ERP, which has held Retired Admiral Francisco Aleman since April 1, had demanded that Buenos Aires newspapers and television stations give full publicity to a recent ERP communique critical of Campora's new government. All media have refused to run the communique textually.

Worst strike violence yet

Chilean miners battle police

RANCAGUA, Chile (UPI) — Riot police, firing bursts of subn achine gun fire into the air, battled striking copper n iners who hurled dynamite charges in a series of clashes that ended Saturday.

Daniel Vergara, under secretary of interior, said 57 persons were arrested and six injured. He attributed the confrontation to "seditious elen ents, absolutely uncontrollable."

The strikers erected flan'ing barricades across 20 intersections in the worst explosion of violence in the 45-day walkout at the nationalized El Teniente mine, 65 miles south of Santiago.

The incidents erupted Friday night, several hours after the funeral of a n'iner shot to death by a military patrol at the wheel of his car earlier last week.

The federal government declared a state of emergency last month in O'-Higgins Province and placed the arn'y in control of law enforcement, as the result

Riot police, wearing plastic helmets and holding fibreglass shields, prevented the cortege from passing through the center of this provincial capital, generating protests from thousands of mourners.

After the funeral, groups of strikers raced through the downtown area, flinging coins and rocks at police. Later, police said, the miners hurled Molotov cocktails and sticks of dynamite.

Police fired dozens of tear gas grenades and submachine guns in efforts to crush the outburst. Police water cannons barreled across the area, drenching hundreds.

During several hours of skirn ishing, the n iners erected barricades with old automobile tires and set them ablaze. Smoke fron the barricades and tear gas fumes blanketed downtown Rancagua in the pre-dawn hours.

El Teniente's 13,000 miners struck April 19 for a 41 per cent wage increase. President Salvador Allende's leftists government has offered a productivity bonus equal to about six weeks salary.

The government has estimated the strike at the world's largest open pit copper mine has cost Chile more than $35 n'illion in export earnings.

The Kennecott Corp. owned El Teniente until nationalization of major foreign copper interests in July 1971.

Filipinos nab key rebel

MANILA (UPI)—Military authorities reported Saturday the capture of a ranking commander of a notorious rebel liquidation squad under orders to assassinate President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

They identified him as Roberto Santos, 29, alias Commander Felman, described as a Maoist Communist. They said he was captured Friday along with four others, including a woman, in Angeles City near Clark Air Force base, 60 miles north of Manila.

Col. Nicandor Garcia, deputy constabulary (national police) commander in the area, described Felman as the henchman of Benjamin Sanguyo, 38, Alias Commander Pusa (cat), who surrendered to Marcos in an undisclosed place May 17.

Authorities said Pusa headed the notorious "Sparrow Units" roaming metropolitan Manila to assassinate Marcos, Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile, Information Secretary Francisco Tatad and Armed Forces Chief Romeo Espino. The term "Sparrow Units" is the military's code name for the liquidation squads of the New People's Army.

Felman is listed in the Communist order of battle as the No. 4 leader, officials said. He carried a $4,500 prize on his head and was implicated in a number of murder cases, Garcia said.

Pravda cautions on Brezhnev visit

New York Times Service

MOSCOW — An authoritative Soviet commentator warned Russians last week that "only naive people" could expect close economic relations with the United States to be associated with a relaxation of political controls in the Soviet Union.

A lengthy article in Pravda, setting the state for Soviet Party Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev's visit to the United States later this month, appeared designed in part to combat rising expectations here that the promised inflow of investment capital and technology from the United States would result in more liberalization.

At the same time, the Kremlin appeared worried about the snowballing effect of Jewish emigration on other Russians eager to leave. Emigration from the Soviet Union is highly restrictive, but many Jews have been permitted to leave, partly as a result of pressure from abroad.

Commenting on the relatively few Jews in Vienna and in Rome who are seeking to return to the Soviet Union after having emigrated to Israel, the newspaper Sovetskaya Rossiya said in a warning to other would-be emigrants:

"Soviet citizenship is not membership in a table-tennis club that is joined and renounced and rejoined at will."

These and similar published statements in recent weeks suggest that Soviet ideologists are increasingly being faced with the basic problem of how to separate the evident need for Western economic aid from pent-up desires for greater freedom of expression and movement in the Soviet Union.

Published on Wednesday, the first anniversary of the conclusion of President Nixon's visit to Moscow last year, the article praised the President for not letting ideological differences interfere with his desire to improve relations with the Soviet Union.

Violence flares anew in Ulster

BELFAST (AP) — Bombings and a shooting marred the calm in Northern Ireland Saturday in the wake of municipal elections that did little to change the province's Protestant - dominated politics.

Two bombs ripped a garage and a store in Londonderry's city center, virtually disembowelled by two years of guerrilla terror. A 150-pound bomb was planted in a hijacked panel truck in Belfast. There were no casualties in either explosion.

A Roman Catholic, Samuel McCleave, 25, was found hanging from iron railings in Belfast early Saturday. Police theorized he was slain by sectarian assassins.

A spokesman said, "It would seem he died because of his religion. Once more the madmen in our midst have come up with a horrific slaying of an innocent person."

McCleave's death raised the province's death toll to at least 809 in four years of violence.

Another man was found critically wounded by gunfire on the outskirts of the city.

The violence flared as the final results from Wednesday's voting to elect 26 newly zoned district councils showed the Protestants' traditional political machine, the Unionist party, has held its grip on the troubled province.

The Unionist showing also boosted the standing of its leader, former provincial Prime Minister Brian Faulkner.

Iceland threatens to quit NATO over fish

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Iceland was reported Saturday to be considering a suspension of its role inthe North Atlantic Alliance if British warships remain in its disputed 50-mile fishing zone.

Government authorities said the warning was conveyed to Presidents Nixon and Georges Pompidou on Thursday night by Prime Minister Olafur Johannesson. The visiting American and French leaders, in Iceland for their own bilateral talks, were Johannesson's guests of honor at a state banquet.

The development came to light as two British frigates spent much of Saturday trailing the Icelandic gunboat Thor across the sunlit waters of the North Atlantic southeast of Iceland.

Icelandic and British authorities said at times the frigates, identified as the Scylla and the Cleopatra, got so close to the Thor that crew members could speak to each other.

They evidently did, too, in the kind of language often associated with seamen.

Qualified Icelandic officials said Johannesson's message to Nixon amounted broadly to something like this:

— Get the British to pull their frigates out of our fishing zone quickly.

— We consider the friendship you proclaim for us is on test.

— If you fail us we will have to draw our own conclusions and the result might be withdrawal of our ambassador from NATO and a suspension of activities within the alliance.

State releasing 'sick' on request

one knew it including the children. He would get violent with his wife and his children all the time. His wife's face was always black and blue ... Her eyes were blackened ... She was afraid of him. He would do irrational things — like at one time taking all the children's bikes and selling them."

His wife, May, 35, was an exchange student from Sweden when she met and married Soper. Unfamiliar with American ways, neighbors said she begged advice from them on how she could stop her husband from harming her or her children. Although on welfare, she worked as a "maid" at Harbor General Hospital. This was to supplement the welfare money, neighbors recall. She moved three times in attempts to get away from her husband.

"MAY TAUGHT the children to hide from him. When they saw his car, they would run to the park," neighbors admit.

Then on Christmas Eve in 1972, Soper became violent enough for police to take him away in shackles.

"He tore out all the water pipes and flooded the whole apartment. He actually threw an 8-year-old girl out the door, tore doors off hinges ... He was raving mad. His wife and kids ran off," the neighbors relate.

Official records indicate he was admitted to Camarillo on Dec. 24, 1972, because of "erratic behavior ... he threatened and attacked wife and children ..."

FOUR MONTHS later, hospital records indicate, he was released from Camarillo. He had been certified as "a danger to himself and others" but was released from the institution by the Court over the objections of psychiatrists. Under provisions of the LPS act, Soper could demand his own release and get it.

The court ruled only that "his behavior is such that he can exist in the community ..."

He couldn't — and neither could four members of his family.

The bodies of his wife, his daughters, Diane Marie, 11, and Teresa Bernice, 7, and his only son, Roy Carson, 10, were found lying on beds in the housing project apartment. Soper's body was found sprawled on the floor, a .22 caliber rifle close at hand. Extra shells were found in his car.

TWO OF HIS children — 3-year-old twin girls — escaped death, investigators theorized, only because they were away from the home at the time of Soper's visit.

How Soper got the gun was a matter of conjecture by police.

How he got out of the mental institution also was questioned by authorities.

But then, they claim, his story is not unique and police files are beginning to bulge with the names of the mentally ill and mentally retarded discharged from state institutions.

The one which has gained most publicity is that of Edmund Kemper of Santa Cruz, who killed his grandparents while a teenager, then this year — at the age of 24 — killed eight others, including his mother. Although released from a mental hospital and certified by a psychiatrist as "normal" only a few days before he killed his last victim, Kemper had not only killed, but systematically dismembered the bodies.

BUT WHILE Kemper received the massive publicity, others similarly "acting out" delusions of the mentally ill received less notoriety.

Ex-mental patient Brent Bedeyan warned Marin County mental health officials that he was going to kill. Three months later he did.

He shotgunned to death a couple and their 19-year-old son, then calmly laid them out on the road.

Thirty-one-year-old Weston Juan Hill was booked for murder in connection with the rape killing of a young Santa Monica actress. He told police he had been released from Camarillo State Hospital only a few hours before the actress's body was found, stabbed 12 times and her hands and feet bound.

A 32-YEAR-OLD mother shot her 9-month old son and then shot and killed herself a few days after her release from Patton State Hospital. A nurse in the ward where the woman, Alice Baumgartner, had been admitted said she was seen by a doctor when being admitted and sent to group therapy. The nurse adds: "Nobody spent a half hour with this woman ... if the doctors had only talked to her she would not have been released ... this wasn't her first time at Patton — she had been there for two years before ..."

Still to face trial is Ronald Lovell charged with the murder of his 56-year-old mother whose body was found in a trunk floating in the Long Beach Marina.

LOVELL, WHO lived with his mother, Madia McLeister, is accused of slashing her throat with a broken bottle, folding her body into the trunk and then trying to sink the trunk in the Marina.

The 37-year-old Lovell admitted under questioning that he had been at Metropolitan State Hospital at Norwalk twice — once for trying to murder his mother's third husband. But, he told authorities, he was not mentally ill, "just screwed up all my life."

Last week another mother was strangled and another former Metropolitan State patient accused.

RUSSELL MacDonald had been admitted eight times to the mental facility since 1969 and each time released, under provisions of the LPS Act on his own demand.

Medical records contain a warning "not to let him have mother's address or phone number ... She is afraid of him and what he might do to her ..."

MacDonald was released in January, against medical advice, but upon his demand so "he could return to school at Long Beach State."

He didn't return to school, police say, but turned detective to find his mother.

He did, police say, on May 24.

The cases of violence go on and on. Many times police don't mention the suspect has been a mental patient and many times police don't mention the victom has been a mental patient.

RELEASED from the safety of a guarded hospital the mentally ill and especially mentally retarded are also more and more often becoming victims of crime and neglect.

An interoffice memo from an ambulance company teils one story: " ... called to pick up sick retarded child. When arrived he was sitting in a corner dead. Had been dead for several hours. This boy had been placed in a home that kept retarded children ... he had been released from Patton State Hospital ..."

Judge can't make arrest stick

POMONA (AP) — A 26-year-old man who was placed under citizen's arrest by a municipal court judge after a traffic altercation, has been found innocent by a jury.

Citrus Municipal Court Judge Jack Alex made the citizen's arrest on Ronald Myers in front of Myers' West Covina home.

Alex, who was driving behind Myers, accused him of going too slowly and failing to signal before turning into his driveway. When Myers argued with the judge, Alex arrested him for disturbing the peace.

Suit rips Mafia informer's cover

By JAMES M. MARKHAM
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — A San Francisco clothing manufacturing company has charged that its ousted president misrepresented himself under an alias as a past "military security" expert when he was in fact a self-confessed stock swindler who testified for the government in the 1970 trial of Angelo de Carlo, a reputed Mafia leader.

Spokesmen for the Paul Maris Co., also charged that the man — whose real name they believe to be Gerald Martin Zelmanowitz — bilked the company of at least $200,000 and possibly as much as $1 million.

William Trautman, a company attorney, who on Thursday filed complaints against the past president, said Justice Department officials left no doubt that the ousted president was being guarded by federal marshals from the Mafia.

Shortly after a reporter left a telephone message with a maid at Maris's apartment in San Francisco, a man returned the call and identified himself as Paul Maris.

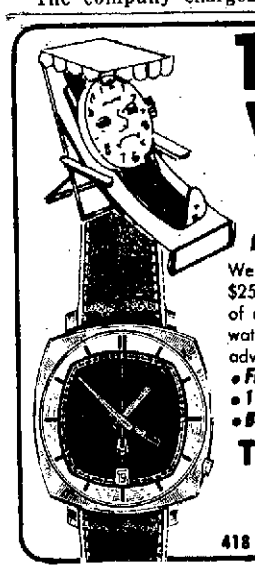

The speaker said he was in fact Gerald Martin Zelmanowitz, and added: "My whole entire cover is being destroyed and torn apart ... At this moment I am traveling very far and very fast."

Gabe Kingsley, a senior vice president of the Paul Maris Co., said it all began in early 1971 when a life insurance salesman, who used the name Paul Maris, persuaded Creative Capital Corp., a New York-based venture-capital concern, to buy out the Alvin Duskin Co., a San Francisco clothing manufacturer.

In January, 1972, the name of the company was changed to Paul Maris Co., with Maris as president.

Kingsley said Creative Capital became unhappy with its president's management of the clothing company and began to investigate his background and found it to have been fabricated.

The company charged that Maris was in fact Zelmanowitz, who testified at great length at the De Carlo trial about moving stolen securities. It also charged that Maris personally owed Creative Capital $600,000 for an unrepaid loan.

'Bomb' discovered 2 months too late

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — A time bomb minus blasting powder, a $25,000 extortion note and the city's bomb squad all figured in a too-late extortion plot at the San Francisco Hilton Saturday.

When assistant manager Zane Plemmons made his 3 a.m. check of the hotel's lost and found room he discovered two alarm clocks connected by wire to a battery in a shopping bag.

A note demanding $25,000 was signed by "Minorities Allied National League Defending Against the Enemy."

Police bomb squad officers, arriving at the hotel, found the mechanism lacked blasting power.

A cleaning woman said she had found the device outside the hotel in a shopping bag and had placed it in lost and found without checking the bag's contents.

Records showed the woman found the bomb on March 7.

Predator problem in Placer County

AUBURN (UPI) — The Placer County Board of Supervisors, describing predator animal problem as growing out of control, has authorized the hiring of a federal hunter and trapper to help reduce animals that prey on livestock.

2 arrested in rape of UCLA coed

Associated Press

Two men were arrested in Los Angeles after a UCLA coed, who was raped earlier in the day, kept a rendezvous to pay money to prevent further rapes, University of California police said.

Officers said the 19-year-old woman was abducted Friday by two men while she and a 19-year-old male companion were jogging near the campus dormitories shortly after midnight.

After her companion was forced at gunpoint to lie on the pavement, the coed was driven blindfolded to a motel and subjected to three hours of repeated rapes and other sexual assaults, university police said.

Then she was told to bring money to a street corner Friday afternoon to prevent being raped again, they added.

Officers said one man was arrested by university police detectives at the rendezvous scene, and a second man was taken into custody at a radiator shop.

Booked at the West Los Angeles police station for investigation of kidnaping were Garland Hicks, 20, and Craig McDonald, 18, both of Los Angeles.

Police said that the woman was not seriously injured.

Home burned in marital tiff; spouse jailed

DALY CITY (UPI) — Einer C. Richardson, 58, a merchant seaman, has found out he can't burn his house down.

Broadmoor police arrested Richardson Friday after he torched his house because his wife sued him for dissolution of marriage.

Police Chief Ray Savage quoted Richardson as saying:

"If I can't enjoy my house, my wife won't either."

The house was ruined, but no one was hurt.

Richardson was booked into the San Mateo County Jail in Redwood City on an arson charge. Bail was set at $50,000.

'Divorce kit' foes attacked

'Old' lawyers fail to serve people, attorney charges

DAVIS (UPI) — Do-it-yourself divorce kits can save couples as much as $350 in attorney's fees, a Sacramento lawyer said Saturday.

The lawyer, Nathaniel S. Colley, also criticized "old lawyers" who have asked that the kits be swept from the marketplace.

Colley, a black who does work for the NAACP, gave the commencement address at the University of California Law School here. He used the divorce kit as an example of modern law practices which are not reflected in bar examinations, or do not meet the approval of "old lawyers."

HE SAID in a prepared text that young lawyers should "search for innovative ways by which legal services may be made available to all people."

"Literally thousands of old, successful, satisfied lawyers spent their evenings in the luxury of their exclusive country clubs during the late 1950s and throughout the 1960s predicting the early demise of freedom and constitutional government as a result of the radical and oft-times violent approach of young Americans to the issues of our times," he said.

Without the Watts confrontation, there would have been no National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders which found out — among other things — that poor people are being exploited commercially.

He charged that lawyers have been trained for centuries "to help maintain the status quo through a search for precedent."

ON THE do-it-yourself divorce kits, Colley said "thousands of disenchanted lovers are avoiding lawyers every year and securing dissolutions of their marriages without aid of counsel.

"The response of old lawyers to this threat is a petition to enjoin the publication and distribution of the kits. New lawyers, I suggest, should instead ask a fundamental question: Is every uncontested dissolution of a marriage automatically worth $350 in counsel fees?'

"The forms can be completed within just a few minutes by any legal secretary worth her weight in salt. The court proceeding consists in the lawyer mumbling a few words about the truth of the allegations contained in the petition, and the petitioner whispering yes.

"The lawyer then states that it is true that irreconcilable differences have arisen, and the petitioner — who would hardly be there otherwise — agrees. The marriage is dissolved."

Colley said the judge is not even empowered to inquire into the nature of the "irreconcilable differences."

Levitz Soaring to No. 1 In Southern California

By JOANNE GAMLIN

LOS ANGELES — Levitz — a name which has long stirred awe and anxiety in traditional furniture dealers here — will realize a three-year-old retail ambition this year.

The seven Levitz warehouse-showrooms here will nail down the position of No. 1 in any list of the top ten furniture retailers in southern California.

Refuting the Cassandras who spent a lot of time in 1972 predicting the warehouse-showroom momentum had begun to wear thin, Levitz was probably No. 1 in 1972 and will be the indisputable crown holder this year. Its full size warehouse-showrooms, combined with the smaller San Diego unit, will churn out total sales of nearly $80 million this year.

ACTION LINE is your service, solving your problems, getting your answers, cutting red tape and standing up for your rights. To get action, write ACTION LINE, Box 230, Long Beach, Calif. 90801, or dial 432-3451 between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m., Monday through Friday. Questions to be answered are selected for their general interest and helpfulness. Please, do not send original documents you wish returned.

Prices take pasting

I read in ACTION LINE in December that it is illegal for a grocery store to paste a price change over a previously marked, lower-priced item. I find this happening over and over again with items the stores have in stock which they bought at prices lower than the current wholesale costs — not just with items marked up after a sale. I talked to the store manager at my local Thriftimart about this and he said it is no longer illegal now that the price freeze is no longer in effect. Can you clarify this point? It seems grossly unfair for them to mark up old lower-priced stock. C.H., Huntington Beach.

The specific controls on food items other than meat and meat products have been lifted under Phase 3 and the markets legally can change the prices now. Non-meat food items are controlled just generally by a federal Cost of Living Council policy limiting the markets' annual margins, according to a spokesman for the Internal Revenue Serivce, the enforcement arm of the council. It would be difficult for a food shopper to tell when the council's policy is being violated, but suspected abuses can be reported to a local IRS office.

GI bills

My husband is a veteran and in school under the GI Bill. He hasn't received all his benefits although he has sent in so many forms, figures and expensive certificates. Two months ago he got a check for back payments but he is still owed for the current semester. Can you tell us how we can get the Veterans Administration concerned enough to pay him? Mrs. W.G.M., Garden Grove.

Your husband should have a check to cover payments from Feb. 5 through June by now. A VA spokesman phoned your husband and explained what problems delayed his payments. First, he mailed in his application without writing his file number on it. Then his school took three months to verify his attendance. The times he dropped out of school in the past few years and the changes in his class load during nearly every semester contributed to the problems. "We have done everything we could for him considering the changes," the spokesman said. "His last check was processed in record time."

License to kill

Since Californians voted on the November ballot to reinstate the death penalty in this state,why isn't it reinstated by now? A.J.H., Long Beach.

The passage of Proposition 17 in November overturned the California Supreme Court's decision that the death penalty is unconstitutional in this state. A Long Beach State University political science professor explained that a State Supreme Court decision interpreting the California Constitution can be overturned by popular vote. He said Proposition 17 also empowered the state Legislature to write new death penalty laws for the state. These new laws must conform to the guidelines set down by the U.S. Supreme Court, which virtually outlawed, temporarily at least, the death penalty in all states when it ruled it was being unequally applied. California lawmakers feel that a mandatory death penalty for certain crimes can be fit into the U.S. Supreme Court ruling. SB450, reinstating the death penalty in California for specific crimes, was proposed by state Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, and already has passed the state Senate. It now is being considered by the Assembly Judiciary Committee.

Drummed out?

My son's subscription to Drum Corps Digest was to run until August 1973 but for some reason they stopped it a year early. The last issue he received was last July. I have written several letters to the magazine, but get no answer. Can you help us get back copies of the magazine or a refund of one year's subscription? Mrs. D.G., Lakewood.

No. The telephone for Drum Corps Dynamics in Cincinnati, Ohio, has been disconnected. A check with the Cincinnati Better Business Bureau revealed that they have had many complaints such as yours, and have been unable to locate the company or its owners. They suggest you send your complaint to the Postal Inspector, Federal Building, Cincinnati, Ohio 45201.

U.S., Russ move to cut Europe troops

By DREW MIDDLETON
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — The United States and the Soviet Union are moving toward agreement on the mutual withdrawal of some ground forces from central Europe, according to authoritative sources in Washington.

Reciprocal reductions in the strength of the United States Seventh Army in West Germany and the Soviet Army group in East Germany have been described as the most feasible first step toward force reductions in central Europe.

This view has reportedly emerged from discussions within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and from talks its representatives have had with Warsaw Pact representatives in Vienna in preparation for an eventual conference on troop withdrawals.

Some NATO sources report that the United States and the Soviet Union have already agreed on initial withdrawals, but this report has been denied in Washington.

According to the NATO informants, an agreement was reached during Henry A. Kissinger's visit to Moscow last month for the United States to withdraw 26,000 of its 185,000 troops in West Germany and for the Soviet Union to withdraw 26,000 men from its force of about 205,000 in East Germany.

In denying this, Nixon administration sources said that mutual and balanced force reductions in central Europe were mentioned only in the most general terms during the talks that Kissinger, who is President Nixon's national security adviser, had in Moscow.

But they conceded that the logic of the discussions in Vienna and at the North Atlantic Council in Brussels was leading toward an initial reduction of troops by both the United States and the Soviet Union.

It was reported to be uncertain, however, whether any initial cut would be in line with the concept of balanced withdrawals that the Nixon administration has insisted upon and that the Russians have opposed. Balance remains NATO's over-all objective, however.

Balance is linked to geography. Soviet forces leaving East Germany could be in Soviet territory after traveling only 500 miles. American troops, however, would have to retire 3,000 miles across the Atlantic.

Consequently, NATO insists on an over-all withdrawal ratio of at least two Russians for every alliance soldier who leaves the central front between Denmark and the Alps.

During the discussions within NATO, the British reportedly expressed opposition to any cuts in their army on the Rhine. With the West German land forces, NATO's largest, all committed by treaty to the alliance, the Seventh Army of the United States emerged as the most logical area for the first reduction of Allied Forces.

It was argued that since Soviet troops are qualitatively much superior to those in other Warsaw Pact armies, any Soviet withdrawal would reduce the west's.

Qualified sources reported that the talk of troop cuts was conducted in an atmosphere of nervousness over the implications for NATO of Kissinger's speech in New York on April 23.

What reportedly aroused concern was his statement that "while the Atlantic alliance is committed to a strategy of flexible response in principle," a great deal remained to be accomplished "to give reality" to that goal.

A strategy of flexible response is one that meets attacks on NATO territory with whatever forces are appropriate, including tactical nuclear weapons.

Sky pirates slip off with $50,000

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Two masked gunmen who set hijacking records put a mysterious end to their three-day odyssey by sneaking off the commandeered airliner and disappearing Saturday with $50,000.

The young air pirates picked up the ransom money from the Colombian airline on a Caribbean stopover, then ordered the plane on a nation-hopping run through western South America.

When the airliner reached Buenos Aires, the hijackers were gone. The more than 80 original passengers had been released or had escaped since the ordeal began Wednesday.

The pilot said both hijackers got away at Resistencia, in a remote and thinly populated area of northern Argentina near the Brazilian and Paraguayan borders. Police patrols began a search there.

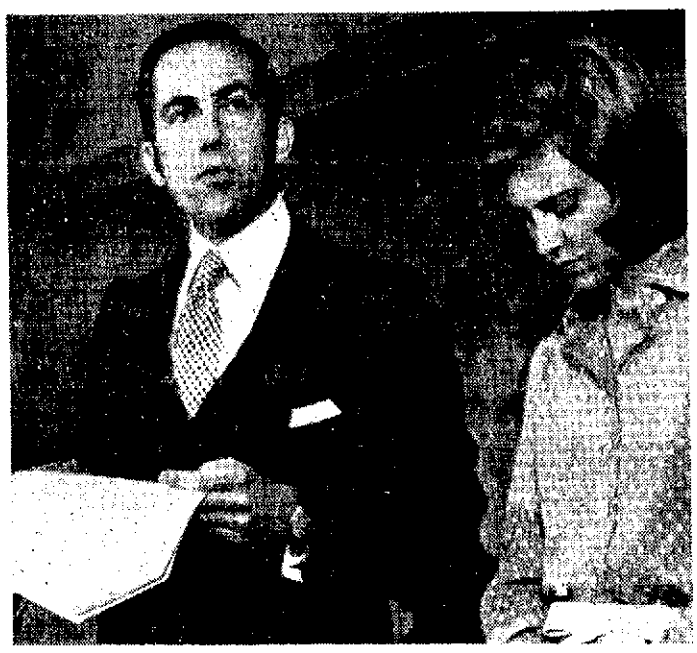

But a police official in Buenos Aires said after authorities questioned the plane's crew of six that he belived one of the hijackers got off at Resistencia and the other on the next stop at Asuncion, Paraguay.

The official asked not be be identified. He gave no further details.

Wherever they were, the two were assumed to be seeking rest after three sleepless days of forcing the airliner to fly 15,000 miles.

Capt. Hugo Molina, the aircraft's exhausted pilot, told newsmen the hijackers had left the plane in Resistencia, Argentina, and made their getaway in a pickup truck left by authorities near the runway.

Molina said the hijackers had threatened to kill a stewardess held as hostage if the truck was not provided. But this failed to explain why police did not chase the hijackers after they fled in the pickup, without hostages.

postpone as long as possible, while his staff studied the possible consequences.

A report that Cox suggested abandonment of the committee hearings has been denied, but it appeared to be clear that he expressed grave reservations and a strong distaste for the continuance of the hearings.

In reaction to all of this, the committee planned to proceed with the plan developed before the Memorial Day recess. It calls for another week or two of relatively minor witnesses, followed by testimony from the principals, starting with Maurice Stans, former head of the Nixon re-election campaign financial committee, Jeb Stuart Magruder and Dean.

Meanwhile, in Nevada Saturday Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss disclosed that he is seeking a probe into yet another burglary. Strauss said his home was entered and ransacked last July but nothing was stolen. He was treasurer of the Democratic National Committee at the time. Strauss said he thought nothing of the incident then, but with later disclosures has decided to ask that the entry also be probed.

He said he has sent letters to Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, and to Assistant U.S. Atty. Earl Silbert.

In Norwalk, Conn., meanwhile, conservative newspaper publisher William Loeb Saturday called for the resignation of President Nixon for what he called the "stupid" handling of the Watergate scandal.

Loeb said in a signed editorial appearing in the Connecticut Sunday Herald that the President should resign in favor of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew because of the uproar in the nation over the break-in.

Astronauts may stay extra days in space

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab's astronauts may spend 10 extra days in space, an official said here Saturday, as the spacemen continue to squeeze useful science from the power-crippled space station.

Kenneth S. Kleinknecht, manager of the Skylab program office at the Johnson Space Center, said an extension of up to 10 days of the 28-day Skylab 1 mission is seriously being studied as one way of getting the most information possible from the $2.6 billion space project.

Astronauts Charles Conrad Jr. and Paul J. Weitz made an earth resources photo pass Saturday over a strip of land from California to Mexico, gathering information on earthquakes, volcanoes and the sources of pollution.

"The pass seemed to go pretty good," said Weitz of the 10-minute photo run which started near San Francisco.

Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin, the third crewman, worked at other Skylab chores.

IN A NEWS CONFERENCE, Kleinknecht said experts here and at Alabama's Marshal Space Flight Center are spending the weekend developing techniques the Skylab 1 crew can use in a space-walking attempt to free a solar power wing which is stuck closed. The wing could provide a critical boost in Skylab's power supply.

Kleinknecht said that other studies indicate it may be possible and desirable to extend the 28-day mission by up to 10 days.

He said by lengthening the mission, it would mean the space station would still be manned when the orbit of the craft carries it into a position that permits sunlight to hit power-producing solar cells practically all the time. This increased sunlight he said, would boost the power available by about 3,000 watts, even without the use of the broken solar wing.

"We certainly would be remiss for not looking at something like this, he said. "We could probably pick up all the experimental data needed on this flight."

Arlington tour spill hurts 41

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty-one tourists were injured Saturday when the fully loaded third section of their tourmobile overturned on a hilly curve in Arlington National Cemetery, U.S. Park Police said.

The vehicle overturned just past the Kennedy gravesites, police said, injuring all but one of the persons in the last section of the train-like vehicle. Most of the injuries were minor.

The driver, Norman C. Baptist, 32, was charged with reckless driving and failure to maintain proper control of a vehicle, Police Capt. M.R. Lomax said.

The nine persons most seriously hurt were treated at Arlington Hospital and the others were taken to a clinic at Ft. Myer, adjacent to the sprawling cemetery, Lomax said.

The most seriously injured had severe lacerations, a hospital spokesman said.

The slow-moving tourmobile is an open-air vehicle with three cars in tandem.

Governors open meeting today

Republican presidential nomination in 1976. If, as Reagan contends, the plan will actually pern it governments to curb spending without curtailing essential services, its appeal to taxpayers across the nation will be enormous.

And, obviously, so will the appeal of the man who proposed it, Ronald Reagan.

A favorable response from a majority of the other 49 governors attending the conference would, additionally, have an immediate value. I would undoubtedly spur efforts to place the proposal on a statewide ballot this November.

WHEN IT BECAME apparent that the Legislature would not act on the proposal with the haste Reagan wanted, he launched an initiative campaign. But the drive to obtain the 520,806 signatures needed to qualify the measure has reportedly been lagging, and the leaders of the campaign have recently resorted to hiring professional petition circulators and paying them 30 cents per signature.

One topic of great concern to governors, federal revenue sharing, will be discussed at a Wednesday morning session featuring Caspar W. Weinberger, former California state finance director and now secretary of the federal Dept. of Health, Education, and Welfare; Kenneth R. Cole Jr., executive director of President Nixon's domestic council, and Roy L. Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget.

At Tuesday sessions, the governors will participate in discussions on developing state, regional, and national energy policies, school finance, and trends in welfare and social services.

Dash, one source said, that prompted the Senate Watergate Committee to seek immunity from prosecution for Dean in return for his testimony during a public hearing.

Federal prosecutors who are reported to be completing their investigation into the scandal, have refused to grant Dean immunity, reliable sources said, although he has also told them that he had had many conferences with Nixon early this year.

One government source said that the prosecutors "have no doubt that he (Dean) met with the President, but their question is: 'What did they meet about?'"

Early in May, Senate and federal investigators were reported to have concluded on the basis of interviews up to that time that Dean had no evidence to link Nixon either to prior knowledge of the bugging or to any subsequent cover-up.

The sources who related details of the meeting between Dash and Dean said that Dash told associates on the senate committee that the meeting was prompted by a telephone call on May 12 from Shaffer.

At that point, the sources said, Dean also apparently began to talk more freely to the three federal prosecutors about the White House role in an alleged cover-up attempt. Last week the prosecutors sent him a letter formally offering to permit him to plead guilty to one felony count in return for his cooperation in the case. Dean's attorneys have publicly rejected the suggestion.

Until today's disclosure, Dean and his associates have been quoted as saying that he had little contact with Nixon during the period between June 1, 1972, the date of the Watergate breakin, and Aug. 29, when Nixon publicly announced that the White House counsel had assured him in a report that no one "presently employed by this administration" had been involved in Watergate.

Tornadoes spew havoc in Midwest

United Press International

Tornadoes flew over at least seven Midwestern states Saturday. One rammed its way through Herrin, Ill., causing an estimated half-million dollars worth of property damage.

No serious injuries were reported.

The Herrin twister skipped over a home for the elderly before it smacked into a mobile-home sales lot, destroying all but six of the display homes. The owner, Jack Parmley, estimated damage to the lot alone at $160,000.

The whirling mass took one of the steel trailer bases used to haul the homes, skidded it across the roof of a supermarket and plopped it down like crumpled tin foil 200 yards away. The roof of a nearby bar and grill with nine customers inside was raised and dropped again, but on one inside was hurt.

MORE THAN a half-dozen other funnels were sighted in southern and central Illinois and the National Weather Service reported sightings at Burlington, Iowa, Cape Girardeau, Mo., Willow City, N.D., and several points in Arkansas and Oklahoma.

In Wichita Falls, Tex., hail the size of tennis balls and wind gusts up to 70 miles per hour dashed the city, which also got three inches of rain.

U.S. denies Russ had papers

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Contrary to assertions in a sworn statement by a former White House aide, Egil Krogh Jr., the Federal Bureau of Investigation had knowledge in late June 1971 that the Soviet government did not possess the Pentagon Papers before they were published by the New York Times, according to Justice Department sources.

These sources say that although the bulk of the top secret Defense Department study of the Vietnam War was mysteriously delivered to the Soviet Embassy here it did not arrive until after the Times had printed its first three installments from the papers and had been placed under a temporary court order to halt further publication.

In an affidavit submitted last month at the Los Angeles trial of Dr. Daniel Ellsberg, who has admitted giving the Pentagon papers to the press, Krogh said that he approved a burglary at the office of Ellsberg's former psychiatrist as part of a White House investigation into the unauthorized disclosure of the documents.

Krogh testified that among the factors that led him to authorize the illegal break-in by two White House aides was a report from the FBI "that the so-called Pentagon papers were in the possession of the Soviet Embassy, Washington, D.C., prior to their publication" by the Times.

Krogh said that this information, which he received sometime before the burglary on Sept. 3, 1971, suggested "an effort to aid and abet an enemy of the United States (North Vietnam) through the ally (the Soviet Union)."

Asked whether the FBI had ever made any such report to Krogh, an official replied that the bureau "did not tell Mr. Krogh" that the Soviets had had the papers before they were published.

The authorization "to engage in covert activity to obtain a psychological history" of Ellsberg, Krogh said, was received from John D. Ehrlichman, then President Nixon's chief adviser for domestic affairs, and the "plans for acquiring the information were developed by G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt Jr.

Clouds to yield to sunny afternoons

Night and morning low clouds are expected to give way to slightly warmer days and sunny afternoons under light blue skies today and Monday, the National Weather Service said Saturday.

Forecasters predict the mercury to fluctuate between 74 and 77 degrees in Long Beach today, while predictions for Monday are slightly higher with temperatures expected in the 76- to 80-degree range.

Forecasters promised slightly cooler weather — with a high of 70 — in the mountain areas near Big Bear Lake, while the desert regions are expected to check in with temperatures in the upper 80s and low 90s.

Opponents to go to state impact group

Condominium OK to be appealed

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

The battle over high-rise residential development along Ocean Boulevard—an issue that could have far-reaching implications for the city and its shoreline—will apparently be fought at a state level under the terms of Proposition 20, the coastal zone conservation initiative passed by the voters last November.

The prospect was raised by the disclosure that opponents of a planned nine-story condominimum on Ocean Boulevard near Temple Avenue will carry their opposition to the California Coastal Comn ission.

The nine-story project, to be built by contractor David Cardinali, won a narrow victory at the regional level Thursday when the South Coast Conservation Commission approved a pern it application for the project by a 7 to 5 vote. But attorney Sid Mendlovitz, who represents two property owners on Ocean, said he planned to file an appeal fron the regional decision within the next few days. Mendlovitz was preparing the appeal papers Saturday.

Although the attorney will be formally representing only two parties, there's reason to believe that his actual support will be far more extensive, since 600 persons signed petitions against the project when it went before the City Council last month.

In any case, it now appears that the Cardinali project—and, by extension, the whole issue of high-rise development along the boulevard—will be decided by the state commission, which is considered more conservationist-oriented than the regional panel.

The South Coast comn ission approved the Cardinali application over the objections of its staff, which recommended denial on the ground that the condominimum would have a substantial adverse effect on the coastal environment.

Opponents of the measure feel th at the 151-unit building will worsen traffic problems along Ocean during the morning and evening rush hours and on days when the beach attracts large crowds. (City planning officials say the extra traffic load will probably be siphoned off by First and Second Streets and Broadway.)

Opponents also feel the project will create parking problems and otherwise interfere with beach access in the area. Some are also concerned with the possibility that it will interfere with the ocean breezes moving inland.

More significantly, perhaps, they fear that a go-ahead for Cardinali, who already has one high-rise under construction on the boulevard, will signal the start of a high-rise rush along the strip on Ocean between Kennebec and Redondo Avenues across from Bluff Park.

Peter Deveraux, a builder and designer who is opposed to the project, said the South Coast comn ission has already received permit applications covering 1,200 apartment and condominimum units along Ocean Boulevard.

Deveraux said it's entirely possible that the seven-block stretch between Kennebec and Redondo will have 6,000 to 8,000 residents once high-rise development has run its course.

Among the projects under consideration by the comn ission staff at this moment is a 15-story, 54-unit apartment building across the street from Cardinali's proposed concominium near Temple. The project is being sponsored by Dr. Malcolm Todd, a prominent physician in the city. Todd's wife is a men ber of the city Planning Commission.

Another project under consideration is a 194-unit apartment complex whose twin towers would be 11 and 17 stories high. The project, sponsored by William D. Evans of San Diego, would be located at 1746 Ocean Blvd.

Under the city's general plan, which was shown to the comn ission by City Planning Director Ernest Mayer Jr. Thursday, the strip between Kennebec and Redondo is zoned for high rise. About 200 feet deep, it is designated R-5 and, according to a member of the Planning Department, gives the city wider powers in controlling open space around the buildings than an R-4 designation. At the same time, R-5 does not permit construction of a new building less than five stories high, the planning aide said.

City officials have long regarded the R-5 strip along Ocean Boulevard as an ideal location for high-rise development. Not only would high-rise structures offer the opportunity of shoreline living to hundreds of families, but they would boost property taxes, as well officials have felt. At Thursday's hearing, attorney Arthur Guy told the commission that the Cardinali project will increase city and county tax revenues fron the property from roughly $6,000 a year to $200,000.

The proposed condominium, while it won't be the first high rise on

"I concentrate on new dentures at prices you can afford"

What you can't afford is to be without them.

Dr. F. E. Campbell

Why I can offer new dentures at such reasonable prices: Of all our services, the basic and most important one is making new dentures. We do all our own work in our own modern laboratories. With the popularity of my INSTANT CREDIT PLAN — I can deliver new dentures at prices you can afford.

Instant Credit Makes it Easy. Older people often face a different kind of credit problem than younger ones. I understand your credit problems. I carry my own credit, so I can make my own decision on your credit INSTANTLY. No waiting for an answer. No banks or finance companies to deal with. Many of my patients work part time, are on Social Security, a small pension or retired. Whatever your circumstances, I tailor the terms to fit them — on approval of your credit—even if you earn UNDER $200 a month, even if you've never had credit before.

Extra work? No extra charge. Even though we never know in advance how much time and work your new dentures may take — you always know in advance how much they'll cost. Exactly. We never charge extra for difficult cases. All work in our labs by union technicians.

One Day Service. Usually, if you come in to our downtown L.A. office by 9:30 A.M. — your dentures can be ready the same day — a real advantage for out-of-towners.

Fast Plate Repairs in all 12 offices. Usually...while you wait.

Union Members. All union and insurance dental care plans welcome. Bring your I.D. card. We do the rest.

Any questions? We'll gladly answer them in detail. Come in anytime or phone the office nearest you. No appointment necessary for examination.

Probers check Texan's pledge

By ED ZUCKERMAN
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Senate Watergate Committee is interested in untangling the riddle of a Texas wheeler-dealer who pledged $605,000 he didn't have to the presidential campaigns of Sen. Hubert Humphrey and President Nixon.

What prompted Walter Thomas Duncan to pledge the gifts, made in the form of promissory notes which were converted to cash by the candidates' financial managers, remains an unsettled mystery of the bizarre 1972 campaign.

Duncan pledged $300,000 in two installments to help Humphrey meet his primary election expenses — $100,000 in May and $200,000 in July last year. Four days after making the second pledge, a 220-acre parcel of land Duncan owned was sold at a foreclosure auction for failure to meet payments on a $2.6-million loan.

THE TEXAS REAL ESTATE speculator pledged $305,000 to the Nixon re-election committee in August, several days before he was named defendant in a $2.2-million lawsuit to recover the balance due on the bank loan.

So far, efforts to explain the motives behind Duncan's generosity at a time of personal financial difficulty has only produced more unanswered questions.

One person who can help unravel the mystery is Walter Dilbeck Jr., an Evansville, Ind., real estate speculator, who acted as a middleman in the transactions between Duncan and the captains of the Humphrey and Nixon money-gathering squads.

Asked if the Senate Watergate panel was planning to examine the Duncan pledges and Dilbeck's role, an aide said "all significant allegations will be checked." Pressed further, the aide termed Duncan's gifts "significant" and implied that Dilbeck's name has been mentioned in discussions about the donations.

Dilbeck, contacted by the Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau, said he has not been contacted by the Senate Watergate Committee but "I'll certainly testify if they call."

Dilbeck, a Congressional Medal of Honor winner for World War II heroism whose exploits will soon be featured in a Hollywood film entitled "Okay, Pvt. Dilbeck," donated $106,000 to the brief presidential campaign of his long-time friend, Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind. Hartke later became national co-chairman of the Humphrey campaign.

DILBECK WAS QUESTIONED last month by General Accounting Office (GAO) investigators who are probing the financial activities of the Hartke, Humphrey and Nixon campaigns. Of that interview, Dilbeck said, "The GAO got more information from me than any other person because they got the truth."

Although GAO agents Gary Lawson and Robert Costa won't devulge details of their May 2 interview with Dilbeck, a transcript of the conversation was made by Dilbeck's secretary.

During the interview, according to the transcript, Dilbeck accused Humphrey's financial managers of making "a sucker" out of Duncan and himself and he told the GAO probers they should "get to the bottom of this."

Dilbeck's version of the Duncan transactions, while sketchy in detail, portrays a world of financial activity where friendly bankers become more important than a supply of ready cash.

According to the transcript, Dilbeck's first contact with the Humphrey campaign was a telephone call in March, 1972, from S. Harrison Dogole (chief executive officer of Globe Security Systems, Philadelphia) and Sen. Humphrey. They asked him to come to Philadelphia to discuss Humphrey's need for campaign funds.

"We discussed financial problems with Dogole and Ocean Boulevard—the Galaxy and Pacific Holiday Towers have been standing for several years, for example—is nonetheless a pivotal project.

Architect Hugh Gibbs spoke of it as "pilot case."

"If you knock this down, you knock it down for the whole city," he told the commission panel. Gibbs said the strip was made into an R-5 zone "to save it from the ravages of R-4, which permitted grim three and four-story wood and stucco building" to be crowded cheek by jowl along the boulevard.

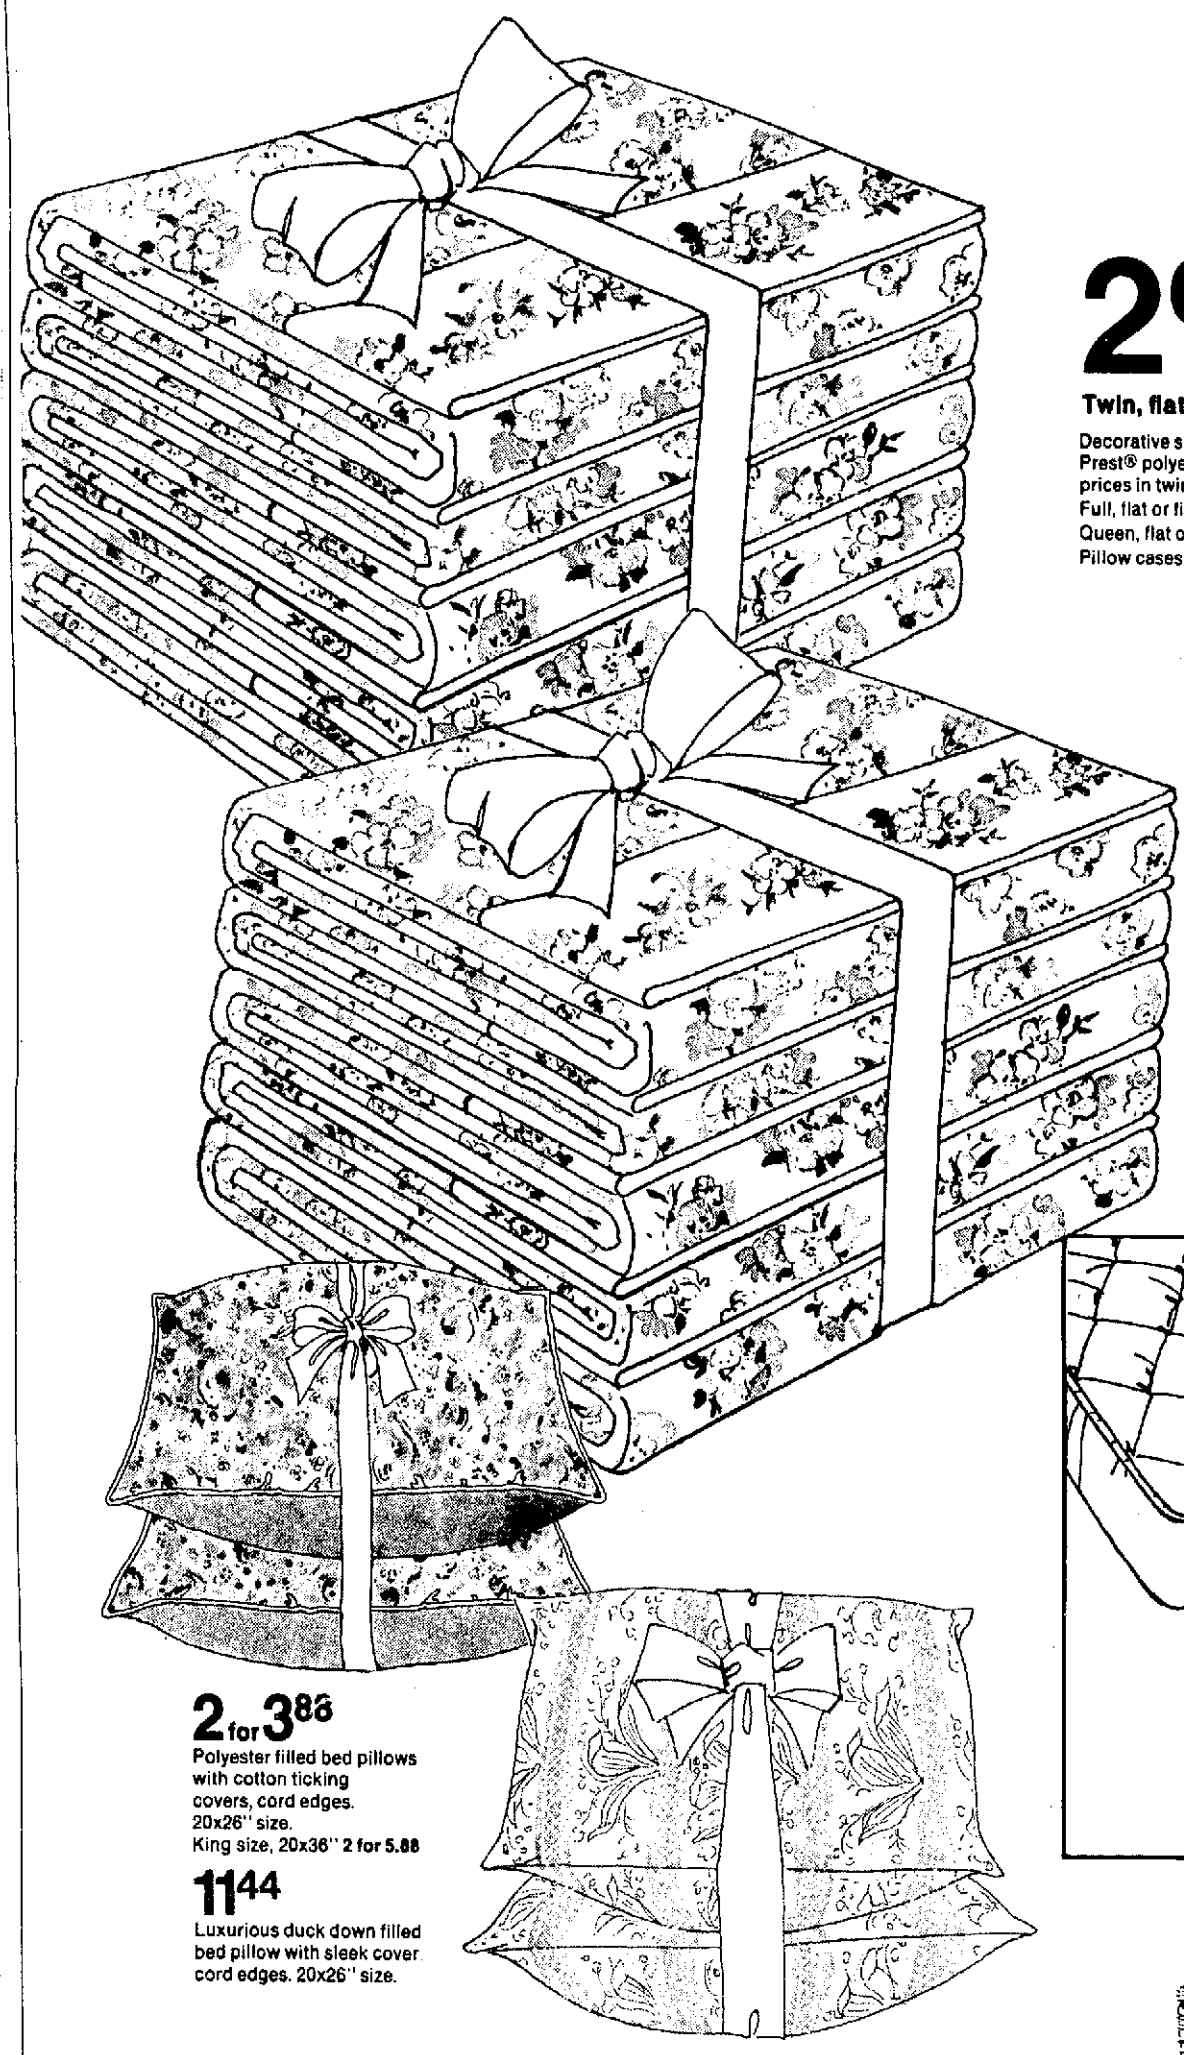

The area west of Bluff Park, he said, is, for all intents and purposes, a lost cause.

But at Bluff Park the city has an opportunity to enhance the scenic beauty of the boulevard, he added.

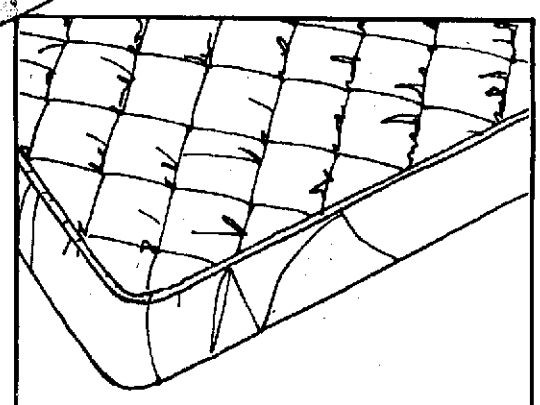

"There are those of us in the city who have tried so hard and so long to make (Ocean) a really beautiful drive," he declared. "It would be tragic to lose this just when we're achieving our goal."

It now appears that the State Coastal Commission will be addressed not only by that plea, but the pleas of those who feel that high-rise development along Ocean will hurt the coastal environment that Proposition 20 was set up to protect.

Probers check $605,000 pledge

Sen. Humphrey and I explained it would be difficult for me to raise any additional money. He said he was desperate for money and was running about $100,000 in arrears in Indiana and Ohio ... He said he didn't have literature for his meetings," Dilbeck explained to the GAO representatives.

AFTER BEING ASSURED that Humphrey was diametrically opposed to the economic views of Sen. George McGovern, Dilbeck discussed Humphrey's plea with Duncan, a long-time business associate.

"Duncan said he thought Sen. Humphrey would make a good president and ... to go ahead and help him on his behalf. I took a $100,000 note and the permission to use it to Joe Cole (chief executive officer of Cole National Corp., Cleveland, who loaned $335,000 to the campaign and donated $45,000)."

Dilbeck delivered the note and Duncan's financial statement to Cole, but did not know how or where the note was cashed. He assumed the pledge was acceptable because "I got a call from Humphrey thanking me," he said.

According to an examination of the Duncan donations by the Washington Post, Humphrey's backers were unable to find a bank willing to cash Duncan's note. But, following a suggestion from long-time Humphrey adviser Max Kampelman, Cole obtained a $100,000 loan in his own name from the District of Columbia National Bank and used Duncan's note as collateral. At the insistence of bank managers, the transaction was not approved until Kampelman, one of the bank's founders, agreed to co-sign Cole's loan.

Cole, according to the Washington Post, "was worried about a default from Duncan so Kampelman, Dogole, Paul Thatcher (treasurer of the Humphrey campaign and business associate of Archer Daniel Midland Co. president Dwain Andreas) and John Morrison, a Minneapolis businessman, agreed to each accept $20,000 of the loan if Duncan defaulted."

DILBECK TOLD THE GAO agents that Cole and Humphrey contacted him again about a week before the California primary.

"Joe Cole said he needed $200,000 to win in California and if Tom Duncan would donate $200,000 more we would have a new president. I called Tom and advised hom not to put up any more money.

"Joe Cole was frantic and one morning called me at 6 a.m. and said Humphrey would call me. Humphrey called and said 'you are the key to winning this election and we need the $200,000 badly in California to win the primary and this will to the job.'

"Tom and I have had so many dealings together so I called him and said for him to go ahead and donate the money," Dilbeck said.

The second Duncan note was cashed at the National Bank of Washington, owned by the United Mine Workers of America and headed at the time by True Davis. It was secured with 10,000 shares of Archer Daniel Midland Stock, with an estimated $400,000 owned by Andreas.

GAO disclosure reports show a $200,000 contribution from Duncan but no mention of Andreas' agreement to back the note. Duncan failed to pay the note and, last week, Andreas paid the $200,000 debt as the bank was preparing to sell the stock it held as collateral.

Dilbeck next received a telephone call from Maurice Stans, chairman of the Finance Committee for the Re-election of the President.

"AN ARRANGEMENT WAS REACHED between Duncan, Stans and myself to bring Duncan's (blank) note to Stans' office in Washington. Stans said, 'How much did you give Humphrey?' I said $300,000. And, an agreement was reached to give $305,000 to Nixon," Dilbeck said.

Duncan's note to the Nixon group was cashed at the First National Bank of Washington on the basis of a financial statement that on itted information about four Duncan debts totalling $5.3 million.

Of the total $605,000 worth of pledges, the Texas promoter did not pay a single cent. His initial $100,000 note became the responsibility of Cole and four other Humphrey backers to pay. His $200,000 note was paid by Andreas. His $305,000 note to Nixon was forgiven.

Watergate fuels Congress power drive

SEN. CHARLES MATHIAS

By WILLIAM BROOM
National Bureau Chief

WASHINGTON—Congress, which has grown flabby as the executive branch grabbed more and more power, is beginning to flex its muscles.

The elixir which has brought about this change is easily identifiable: Watergate.

Congress reacted slowly in April as shock after shock registered in the headlines. There was little indication that the Nixon administration had lost its mastery over Capitol Hill in the fuss over the Watergate disclosures.

The house, for example, easily sustained a presidential veto of legislation requiring top budget officials to be confirmed by the Sentate.

Most Democrats on the hill remained silent about Watergate, content to let the President sizzle in his own juices. The Democratic leadership, which over the years has come to resemble a 97-pound weakling, adopted a policy of benign neglect.

Last week, without any apparent exertion by the leadership, Congress handed the administration a one-two-three punch.

The Senate voted overwhelmingly 63-19 to cut off all funds for bombing in Cambodia, the first time either house has voted an absolutely cutoff of all money.

The house moved in less spectacular ways to reassert congressional power.

In its greatest show of resistance to administration wishes in the current session, the House passed by overwhelming margins three health measures the administration had lobbied against.

THE BILL likely to have the broadest impact on current health programs was the one passed by the widest margin, 372-1. It would extend for a year a dozen health programs, five of which the administration wanted to kill.

Proposals to keep alive the Hill-Burton program for hospital construction and federal aid to community health centers also passed by one-sided votes sufficient to nourish confidence that a presidential veto can be overriden if it is cast.

Leaders in the battle were reluctant to associate the House's show of independence with reaction to Watergate, but Florida's Rep. Paul G. Robers said "this shows Congress intends to place a higher priority on health services than the Department of Health, Education and Welfare would."

Another major confrontation with the administration shaped up in an executive session of the House Judiciary Committee. The committee adopted an amendment limiting authorization of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration to two rather than the five years requested by the White House

In the session, Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J, revealed he is planning to introduce legislation which would require the Justice department to receive authorization from his committee for all its appropriations.

Such a measure, if enacted, would require the FBI, for example, to tell Congress why it wants more special agents and what work they will be assigned. It would give Congress greater power by confering the right to initiate programs as well as stifle them by withholding funds.

"That is the kind of oversight by Congress that counts," said Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., a committee member. "Legislation like this is a direct result of Watergate. Congress is beginning to re-emphasize the power of the legislative branch over the executive departments."

When the current session opened, Congress loudly asserted its intention to reassert its power. The drive fizzled when President Nixon seized the initiative on the budget battle and negotiated an end to the war in Vietnam.

But the dormant demand for more power and greater accountability for its actions by the executive branch is being revived. Bipartisan legislation introduced in the Senate Thursday would require government agencies to keep Congress fully and currently informed.

Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., co-author, told the Senate that Congress had been "stymied all too often by a refusal on the part of the executive branch to furnish necessary information." One consequence, he said was the entanglement of the U.S. in "destructive policies" such as the Vietnam war.

Without specifying the Watergate case, Mathias alluded to it as evidence of the need for the proposed law. He said there have been "clear and sufficient warnings of increasing threats to open democratic government We have begun to heed these warnings that government by cabal, unless checked, will stifle our freedom."

Envoys see bugs as status

WASHINGTON (AP) — Want to be overheard on a government wiretap? Telephone a foreign embassy. Many diplomats believe a federal agent will listen in.

Disclosures of widespread eavesdropping in the Watergate scandal reinforce the belief that Uncle Sam is really Uncle Snoop of Embassy Row. But a question of diplomatic status also plays a part.

It's a standing joke in diplomatic circles that no self-respecting ambassador ever would say privately that his telephones were not tapped. To do so would be a confession that his country doesn't count for much.

So whether they represent governments friendly, neutral or hostile to the United States, many diplomats believe that U.S. agents are tuned in every time an embassy telephone is picked up.

BUT, BEING diplomats, most won't say so on the record. An exception is Nander A. Pitty, Panama's ambassador to the Organization of American States. He says his government suspects its telephone lines here are tapped.

The Justice Department, which has jurisdiction over wiretapping matters, declines to say whether any embassy's lines now are tapped or have been in the past.

The government needs no court authorization to wiretap an embassy; a directive from the attorney general suffices.

Some diplomats envision the existence of a vast accumulation of wiretap files sequestered at a secret government outpost, containing information ranging from routine diplomatic chit-chat at embassy X to the unbridled anti-Americanism of foreign service Officer Y, to the noctural leerings of Ambassador Z.

And the Watergate scandal has heightened conjecture about government wiretapping.

WATERGATE conspirator James W. McCord Jr., told the Senate investigating committee that he called two embassies in Washington earlier this year in a deliberate attempt to be overheard by government listeners.

McCord reportedly told Senate investigators earlier that the calls were placed to the Israeli and Chilean embassies because he knew from his days as a CIA agent that these two missions had been bugged. McCord was said to have reasoned that any government admission he had been overheard would weaken its case against him.

Most diplomats respond with a so-what-else-is-new attitude when queried about the McCord testimony. The Latin Americans in particular believe that wiretapping is just another tree in a forest of government conspiracy.

Pitty said his embassy used to have a code to foil wiretaps, "but we did away with it in 1968 when the new government took office. We really have nothing to hide because our cause is just."

Watergate crippling, governors say

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Editor

STATE LINE, Nev. — Many of the nation's governors, whose 65th annual conference opens here today, believe the Watergate scandal has seriously hampered the Nixon administration's handling of federal-state relations.

In an Associated Press survey before the conference, they cite delays in decisions, vacancies in many positions and what Democratic Gov. Richard Kneip of South Dakota termed "a mood of uncertainty and drift created by a leadership vacuum in this administration."

Even a number of Republicans, while using milder language, see federal delays because of the Watergate turmoil. "They are not concentrating on some of the numdane problems that need solutions," said Wyoming Gov. Stanley Hathaway.

Other governors report little impact from Watergate in the relations between their states and Washington. But they are dissatisfied with the Nixon administration's inability to give them assurances about the impact of proposed changes in federal-state aid.

SEVERAL Republicans, however, blamed the Democratic Congress.

Though much of the informal conversation and speculation will undoubtedly deal with Watergate, the major issue facing the governors at this Lake Tahoe resort is, as usual, money.

A partisan battle looms over the administration's plan to convert a number of domestic aid programs into so-called "special revenue sharing." Democrats are expected to try to put the National Governors Conference on record against the plan, pending assurances it won't mean less money for the states.

THE MOVE is likely to fail, since the 31-19 Democratic majority among governors is less than the two-thirds needed to pass resolutions. But it will focus attention on problems posed by the administration's domestic aid cutbacks, overshadowed in recent weeks by Watergate.

Special revenue sharing will be discussed Wednesday by a panel of top administration officials, including Budget Director Roy Ash, executive director Kenneth Cole of the Domestic Council and HEW Secretary, Caspar Weinberger.

President Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew have declined to attend the conference.

Host for the meeting is Democratic Gov. Mike O'Callaghan of Nevada.

Most of the 50 state governors and three territorial governors are expected.

Of more than 30 governors responding to the survey, more than half saw the Watergate affair as having a detrimental effect on their relations with the administration.

ONLY two — Linwood Holton of Virginia and Thomas J. Meskill of Connecticut — reported little difficulty from Watergate and special revenue sharing. Republican Gov. Winfield Dunn of Tennessee said Watergate "has improved" his state's relations with Washington but didn't elaborate.

Holton and Dunn are the chairman and vice chairman of the Republican Governors Association.

Gov. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas, the chairman of the Democratic Governors Caucus, spoke for many Democrats when he declared that "most of the time the government has been so consumed with Watergate that some of the homework is not being done and we're having a difficult time getting definite answers to our questions."

Other Democrats were blunter. "Day-to-day decisions are being withheld or constantly contradicted," said Gov. Thomas L. Judge of Montana. "The system appears to be nearing total paralysis."

Among the Republicans, Francis W. Sargent of Massachusetts commented that the Watergate issues "have preoccupied many of the key members of the Nixon administration," while Gov. John Love of Colorado said, "There is a feeling that the operations of the federal government have been slowed down because of concentration of attention on Watergate."

THE ANTICIPATED debate on special revenue sharing will mark a continuation of a fight that erupted in February, when the governors held their mid-winter meeting in Washington. Democrats vowed to then oppose the plan until details were clarified and reaffirmed that view at a meeting of Democratic governors in late April.

Under the special revenue sharing proposal, a number of current programs for specific problems would be replaced by giving states money to use according to their needs.

"The Nixon administration has not satisfied my doubts about special revenue sharing, and I remain opposed to it in its present condition of uncertainty and unfairness to the states," said Gov. Marvin Mandel of Maryland, a Democrat and chairman of the National Governors Conference.

Vesco an issue in Costa Rica

SAN JOSE (AP) — Costa Rica is a victim of Watergate fallout.

This tiny Central American republic has been exposed to a world of shady financial deals, jet-set businessmen and alleged spy plots involving purported telephone bugging and secret agents.

The controversy, likely to be an issue in next year's presidential election here, swirls around financier Robert L. Vesco.

The 37-year-old Detroit native got his start as an auto mechanic and now has his own white Boeing 707 jetliner complete with sauna and discotheque and a luxurious Costa Rican hideaway.

Vesco, who shies away from the public eye, is a fugitive from justice in the United States. He failed to appear May 21 in a New York court to answer an indictment charging him with attempting to buy off an investigation into his stock deals with an unreported $200,000 donation to President Nixon's 1972 campaign.

FORMER Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans were also indicted in the case. They have pleaded innocent.

The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission has sued Vesco and 40 others, charging them with defrauding stockholders of Investors Overseas Services of $224 million during a period when Vesco was investing heavily in Costa Rica.

Vesco also is wanted by Swiss authorities in connection with his financial dealings there.

To escape prosecution, Vesco and half a dozen colleagues have established residence in Costa Rica, whose faltering economy can use their investments.

Vesco is reported to have invested $25 million in Costa Rica. He says he plans to invest a total of $60 million.

La Nacion, Costa Rica's most influential newspaper, claimed half-jokingly recently that the country will be soon renamed "Costa Roberto."

VESCO'S name has been closely linked with that of President Jose Figures, a small but vigorous man who led Costa Rica's 1948 civil war against a corrupt regime.

Known here as Bon Pepe, Figures went on national television May 22 to answer claims by the Wall Street Journal that his personal bank account in the United States contained $325,000, some of the money from Vesco-connected funds.

Figures said deposits totalled $436,000, not $325,000, and accounted for all but about $6,000 of it in his TV address.

The deposits included $60,000 for the Costa Rican Symphony Orchestra from two "music lovers" who also happen to be officers in a Bahamas bank which has Vesco money invested in it.

Another $210,000 belonged to the San Cristobal Agricultural and Industrial Society, a holding company Figures helped found as a young man for equipment purchases in the United States. Vesco lent San Cristobal $2.5 million for a low-cost housing progran .

4-way Demo battle heats mayoral primary in N.Y.

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — With voter turnout vitally important to their fortunes in Monday's election, four Democratic mayoral hopefuls mobilized their campaign workers this weekend to get out big votes in areas where they expect to run well.

It will be a four-way mayoral primary, with City Controller Abraham D. Beame widely conceded to be leading his three opponents, U.S. Rep. Herman Badillo and Mario Biaggi and Assemblyman Albert H. Blumenthal. The unanswered question is whether Beame can poll at least 40 per cent of the vote and forestall a runoff primary June 26.

ABRAHAM BEAME

WHILE most city residents relaxed, several thousand campaign workers distributed last-minute campaign literature, electioneered in telephone calls to prospective voters and prepared to man as many of the city's 4,569 election district polls as possible.

They were the advance heralds of a primary boasting two firsts — the first primary on a Monday and the first with lengthy voting hours, 6 a.m. to 9 p.m., instead of the usual 3 p.m. to 10 p.m.

The hours were lengthened to encourage a larger turnout and the traditional Tuesday primary was switched because Tuesday is a Jewish holiday, Shabuoth.

Despite the efforts to encourage a large vote, most of the mayoral candidates' aides predicted a turnout of 800,000 or even lower of the 2.4 million enrolled Democrats in the city. Four years ago, 773,000 Democrats voted in a five-way mayoral primary.

THE OUTCOME of the Democratic mayoral contest, most politicians believe, hinges on whether Beame will get 40 per cent of the vote and if he does not which of his three opponents can qualify for the runoff of the top two votegetters in Monday's primary.

The latest WCBS-TV telephone poll — which was completed Friday and is apparently the only nonpartisan poll available — gave Beame 33 per cent, had Blumenthal and Badillo tied at 17 per cent and Biaggi trailing at 12 per cent, as he has ever since the disclosure that he had refused to answer some questions before a federal grand jury in 1971 despite his public and repeated insistence that he had answered all questions. There were still 21 per cent undecided.

The key to Beame's ability to win 40 per cent is Biaggi, since Beame has picked up most of the Biaggi support that was lost as a result of the furor over the grand jury testimony.

The other two candidates, Blumenthal and Badillo, are obviously competing with each other for the liberal vote, second place and possibly qualification for a runoff.

Beame and Blumenthal are expected to run strongly in Jewish areas, Badillo in black, Puerto Rican and some white liberal districts and, Biaggi in Italian-American areas. These, in effect, will be the hard core of their respective votes with additional votes needed from ethnic and ideological groups generally supporting their rivals.

In the campaign ideological spectrum, Badillo has adopted the most liberal stance, Biaggi, the most conservative and Beame and Blumenthal closer to the center.

Demo leader Sillas to speak

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Herman Sillas, southern secretary of the California Democratic State Central Committee and a possible candidate for secretary of state in 1974, will speak at the 8 p.m., Wednesday, meeting of the Lakewood Democratic Club in Iacaboni Library, 5100 Clark Ave., Lakewood.

A senior Partner in the Los Angeles law firm of Sillas and Castillo, the speaker is also a member of the Democratic National Reform Committee and is a co-founder and past president of the Democratic Chicano Caucus. He is an instructor in political science at El Camino Junior College, a writer and a public speaker.

His race for secretary of state would depend upon incumpent Edmund G. Brown Jr.'s run for governor. Sillas ran second to former Congressman Ron Cameron in the 1970 Democratic primary for state controller.

GOP press chief

Republican State Chairman Gordon Luce announced the appointment of veteran newsman Baxter Omohundro as communications director of the Republican State Central Comm ittee.

Omohundro was with the Independent, Press-Telegram for 16 years as a reporter-photographer, bureau chief and city editor. He was a member of the Ridder Newspapers' Washington Bureau for five years before serving as a public affairs officer for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and ACTION in Washington and California.

Demo study club

Miss Karyl Marsh, administrative assistant to Assemblyman Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, will speak on reapportionment and install 1973 officers at the Wednesday luncheon meeting of the Democratic Women's Study Club in the Lafayette Hotel French Room.

The installment is scheduled for 11:30 a.m., luncheon at noon.

CONSUMER NOTES

Grocery study shopping trends

When asked what they liked most about a supermarket, nearly 52 per cent of more than 1,000 shoppers interviewed by the University of Southern California food marketing management program reported consumers ranked the store's location over the cost of food items.

In short, convenience was more important than saving a few pennies on grocery items.

Forty USC students from the school's business administration program conducted 1,057 interviews in more than 100 Southland supermarkets.

Research established the average shopper can reach his market in 7.6 minutes, with the average distance from home to store, 1.9 miles.

When asked what three features they regarded as most important in choosing a supermarket, shoppers rated low prices at 63.4 per cent; close location 39.4 per cent; a good meat department 28.0 per cent; and fast check-out fourth.

Contradictory, of course, was the fact that more than 51 per cent said they choose the market in the first place because of its proximity to their homes.

Breaking down statistics by ethnic groups, researchers found that blacks were most insistent on low prices and fast check-outs. Orientals ranked second; whites third; and Mexican-Americans fourth.

Questions and answers about open code dating, unit price and price per measure showed a low percentage of customers could correctly identify the open code date as that date on which the product should be removed from the shelves.

Consumer Notes has suggested that open code dating and unit pricing become uniform, making it easier for the consumer to understand. Perhaps now it's time for the consumers to demand such action.

Booklet aids shopping technique

To aid homemakers in quests for new approaches to essential nutrition, a new food, nutrition and diet guide, "Food and Fitness" is available free from Blue Cross of Southern California.

The booklet contains simplified explanations of nutrition written by a number of nationally known specialists in food and dietary fields.

A special section is also set aside for improved food shopping tips and bargain purchasing.

Booklets are available by writing to the Public Affairs Dept., Blue Cross of Southern California, 4777 Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90027.

New house costs soar

Although for the first time in recent years, rents are rising faster than homeowner costs, families seeking to flee the rent increase syndrome are finding that new houses have reached an historically high average of $30,000 — a leap of $3,500 in one year.

Sidney Margolius, a pioneer consumer affairs writer attributes the $12,000 increase in the cost of owning a home during the past 10 years to the jump in the price of lumber. Lumber, Margolius writes, is estimated to have added $1,200 to $1,500 to the price of a typical house this year alone. Lumber prices have risen 34 per cent in the past 12 months.

Cadmium 'new' health hazard

By CARRICK LEAVITT

PALO ALTO (UPI)—We live in a world increasingly aware of poisons: lead in paint and gasoline, mercury- contaminated fish and cadmium plated screws.

Cadmium screws?

Yes, say two chemists at the Varian Associates Scientific Instruments Manufacturing Company.

"Knowing what I do now, from our studies," said Dennis Sandoz, manager of the optics application laboratory at Varian, "I wouldn't let my children play with cadmium plated screws — put them in their mouths — and I wouldn't want them to fool around with flashlight batteries."

SOME 15 million pounds of cadmium is used each year in American industrial processes. It is found in silver solder, bearings, dry cell batteries. It is used for electroplating of iron and steel, as a plastic stabilizer and as an anti-corrosive.

Sandoz and applications chemist Clive Parker used a newly developed carbon rod atomizer attachment on an atomic absorption spectrophotometer machine to measure trace cadmium levels in the environment.

Their preliminary findings on the effects of everyday exposure to cadmium particles are chilling, but Sandoz and Parker emphasize they have only scratched the surface with their methods. The study of cadmium poisoning among workers and residents in the U.S. is yet to be fully documented.

Lengthy surveys conducted in Japan by scientists fron the Department of Environmental Hygiene of the Karolinska Institute, Stockholm, Sweden under a contract with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, found that a crippling disease called itai-itai "is a manifestation of chronic cadmium poisoning."

In its advance stages the disease makes bones brittle. A victim may suffer fractured ribs simply by coughing, the department's scientists reported. Skeletal deformation takes place, until the victim is bent double and unable to stand.

Case after case was documented in the fertile basin along the Jintsu River below the Kamioka metals mine near Toyama City. Water apparently contaminated with cadmium from the mine was used on rice crops and consumed by the populace, the report said.

But a bigger danger from cadmium occurs when the element is converted into a gaseous state, said Parker. Inhaled cadmium particles tend to accumulate in the lungs and daily exposure can result in an emphysema-like condition.

Using their sophisticated instruments to measure cadmium in parts per million, the two chemists found miniscule amounts in dozens of everyday items.

TRACES OF the poison, not always in dangerous amounts, they said, were measured in baby foods, tobacco, hair, beverages and other everyday items.

The danger is highest, they found, for industrial workers in electroplating processes, plumbers and others who frequently use silver solder and breathe the fumes.

Cadmium in a gaseous state enters the body and tends to accumulate over the years.

Stein sees inflation cooling

NEW YORK (AP) — There was more uncertainty for the U.S. economy this past week as the dollar weakened on foreign markets and gold reached new highs.

The government announced its composite index of leading economic indicators declined in April for the first time in 2½ years.

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said the downturn "tends to confirm" evidence accumulated last month that the nation's booming economy is cooling and the "flood of inflation is subsiding."

The index, which often foreshadows broad movements in the economy, fell 0.6 per cent in April to 161.5 per cent of the 1967 average. It was the first decline since a 0.8 per cent drop in October 1970.

In the continuing worries about a gasoline shortage, Treasury Secretary George Shultz said the Nixon administration was debating whether to raise the present four-cent-a-gallon federal excise tax on gasoline as a way of reducing demand.

Schultz, emphasized that no decisions had been made.

Meanwhile, the dollar dropped on foreign markets and the price of gold soared. Analysts abroad said it reflected continued uncertainties about the U.S. economy and Watergate.

Gold hit a record $115 an ounce and the dollar dropped to new lows against the French franc, the West German mark and the Swiss franc.

Panel will probe farm labor rows

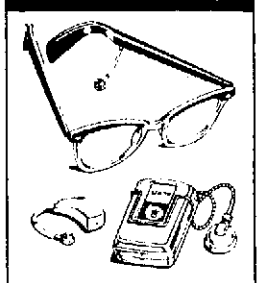

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A state Senate subcommittee will hold hearings in Bakersfield Monday "to find out the facts" in the disputes between Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers Union and the Teamsters.

"It is essential to the efficient functioning of the state's economy that we have labor peace in the state's major industry, which is agriculture," said Sen. David A. Roberti, D-Los Angeles, head of the subcommittee on labor disputes.

"There has been a public clamor for legislation in this area, and the purpose of the hearing by this subcommittee is to find out the facts in farm labor disputes," he said.

"We want to investigate the circumstances surrounding the picketing, the court orders, and the arrests. Having this knowledge, the subcommittee can then recommend to the state Senate Judiciary Committee the kinds of legislation needed to insure peaceful negotiations between labor and management," he said.

Rates unfair, says FMC

The Federal Maritime Commission has 15 pages of evidence that some West Coast-Far East shipping lines are charging up to 90 per cent more for some items moving outbound than for the same items coming into the U. S.

The commission has set June 20 as a deadline for three conferences serving the transpacific trade routes to justify the lists of rates on comparable items which were higher outbound than inbound. The conferences receiving "show cause" orders were the Pacific Westbound Conference; The Trans Pacific Freight Conference of Japan and the Far East Conference.

An investigation by the federal agency revealed the shipping lines were charging higher outbound than inbound rates on these items: athletic equipment, 90 per cent; various classes of iron and steel, 46.3 per cent; televisons, 68 per cent; refrigerators, 50 per cent; household ranges, 48 per cent; leather, canvas, and rubber shoes, 77 per cent; and domestic straight-stitch sewing machines, 47 per cent.

The possible enfluence the brewing industry may have on the shipping firms is reflected in the findings that California wine growers pay 20 per cent more to export their wines than do wine imports while the outbound rate for beer is only one per cent higher than rates on beer coming into the U. S.

If the shipping lines cannot justify the higher outbound than inbound rates they could be found in violation of the 1916 Shipping Act.

Dean Petersen, director of trade development, Long Beach Harbor Department, says, "The FMC action has been long in coming."

The commission has ordered the shipping lines to either justify the disparity in rates or equalize them. If the rates are made equal it may result in little relief for U. S. exporters since the lines have been ordered to either raise inbound rates, lower outbound rates, or a combination of both. If the lines raise their inbound rates, the outbound higher rates would not drop. However, it would mean that makers of foreign products would have to pay more to get them into the U. S. thus providing American product makers a better competitive position in the U. S. marketplace.

Action against the shipping lines followed a FMC staff investigation going back more than two years and also follows FMC Chairman Helen Delich Bentley's recent official trip to Japan to discuss certain "abrasive" maritime problems between the two countries.

Similar action was taken against conferences serving the Atlantic-Japan and Gulf Port-Japan trade.

To be feted by stages

Capt. George W. Walker, chief of staff, 11th Coast Guard District, will be honored for his 30 years in the service during a stag reception and dinner June 13 in the Officer's Club at the Long Beach Naval Station.

He will retire June 30.

The four-striper came to the Long Beach-Los Angeles waterfront six years ago and has served as chief of merchant marine safety, chief of operations division, and for the past year as chief of staff under James W. Williams, district commander.

Island fares up

The Public Utilities Commission has granted Island Boat Service, principally a summer sightseeing operation carrying passengers between various points on Santa Catalina Island, a rate increase of 25 per cent.

The company operates the Blanche W which carries passengers between Avalon, the isthmus, and a number of other bays and coves on the island. A typical fare increase would be that between the island's only city and the twin harbors at the isthmus, now $2.50 up from $2.

In granting the rate increase, the PUC said it is cost-justified and is the minimum required to assure adequate and safe operations.

For the first time in its 43-year history, women may now qualify for admission to the previously all-male California Maritime Academy.

The institution of higher leaning offers a three-year course designed to train students to become deck officers or marine engineers aboard ships of the U.S. merchant marine.

The word "male" was deleted from the entrance requirements by a State Assembly bill earlier in the year.

Another recent change is the termination of the age requirement. In the past, candidates had to be between the ages of 17 and 22 upon admission with exceptions only for veterans. Now, anyone seeking admission will receive consideration within certain limits still to be decided by the Board of Governors of the Vallejo, Calif., academy.

The third change has resulted in a relaxing of the minimum vision standards.

Recent developments in the maritime industry have opened up many jobs to qualified academy grads —both afloat and ashore. At present, according to the director of admissions, the academy placement office has about 190 positions available in the maritime industry with no one to fill them. Salaries range from $800 to $1,500 a month.

Efforts also are being directed towards soliciting more students with diversified ethnic backgrounds.

Undergraduates are taken on a two-month sea training each year aboard the academy's training ship, Golden Bear. Last year's cruise took the 260 students, officers and crew to the South Pacific. Next year's cruise is tenatively set for the Orient.

Openings are still available for the class entering in August. Further information is available by contacting the director of admissions, California Maritime Academy, Vallejo, Calif., 94590.

Surface skimmers loom as Navy's future ships

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — During the paddle wheel steamer's heyday it was proposed in New York that the Hudson River be navigated by a steamboat that would make speeds of 100 miles an hour.

Balloons were to be attached to a steamboat, partly lifting the hull out of the water, reducing drag, increasing speed, and revolutionizing water transport for all time.

The plan for an 1850 gingerbread steamer, tall stacks huffing, paddlewheel churning, skimming along the Hudson under a raft of balloons never came to pass. The idea is quaint, if not ludicrous, today.

BUT THE underlying principle — getting hulls out of the water for greater speed — is being pursued now in deadly earnest by the navies of the world.

The authoritative "Jane's Surface Skimmers," fifth edition, says, "although commercial operators continue to approach air cushion vehicles and hydrofoils with caution, the world's biggest navies seem to be in no doubt that in developed form these are the surface vessels of the future.

"Over the past year, plans have been projected for skimmers large and small to be employed in dozens of warship roles from light patrol vessels, antisubmarine warfare destroyers and frigates, to troop transports, minesweepers and carriers.

"THE SHIFT from displacement to nondisplacement vessels is one of the most revolutionary changes ever known in warship design."

The U.S. Navy, Jane says, is faced by the need to modernize and improve its surface attack vessels. "But hampered by drastically curtailed defense budgets, it has decided that a fleet of small, high speed ocean-going weapons platforms is the solution to its problem."

Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., chief of naval operations, is a booster of the Surface Effect Ship (SES) program. He has said air cushion ships represent "A technological breakthrough that offers the potential for revolutionizing naval warfare."

For fiscal year 1974, the Navy has asked for a $72.9 million appropriation to further develop surface effect ships—for test craft, to solve technology problems and foster research and development. House and Senate committees are now holding hearings on the SES budget request.

BOTH Aerojet-General on the West Coast and Bell Aerospace Division of Textron at New Orleans have built for the Navy 100-ton SES craft that use the captured air bubble principle. Larger versions are being built or are in the design stages already.

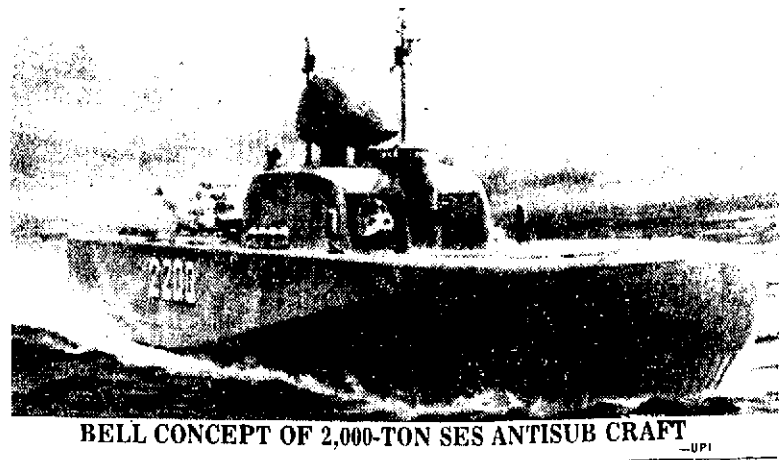

The Bell SES100B rides a drag-reducing cushion of air contained by catamaran-style side hulls and flexible bow and stern seals. When cruising, the center part of the hull is clear on the water, near frictionless, and supported by the air cushion.

The air cushion is generated and maintained by eight lift fans. Three gas turbine engines drive two propellers astern of each of the two side hulls to provide the craft's forward motion. Aerojet-General's 100-ton test version is powered by water jets instead of propellers. Their performances will be evaluated by the navy.

Capt. Gordon H. MacLane (USCG, ret.), commander of Bell's SES-$100B, already has pushed the stubby, white test vessel nearly 85 mph on Lake Pontchartrain at New Orleans, a world record speed for this type of vessel.

MacLane, also a former airplane test pilot, says, "The sophistication of the vessel is aviation-space oriented. But it's still as good as a fishing schooner out of Glouces-

'QUAKE WATCH' SET UP IN ALASKA

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Scientists plan to strap sensors this summer on a region of the Aleutian chain they believe to be the breeding ground of a major earthquake "in the next few years."

For the past 35 years, the 600-mile-long chunk of mountains and islands extending from the top of the Aleutian chain to Unalaska Island has been abnormally quiet.

John Davies, a Columbia University geophysicist studying at the University of Alaska, will lead an experimental team into the area to study the development of the expected earthquake.

If the scientific team does succeed in measuring the before and after of an earth tremor, "then we will have made a big step in predicting earthquakes," he said in a telephone interview.

"We expect in the next few years that there will be a major quake in that area," Davies said. "We're merely predicting that on a natural reoccurrence frequency."

Records show the last major disturbance in the area was in 1938, Davies said. It measured between 7 and 8 on the Richter scale.

"The records just aren't that good. We're not sure if it filled the aftershock zone, and even if it did, the last major quake in the zone was a long time ago."

Davies pointed out that the island chain is surrounded by an area that produces 9 per cent of the world's earthquakes every year, and major earthquakes occur in the Gulf of Alaska region every seven to 10 years.

Nine years ago, just 500 miles to the east, a submarine portion of the earth known as the "Pacific Plate" plunged under the coast of Alaska, causing a shock that measured 8.5 on the Richter scale. It was the largest ever recorded in North America.

Davies said he and other scientists, with a grant from the Atomic Energy Commission, will be looking for telltale bulges and quivers that could show a major quake in the making.

Five seismic instrument centers already dot the area, and at least 10 more will be placed this summer, Davies said.

"We can't say it's going to be next March 15 or anything like that. This particular area just seems to be due now."

Navy pins hopes on skimmers

ability, given that speed, to operate a Navy with increased capability, with fewer ships and fewer men.

"People tend to think the major money that Congress and the Defense Department are spending is for sophisticated weapons systems. That is a minor, small fraction of what this country is paying for its defense. The major item is people.

"But with the speed and maneuverability and other capabilities these craft have, you can just do the job with fewer people and less money," Kelly said.

ONE OF THE reasons the Navy is interested in SES craft of the 2,000-ton size is to have them assume for the 1980s the role of present antisubmarine warfare destroyers.

It is known that nuclear submarines, running submerged, can make speeds of about 40 mph, perhaps faster. They fire torpedoes that go at least that fast or faster, spelling doom for conventional, slow, displacement vessels.

The Navy believes Surface Effect Ships would run rings around enemy submarines. Armed with appropriate helicopters, weapons systems and electronics, a destroyer-SES could control hundreds of square miles of ocean, they envision.

"THERE ARE some people who argue that there are really only two ships of consequence in the modern fleet — the submarine and the aircraft carrier. To defend the carrier from the submarine, the destroyer plays an important role," Kelly said.

"But destroyers are limited in their speed due to the fact that they are displacement hull vehicles and there is very little reason to feel they will go much faster.

"A destroyer-SES would introduce a major change in the role of the destroyer and submarine, and enable the destroyer, traveling on an air-supported hull, to have speeds well in excess of anything a submarine can do.

"THEREFORE, as a chase craft it can catch a submarine easier and quicker. It can outmaneuver them and in the tactics of antisubmarine warfare, it can perform a very significant role."

With greater plans in view, the Navy last November awarded four contracts totaling $10.6 million to Aerojet-General, Bell Aerospace, Litton and Lockheed to do preliminary designs of a 2,000-ton SES which might one day evolve into a destroyer-SES.

Some experts are predicting a host of other SES developments, including amphibious landing craft, patrol vessels, commercial liners and freighters, even aircraft carriers in the 10,000 to 20,000 ton range. Some say SES craft of the future will be nuclear powered and go faster than 180 knots.

But, the rule is that as performance goes up, so does unit cost. A modern but conventional antisubmarine warfare vessel, can be built for about $23 million.

TODAY nobody knows how much a destroyer-SES might cost. At a July 14, 1972, meeting of the Senate Committee on Armed Services, testimony was elicited to the effect that the first prototype of a 2,000-ton SES would cost $150 million.

Experts say, however, that this includes development costs and that the more SES crafts that are built, the lower the unit cost will be.

"Jane's Surface Skimmers" assessment was "Expenditures on military skimmers will become one of the biggest items in the defense budgets of the seafaring nations within a decade."

Mazda's rotary engine licensed by NSU WANKEL

"As a matter of corporate responsibility to public health, we must produce and market in the United States the cleanest automobile we can."

Recently in Washington, we of Mazda announced that we will meet or better the stringent 1975 emission control standards. Testifying before the U.S. Senate Subcommittee on Air and Water Pollution, we also stated that we will not ask for a delay in meeting those original standards.

We strongly believe the rotary engine is the most practical long-term choice for producing a clean automobile. C. R. Brown of Mazda

"We at Mazda have decided not to apply to the Environmental Protection Agency for a suspension of the original 1975 emissions control standards with respect to our rotary engine automobiles...We voluntarily intend to meet or better the original 1975 emissions standards.

"As a matter of corporate responsiblilty to public health, we must produce and market in the United States the cleanest automobile we can.

"The commitment we are making today means that all Mazda automobiles distributed in 1975 will actually be cleaner than required by the original 1975 Federal standards. These vehicles will also meet the 1975 interim California standards of 2.0 grams per mile for NOx, which is more stringent than the Federal NOx standard of 3.1 grams per mile.

"We are, of course, continuing our all-out research and development efforts and plan to meet the 1976 Federal emission standards as well.

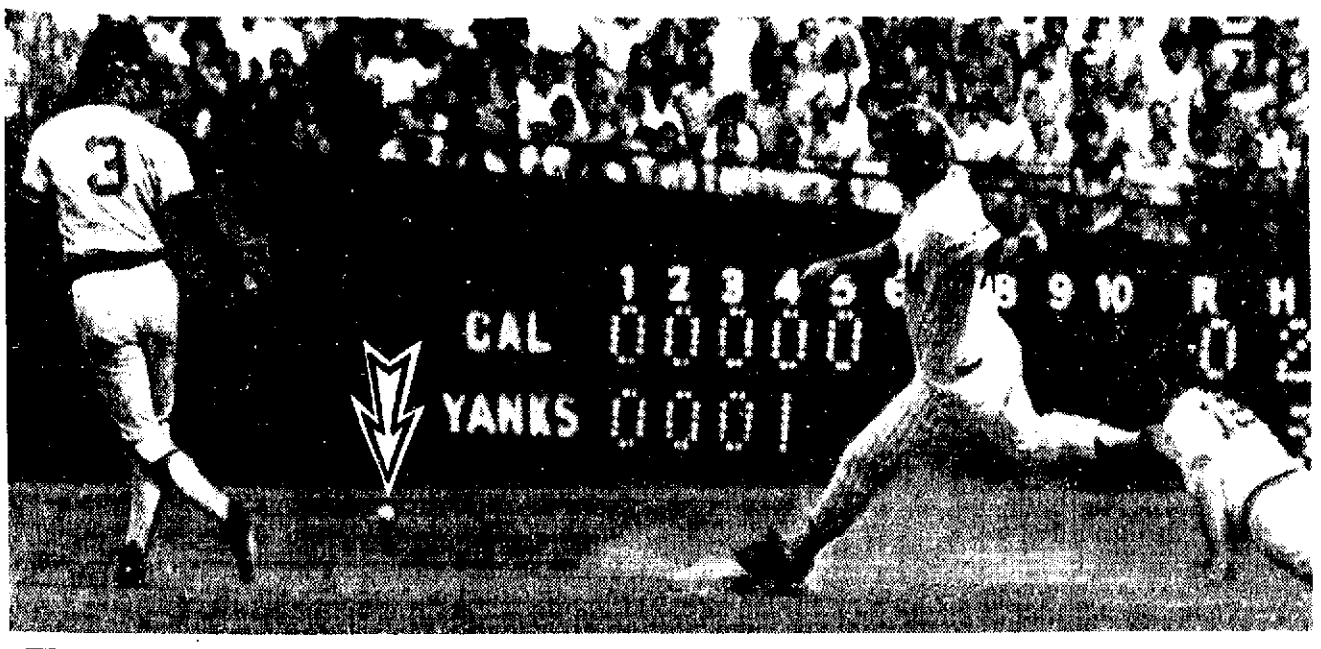

"We make this commitment in the face of the inherent difficulties in mass-producing automobiles that meet such stringent emissions control standards. Regardless of these difficulties, we intend to do our best to meet this challenge successfully.

"We believe that the potential of the rotary engine for incorporating advances in technology make it the most practical long-term choice for producing a clean automobile. The fundamental advantage of the rotary engine is its light weight and small size relative to the amount of power it produces. This gives the engine great flexibility in striking a balance among such factors as performance, fuel economy, emissions control, and automobile size and weight.

"The development of rotary engine technology is continuing and it is clear that substantial opportunities exist for even greater improvements in each of these areas."

Weak-hitting Halos get Ryan just 2 hits

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

NEW YORK — Fritz Peterson had a confession for the members of the media Saturday afternoon.

"That," he said with a large grin, "didn't feel like a two-hitter to me."

It didn't look like one, either.

But there it was on the scoreboard after nine innings. The Angels had only two hits and, as an unhappy result, they had a 2-0 loss to the New York Yankees to brood about.

Peterson, strangely, was removed after seven disjointed innings during which time he restricted the Angels to a pair of hits. But he also walked five, hit a batter and uncorked two wild pitches.

Sparky Lyle finished up, disposing of the six Angels he faced with ease and alacrity.

Nolan Ryan, the victim, also had a confession after picking up the tab for his third successive loss — one which evened his record at 6-6.

"That's the worst I've been in a long time," said the Express who, on this sunny afternoon, appeared more like a local commuter.

"He didn't have any zip on his fastball and he was missing with his curve," offered pitching coach Tom Morgan. "He also tried to overthrow on several occasions."

Before you pause to ask the question, "What's wrong with Nolan Ryan?" — don't.

The answer is relatively simple. Nothing is wrong with Nolan Ryan.

In his last three starts the Angels have treated Ryan to the less than princely sum of two runs. He hurled a seven-hitter and struck out 13 while losing 4-1 to Chicago May 24. He unfurled a five-hitter and fanned 10 in a 2-1 loss to Bill Lee and the Red Sox last Tuesday.

Saturday in Fun City he pitched a seven-hitter and struck out 6 but it was just another loss.

What does Ryan feel about the lack of support.

"It disgusts the (bleep) out of me," he responded. "But when I was with the Mets I didn't get any runs, either."

Peterson is now 15-4 career against the Angels and is at a loss to explain his success.

"I got off to a good start against them and I've just kept going," he said. "Otherwise, it baffles me, too."

Peterson actually went to New York manager Ralph Houk after the seventh and admitted that he was tiring and losing something off his fastball.

"I was glad to hear that," Houk smiled, "because chances were I would have taken him out anyway. A two-hitter doesn't mean hell to me. We're playing to win."

Further compounding the Angel agony was the fact they bombed out before the nation. The game was NBC's nationally-televised game of the week and it displayed the Angels at their weak-hitting worst.

Furthermore, it lent credence to Ryan's theory that the Angels are not a sunshine team.

"We're just a different

Young Riggs had great instructor

LARRY RIGGS—like Pop

By BILL GARDNER
Associated Press

When Bobby Riggs beat Margaret Court in the recent tennis match, one of the money winners was Larry Riggs, Bobby's 28-year-old son. He bet on his dad.

Larry had the feeling he'd seen it all before.

As Bobby Riggs' son and frequent doubles partner, Larry had played in his share of money matches.

He recalled one doubles match for $1,000 when he and his father were allowed only one racket and had to alternate hitting the ball. They won.

"Dad is the best money player there is," said the younger Riggs. "Most of the matches we play are the friendly type, which I win. But whenever we play for money, he wins every time."

Larry, who is a stockbroker and Pepperdine tennis coach, said some of his earliest memories are of his father's bets.

"I can remember when I was very little, dad took Jack Kramer's son and myself to a playground and bet Jack that I would jump from a tree limb before Jack's son," Larry said.

"Dad is the best money player there is. Our friendly matches, I win. But whenever we play for money, he wins every time."

"They put us both on the limb and I remember dad yelling 'jump, jump, jump.'

"I think I jumped first." Larry continued. "Big deal."

"I also remember that he once took my brother and me to a Pasadena hotel and bet the lifeguard that I would go off the high dive. I was only 3 or 4 years old. There was no way I was going off that board.

"But he took me right up to the top of the board and out to the end and said, 'There's no way you can get off you have to jump.'

"My mother was very upset. She was crying. I was crying. But I finally jumped.

"It had to be a pretty damn traumatic experience for me to still remember it," Larry added.

Now, thinking back over it, Larry thinks his father was right, despite the fact that most child psychologists would probably disagree.

About the episode on the limb, Larry said of his father: "He was just playing a little game. He thought I could do it even though I didn't. He was right. I did it."

"The new Bobby Riggs is no different than he's been his whole life," said young Riggs. "I think it's just fantastic.

"When dad was growing up he had five brothers that were all good athletes. They used to drag him along in everything they used to do. He's been very, very competitive all his life and now he doesn't like to do anything unless it's in a competitive situation."

Larry has changed, too he has given up the full-time wagering that he picked up from his hustling father.

"I didn't work before I was 23," young Riggs said. "I survived playing gin rummy, backgammon and tennis. Then I finally got married and decided to go straight."

Larry is generally amused by his father's hustling.

"I think dad's a lot like Cassius Clay," he said. "He likes to say things that will get public attention.

"I think you can be a bigtime hustler and be legitimate. Small-time hustlers trying to win nickles and dimes are not respectable in our society, but dad's a big-time hustler and that's all right."

"Everything to dad is a contest and a game, and there are always new players and games to be played," Larry added. "Dad doesn't consider 'hustle' a bad word. He just likes to bet on himself against other people."

Larry said his father recently sank 20 of 20 free throws to beat pro basketball player Dick Van Arsdale of the Phoenix Suns for money.

Can he beat his father at tennis? Larry's a good player. Five years ago he beat Ton Gorman now on the U.S. Davis Cup team. His chances against his father, Larry said, would depend on the circumstances.

"If he would come out here today, I would win," Larry said. "If, on the other hand, we were going to play a match in a couple of weeks in front of people and for money, he would definitely win."

Some people, incidentally, think Larry might have become a better player had he not been Riggs' son. When he beat Gorman, for instance, the newspaper headlines read, "Bobby Riggs' Son Beats Tom Gorman."

Lornie Kuhle, a Las Vegas tennis pro who grew up with Larry, recalls that Larry was often annoyed to be constantly referred to as Bobby Riggs' son.

"When we'd go to tournaments, everybody would be saying, 'There's Bobby Riggs' son'," Kuhle said.

Young Riggs agrees with his father that the Riggs-Court match and the one coming up with Chris Evert are good for tennis and even good for women's tennis.

"I didn't work before I was 23. I survived playing gin rummy, backgammon, tennis. Then I got married and decided to go straight."

"It was the greatest help to spectator tennis ever derived from a tennis match. I'm not saying it was the biggest tennis match ever, but it was the most interesting and exciting match than anytime in history.

"Yet he's better than what people saw of him," Larry commented. "You didn't see him play his best tennis. He didn't have to. Margaret Court just couldn't play against him."

Riggs suspects his father may have taken a big chance by agreeing to play Miss Evert in Florida this fall.

"I hate to say this," he said, "but the most difficult conditions for him to win under would be on a very hot day on a clay court against Chris Evert. She's the very toughest. She would stay back and rally and so will he.

"The first time he loses," he added, "to Court or (Billie Jean) King or Evert or any of those girls, then he's not going to be such a hot item. His first loss may be his last."

The reason for accepting the match then?

"The $50,000," he said quickly.

Expos snap Dodger streak

Bailey's bat erupts

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

Gene Mauch, the manager of the Montreal Expos, may rival Walter Alston for patience.

"I won't give up on Bob Bailey," he said two years ago when the former Long Beach star's name was being tossed around in trade sessions.

"Other clubs, the Pirates and Dodgers, gave up on him and he had enough poor seasons for them. But I won't. He has talent and, (bleep), I'm waiting for it to come out," he said again the other night at Dodger Stadium.

Bailey, signed for a six-figure bonus by the Pirates in 1961 after a brilliant career at Wilson High, was dealt to the Dodgers in 1966 in the celebrated Maury Wills trade. He batted .227 two years in a row for the O'Malleys and finally was sold to Montreal after the 1968 season.

He's been up and down with the Expos, in and out of Mauch's lineups, but now appears set as the third baseman for Team Canada.

Saturday night he smashed a home run, his sixth of the season, and also singled twice in the Expos' 6-3 victory which snapped the Dodgers' seven-game winning streak before 25,908 fans at the Big O.

He jumped his average to .286 and might have had more had he not been thumbed out of the game in the sixth inning after a run-in with second base umpire Frank Pulli.

The loss dropped the Dodgers 1½ games behind San Francisco in the National League's Western Division and it also evened Andy Messersmith's won-loss record again, at 5-5.

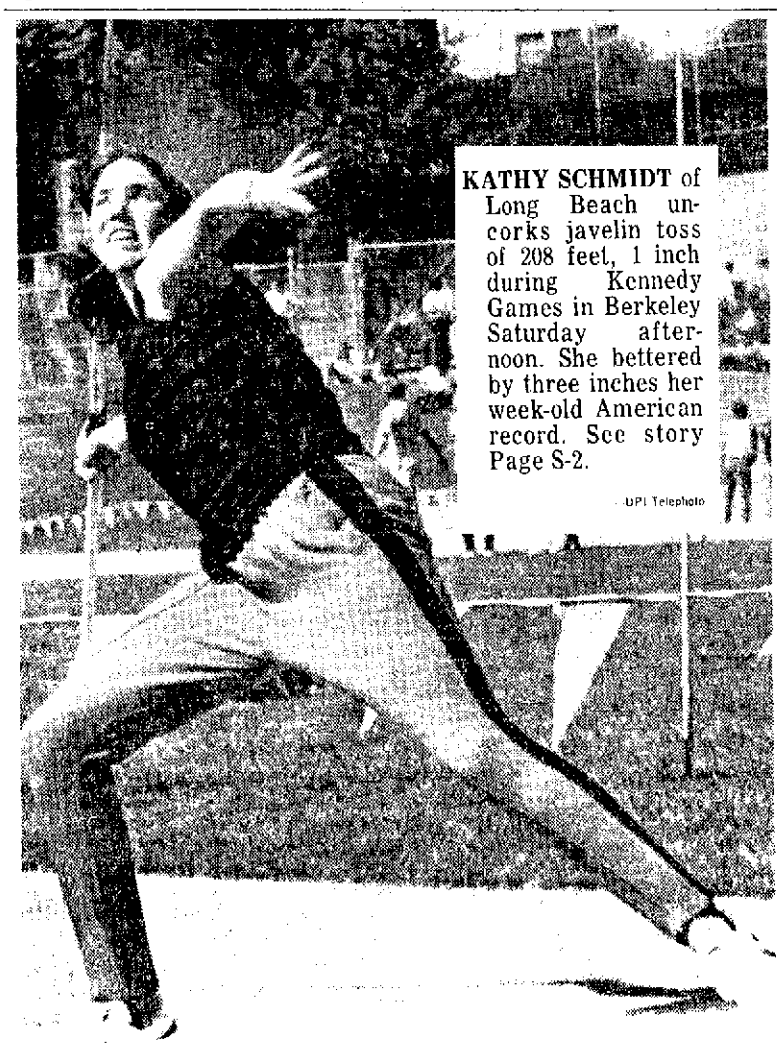

Messersmith, who whiffed 12 Philadelphia batters in his previous start, was nowhere near as effective, walking six Expos while giving up eight hits and six runs (five earned) in 6⅓ innings as well as two more home runs.

Steve Renko, after a shaky start, limited the Dodgers to just three hits after the first inning. He retired 14 batters in a row before walking Joe Ferguson to lead off the ninth. Mike Marshall, the Expos' relief ace, was immediately summoned and he nailed the final three Dodgers with little effort.

The Dodgers, who hadn't committed more than a single error in their previous seven games, took care of that quickly when rookie second baseman Dave Lopes went through a nightmarish first inning.

Lopes committed three errors in the first inning, two of them on a single play.

Still, Montreal managed just one run and the Dodgers came back

Indy aftermath: changes made

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) —The U.S. Auto Club board of directors, reacting to criticism of this year's tragedy-marred Indianapolis "500," Saturday night revised big car rules for all championship circuit races.

The directors reduced the amount of fuel allowed on board championship cars from 75 to 40 gallons and clipped the "wings" or aerodynamic foils on the rear of the big cars, cutting the maximum wing width from 64 to 55 inches.

The Saturday night rules changes came as a surprise. The USAC board of directors held the meeting after announcing earlier they would act at some later date on recommendations made during an afternoon meeting involving the USAC competition committee and other key figures.

The action followed two deaths and severe burn injuries to two drivers during May at the speedway.

The wing-size reduction should reduce speeds somewhat. The wing reduction was an exploratory first step and may be followed by other changes in wing rules after USAC has had time for additional testing.

Another rule change requires the pit man designated as the signal or board man, stationed at the pit wall, to remain in that position throughout the race.

USAC approved a rule requiring that all the fuel on board be carried on the left side of the car except for a pickup tank with a maximum capacity of 2.5

How do you stand on Mayor's Lib?

WANT SOME comedy relief from all the government cover-ups and relentless press probings into the Watergate scandal? All you have to do is go 26 miles across the sea.

Over there, the most sensational political issue editor Don Haney could come up with in this week's issue of The Catalina Islander was Mayor Ray Rydell's shorts.

Yep. The whole "shocking" story was carried Thursday in the island's weekly chronicle.

The text was an haranguing 300-word letter authored by Eric J. Moore, a mainlander living in Long Beach, who angrily took the island's No. 1 government official to task for his abbreviated attire at the recent christening of Long Beach-Catalina Cruises' new passenger ship, the Long Beach King.

Dr. Rydell was wearing shorts —of all things!—which is what he wears most of the time. For this occasion, shorts and coordinated jacket were navy blue "to fit the nautical occasion."

FUNNY THING. It apparently was my column of last Sunday which triggered this controversy in the top echeleon of Catalina's city government.

At least, Mr. Moore quotes what I said. What I said—in one paragraph — was that Long Beach's Mayor Ed Wade and Catalina's Mayor Rydell were quite a contrast at the christening ceremonies — Mayor Wade in his dark business suit and traditional grey felt hat, Mayor Rydell in his equally traditional (for him) shorts and tennies.

That infuriated Mr. Moore, who pointed out he's a former Avalon councilman and owns property over there. I guess he figures Ray Rydell's shorts may lower his property values.

I don't have space to quote Mr. Moore's entire letter (it would take most of n y colun n) but, in short, he said:

"Mr. Mayor, I find it hard to defend your public appearance in Long Beach . . . I refer only to your attire...you were among well-groomed people...do you really believe, Mr. Mayor, that was the proper attire for such an occasion?'

"I respectfully suggest, Mr. Mayor, that you give this matter your careful consideration...not only in regards to your public appearances but also, and especially, to your attire at Avalon council meetings."

Note: Mayor Rydell also wears short pants to council meetings.

SO THE QUESTION is, Mr. Moore, what are you suggesting? A dress code for mayors? I certainly hope not!

Personally, I find individuality refreshing. I believe people should wear what's right for them—the clothes that establish their image, reflect their life style.

Now, I'n certainly not suggesting Long Beach's Mayor Wade should charge into council chambers next Tuesday morning wearing shorts and bobby socks. Heaven forbid.

That would be as out of character for him as it would be for Mayor Rydell to meet incoming ships at boat-speckled Avalon Bay wearing a grey felt hat and carrying a briefcase.

Besides. Not everybody can—or should—wear everything. Imagine Mama Cass in a bikini. Or Chicago's Mayor Charles Daley in cutoffs. Or Raquel Welch in a barrel.

But I dig the idea of Mayor Rydell wearing shorts. With his trim physique and deep suntan, his short-cut haberdashery, which he buys at the island's Buoys and Gulls, looks right. You get the idea he jogs up and down the hills on his way to council meetings.

I think of his attire as part of the atmosphere—like the casino, winding trails, the glass-bottom boat, the seal colony, flying fish and the electric cars.

THE LAST TIME I was over there and was met at the seaplane port at Pebbly Beach by the liberated mayor in shorts, it reminded me of when, a couple years ago, I landed in Bermuda with a group of newspaper fashion editors.

As you would expect, most of the officials who met us were wearing their island trademark—Bermuda Shorts.

Maybe islanders over in Catalina could capitalize on their mayor's short pants and come up with some great-looking male attire called Catalinas.

Whatever, if the mayor wearing shorts is the most important issue bugging the populace in that sun-swept playground 26 miles across the sea, then—like the song says—who could ask for anything more?

Besides all that sunshine and picturesque scenery, they have a government official who isn't trying to cover-up.

Counselor paves pupil's way to career

By RALPH HINMAN Jr.
Education Editor

Seven years ago there was but one career counselor "riding circuit" between all Long Beach high schools and assisting students with job placements.

Then came a new national emphasis on what today is called "career preparation,' an un brella phrase for an approach to schooling that may, in the words of a high federal education officer:

"...reform and refocus education so that what is taught in the classroom has a clear, demonstrable bearing on the student's future plans" — whether these be to immediately find work, go on to college or other advanced training, to "stop out" a year before returning to a classroon .

"In any case," commented U.S. Deputy Education Comn issioner Willian F. Pierce, "this will enable the student to go forward secure in the knowledge that he or she is prepared to deal with the world on its own terms."

To begin to achieve such broad gauge goals, a new style counselor is needed — and in larger numbers. So while Long Beach employed only one "placement" person seven years ago, now there is at least one fulltime specialist in this field at every high school, plus additional counselors at Poly to help with that downtown school's specialized needs.

No one could or would claim these are enough people, that the program has reached maximum levels. But what has been done here does represent real progress into an area which, until very recently, was little known and even more poorly understood.

"There is a crying need for such counseling today," career preparation coordinator Jack Bosna told the Board of Education during a recent review of the Long Beach program. Counseling actually is not his prime responsibility, which is to organize and direct career programs at all school levels.

"The career counselor is involved with many people," said Don Menke, head of this special function for the local district. "In fact, I think it could be said that never before have school people had so n uch contact with the community... that huge 'classroom' outside the regular school boundaries."

Describing present and upcoming exploratory work experience projects was Millikan counselor Glenn A. Erickson. His school already has a small but growing group of volunteer teens who perhaps learn whether a medical career is for them, while helping out at Memorial Hospital. A comparable course for potential retailers is underway at Buffums'.

Erickson noted that a pilot program for Wilson students seeking to explore various professional worlds is scheduled to begin this autumn.

"Three significant areas" were brought into focus by Poly's Carl A. Cohn:

"First is the development of positive attitudes toward himself and others, especially for those we call 'disadvantaged students," he said. "Secondly, we try to make students aware of the importance of acquiring sound decision-making skills regarding alternative and changing careers."

Cohn said, "There is a myth which career counseling must rid itself of — and that is a belief that a young person must decide at age 15 what he wants to do for the next 50 years of his life. For when we exan ine our own lives, we find we have done several different things before finally deciding on the career we now are in.

"Finally, something should be said about the changing role of women with regard to careers. We must encourage freedom of choice and broad career options for the young women in our schools."

Illustrating the point, Cohn introduced to board members Poly's first student to be awarded a full scholarship to General Motors (executive training) Institute — Miss Maureen Lynch.

Although job placement remains a bread-and-butter item, reported Lakewood's Roy Sulack, the career counselor n ust deal with many other areas — including testing, maintaining "libraries" of information on career or job choices and "just plain talking." Presently, "we are talking to 75 to 100 students daily" about career preparation.

Smiles of triumph at games

Jim Aldershof didn't exactly equal Mark Spitz' record of seven Olympic Gold Medals, but when the 19-year-old trackster took three first places Saturday during the Long Beach Special Olympics, no one could doubt Aldershof's status as a first-class athlete.

But Aldershof, who won his ribbons in two running events and the softball throw, was not alone.

And though the 263 youngsters who participated in Saturday's games at Millikan High School may never make Spitz-style sports headlines, they say that doesn't really matter, because their interest in athletics is purely "for the fun of it all."

HOWEVER, the adults and student volunteers — more than 100 of them — who coordinated the games, took a more serious view.

"This type of competition provides opportunities for these mentally retarded youngsters to accon plish real goals," said one volunteer, who was busily overseeing a handful of athletes.

Harriet Dorrans, a teacher at Florence Nitingale School, said she felt the value of the Special Olyn pics was mainly in giving "youngsters who have never won anything in their lives a chance to win something."

And win they did.

It was even difficult at times to tell the first place winners from those sporting third place ribbons — all wore broad smiles and candid expressions of satisfaction.

THE PROGRAM, which was conducted in association with the American Red Cross, 20-30 Club, Long Beach Unified School District and the city's recreation department, was "designed to provide both physical fitness and an area for self-pride and recognition for mentally retarded youngsters through sports," said one spokesman.

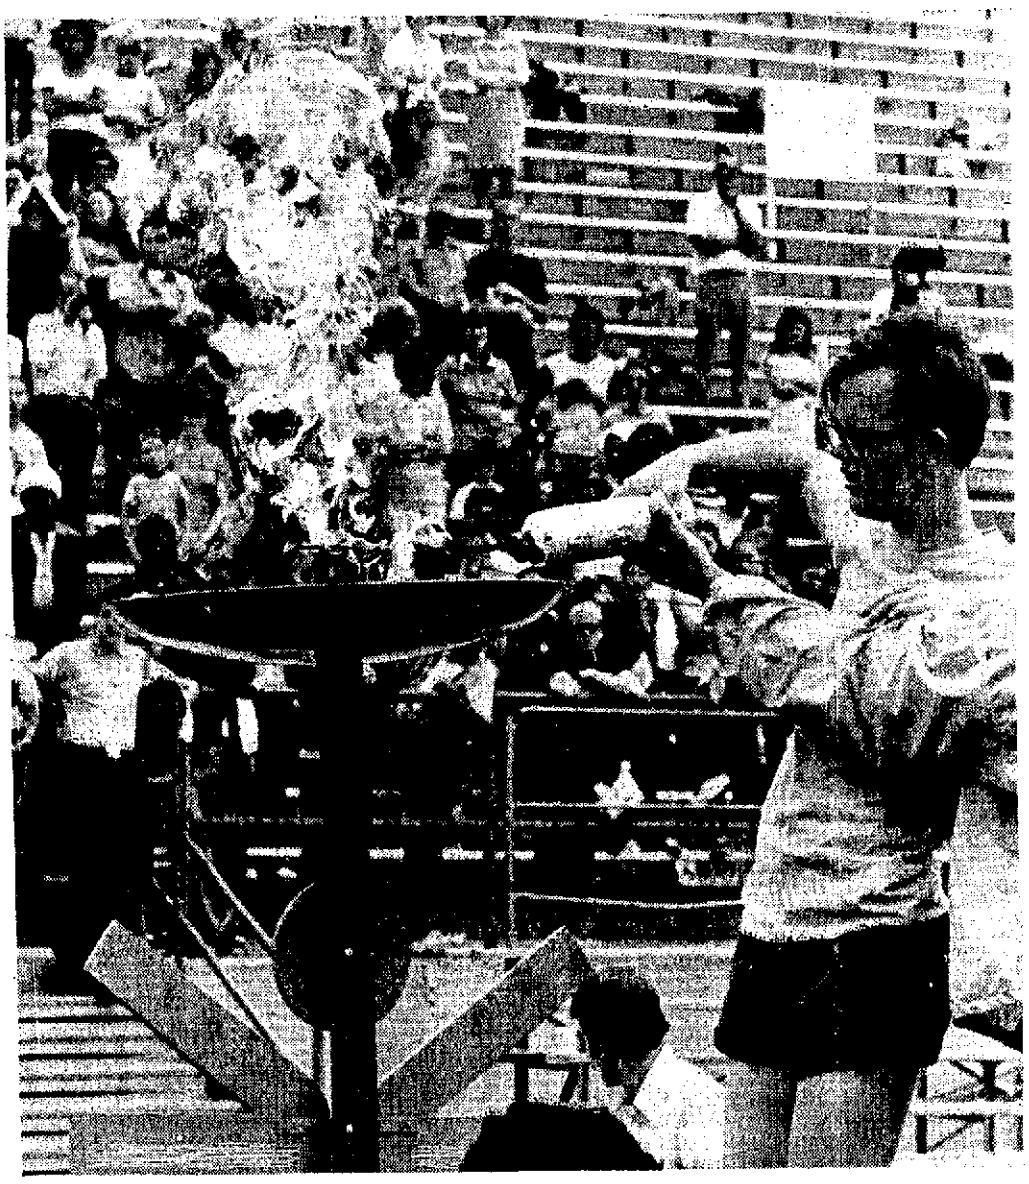

And the games, which began at 9 a.n'. and ran throughout the day, were closely patterned after traditional Olympic style.

Strutting proudly, the athletes — led by Snow White and Mickey Mouse, who were on loan from Disneyland — paraded around the oval track prior to the lighting of the symbolic Olympic Tourch.

But with the hoopla over, the kids — ranging in age from 8 to 19 and over — got down to the business at hand; swimming competition, track and field events, a gymnastics exhibition and a basketball game.

"I'n kind of tired and all," said 16-year-old Leonard Smith after taking first place in the 50-yard dash.

Beads of sweat crossing the smile on his face, he added, "I practiced for a long time at home; I practiced very hard at running, and I won."

Teens-only bus service to beach set

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

The young man who established the highly successful Pink Bus Line to provide transportation to the beach for Orange County teenagers has joined Long Beach Public Transportation Co. to inaugurate a similar service this summer.

The new "beach bus express," supervised by 20-year-old Mike Kadletz, will begin daily runs on June 15 on two routes, one starting in North Long Beach and one in Lakewood, and both carrying teenagers only to Alamitos Bay peninsula.

There will be no ban on surfboards or wet bathing suits aboard these beach specials, and the buses will be equipped with eight-track stereos.

"This service was set up for the kids of the area, and we hope that they will enjoy it," Kadletz said.

The young transit entrepreneur said the city bus line would try to provide "as much fun and freedom as possible" on the beach express, subject only to the requirements of a safe operation.

Each of the two routes will make only five or six stops en route to the beach to maintain the "express" characteristic, and the stops will primarily be at schools along the way. The fare will be 25 cents each way.

Route A will begin at Hamilton Junior High and will make stops at Jordan High, Lindbergh Junior High, Orange Avenue and Bixby Road, California Avenue and 15th Street, Orange Avenue and Seventh Street, and will deliver passengers to Ocean Boulevard and 54th Place and Ocean Boulevard and 72nd Place.

Route B will start at Lakewood High and will make pickup stops at Marshall Junior High, Millikan High, Stanford Junior High, Wilson High, and deliver passengers at Ocean Boulevard and 54th Place and Ocean and 72nd Place.

Trips to the beach will leave Hamilton and Lakewood at 8:30 a.m., 10 a.m. and noon daily, and return trips will leave Ocean and 72nd Place at 2:20 p.n .. 3:40 p.m. and 5 p.m. daily.

The service will be strictly a beach express, Kadletz explained — no intermediate stops other than those scheduled, no transfers and no tokens or school cards.

The "beach bus express" will run seven days a week through Sept. 14, but will not provide service on rainy days.

Kadletz got into the transit business after he and his brother, Paul, were graduated from Sonora High School in Brea in 1970.

"We were looking for a profitable business with a minimum capital outlay," he said.

After considering a number of ideas, the two brothers decided to try a bus service fron La Habra to Huntington Beach State Park, and they filed for a permit from the State Public Utilities Commission.

The PUC approval came through on June 10, 1970 — only four days before the service was to start, Kadletz said. They bought two buses fron the City of Gardena for $750 each. When they found it would cost $300 each to paint the buses, the Kadletz brothers went out and bought $25 worth of paint and did the work themselves.

The paint job — white top and pink body — gave the bus line its name.

The service was an instant success. At the first pickup on the first day, they loaded 225 kids — and turned away another 50, Kadletz said. In the first month, the made enough to buy a third bus for $2,500.

At the peak of its operation, the Pink Bus Line had eight buses.

The idyll came to an end when the Orange County Transit District began running a competitive service at a reduced fare, Kadletz said. At present, they are in negotiations to sell the line to the OCTD.

24 DIVERGENT VIEWS

What needs to be done? Something

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

Gov. Reagan's Council on Intergovernmental Relations summarized Saturday the results of a day-long hearing at Santa Ana on what local governments could and should do: something.

It also found that, with 24 persons testifying at its hearing, there were 24 divergent views.

Except that they all agreed on one thing: something should be done.

It included such dandies as: consolidation of local governments, pooling of services, dissolution of special districts, redefining of city boundaries, requiring school district boundaries to be contiguous to those of cities, creation of regional governments, and strengthening of city governments as "most responsible and responsive."

First shocker of the day was expounded by Robert E. Thomas, Orange County's administrative officer, who called for a complete overhaul of county governmental organization by giving it "the same general form" as the state government. He suggested an elective executive and an assembly, perhaps such as county supervisors now are. Rather than by districts, they should be elected by county wide popular vote, he insisted. He claimed this would be most responsive to public needs.

The county, he said, could impose a level of public services which cities cannot handle econon ically. He said such an administration could standardize governmental functions.

Basically, he insisted, the state should supply major services, such as policing. Local agencies could supply additional services with their own funds, he said.

A different view was expressed by Mayor Jack Dutton of Anaheim, who suggested "elimination or consolidation of special districts, and consolidation of some cities." He gave no specifics.

Dutton contended that "state legislation is mostly aimed at reducing rather than enhancing local government," and he insisted that "there's nothing really very wrong with local governn ents, if they are allowed to work."

To Mayor Donald J. Saltarelli of Tustin, a relative newcomer to to the political scene, the whole thing is amazing, since Orange county has 26 cities, more than three dozen school districts and about 300 special districts.

"The proliferation of governn ents and districts is incon prehensible," he declared. And, he added, that he has found that "jurisdictional boundaries are chaotic."

general government costs, and that property taxes be used only for providing direct services to the people who pay those taxes.

Alexander M. Mood, director of public policy research for UCI, suggested that governments might decentralize rather than consolidate.

He held that "the purpose of local government is service to citizens; an important component is responsiveness" "it may well be the n ost in portant."Mood also held that "responsiveness is more in portant than quality (of service given)."

Several officials complained that state policies and laws favor development, which is not always preferred.

So did Mrs. Elsie Kroeschc of Newport Beach, a member of the Santa Ana Region Water Quality Control Board who said she was speaking as a private private citizen in recommending that there be tax incentives for a land owner who would maintain open space for public enjoyment.

Several others suggested that the state's assessment policies—of taxing lands on "highest and best use," are driving land owners into development because it is econon ically costly for them to maintain their lands for farming, grazing or other low-income uses.

Elementary, general

General Robert E. Cushman, commandant of the Marine Corps, says he was "put upon" when he furnished disguises, false identification papers, a wig, a tape recorder, a secret camera and a speech alteration device to Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt.

At the time he handed out this paraphernalia to Hunt, General Cushman was deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency. He told newsmen the help for Hunt was requested by John Ehrlichman, the President's chief adviser on domestic affairs. Even so, the general said he wouldn't have complied if he had known the materials were to be used in a burglary.

General Cushman said he found out later that the paraphernalia was used in the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. General Cushman said he had been told the material was wanted for "a very sensitive interview."

"One puzzling aspect of this case is why he wanted that stuff," Cushman told newsmen. "You would think he would have requested lock picks.

Our uninformed guess is that General Cushman was not deceived once about why the paraphernalia was wanted but : about how it was used.

As the general clearly appreciates, it makes little sense to wear a wig and carry a tape recorder on a burglary mission. Nor does it make sense for a burglar to outfit himself with a speech alteration device. Ergo, Dr. Watson, it was not for a burglary that Mr. Hunt procured these items but for some "very sensitive interview," which is precisely what he told General Cushman he wanted them for.

What that interview was, we don't know. Mr. Hunt wasn't caught at it.

If we ever find out, we suspect it will not be as a result of inquiries made by General Cushman. For a former CIA man, the general has demonstrated an amazing lack of inquisitiveness. He is one cat who is apparently determined not to be killed by curiosity.

What is community of interest?

SACRAMENTO — Reapportionment has one of those good news-bad news jokes built into it. The good news is that everyone, absolutely everyone, involved in the painful process agrees that "community of interest" should be a major element in any plan to realign the state's congressional, Senate, and Assembly districts.

The bad news is that there is virtually no agreement on a definition for "community of interest."

Example: All the residents in the City of Long Beach have the fact of that residency in common, so it can be said that they have the same community of interest, i.e., the city's prosperity.

BUT AT THE same time, the residents of Park Estates and the Virginia Country Club area have a community of interest, an additional one, quite distinct from the community of interest shared by the residents in the mostly black, mostly poor, central area.

The businessmen in the harbor area have a community of interest quite different from the businessmen in the Bixby Knolls area, and so on.

Bob Schmidt

View From Our State Bureau

The Assembly reapportionment plan which appears to be nearing legislative approval takes Bellflower out of the 38th Assembly District and includes it in the 52nd District. Bellflower's assemblyman thus will represent that city, Downey, South Gate, and Lynwood, if the bill becomes law.

Do the residents of Bellflower have more of a community of interest with the residents of Downey, South Gate, and Lynwood than they do with the residents of Paramount and Compton, with whom they have occupied the 38th District for years?

And do the residents of Paramount and Compton have a community of interest similar to the community of interest which is important to the residents of Gardena and Lawndale, with whom they will share a district?

It would be better to put them with other blacks so they would be part of a bloc which could exercise some power.

LANTERMAN, AMONG the most respected of the state's legislators, prevailed, and in the present plan Pasadena is included entirely within his 47th District.

There is an argument for more than one definition of community of interest. That being the case, both sides of any reapportionment disagreement can argue that their plan involves "community of interest" as they see it, and the other plan does not.

The result is that the main objective of reapportionment, safeguarding incumbents' jobs wherever possible, is able to be obscured by arguments about community of interest. It is yet another argument for taking the job away from the Legislature.

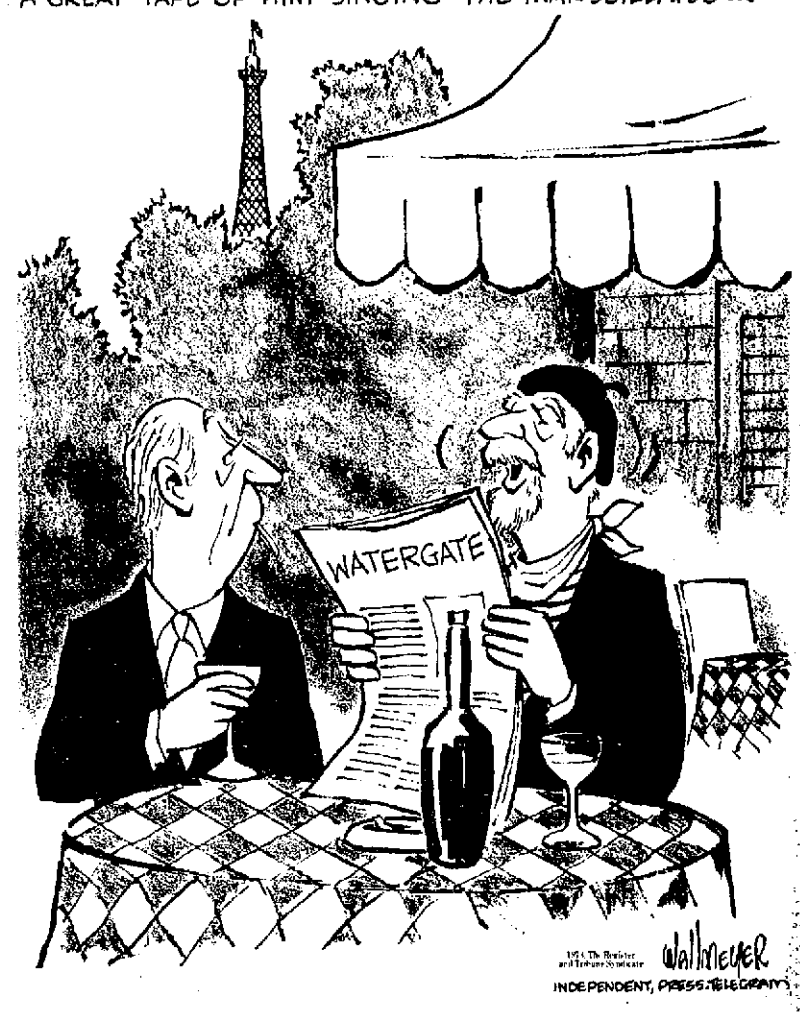

ONE OF THE clearest illustrations of the difference in interpretations given "community of interest" involves the city of Pasadena.

Two years ago, when the Assembly first attempted to reapportion itself, it proposed to divide the City of Pasadena. Now represented in its entirety by conservative Republican Frank Lanterman, the district would have lost a long, slender strip (Lanterman called it a shaft) to the 48th District in Los Angeles.

The strip would have protruded up from downtown Los Angeles, through the 54th Assembly District, and on into Pasadena, taking in most of the city's black community.

Lanterman argued that the residents' community of interest" involves the City as the City of Pasadena, would be violated. The Assembly drafters of the plan responded that in fact, the black, mostly Democratic voters of the city were being disenfranchised, for all intents and purposes, by the existing political boundaries.

Their representative did not need their vote to be re-elected, they said, and did not have to pay their needs any heed.

Bond to test his mail poll

Synopsis: I wide-mouthed last week against legislators' mailed questionnaires as an incredibly poor way to determine a legislator's absolute vote. My reference was to Long Beach Assemblyman Bill Bond's survey which drew responses amounting to only about 5 per cent of his district's registered voters. I invited Bond's rebuttal and here it is:

Bond thinks my case breaks down in one major area and is inconclusive in another.

"First, you indicated that respondents 'are mostly ax grinders of the surveyor's own party, zealots, cranks and hard-liners jumping at the chance for self-interest expression behind anonymity.' Having read this mind-boggling indictment I shudder to think of the reactions of the 4,755 people who responded (in addition to their husbands or wives and children) and I am reminded of an old saying: He who jumps to a conclusion had better wear a parachute.

"Frankly it was obvious some of the responses were from extremists and crackpots. On the other hand, from reading the written comments on the completed questionnaires and after studying the results I am satisfied the vast majority came from rational and concerned people who welcomed the opportunity to make their views known to their new assemblyman. Anonymity was not a significant factor because, surprisingly, about 70 per cent indicated their names and addresses.

Bob Houser

Second, you stated, 'if Bill Bond thinks he will ever get a representative response from mailed, random, impulse questionnaires, he must also believe in the tooth fairy.' My personal philosophy has been labeled by political opponents as ranging from ultraconservative to ultraliberal. Now with this statement about my faith in the tooth fairy you have added an entirely new dimension by revealing my long-kept secret that I never doubted the source of the dimes I found under my pillow when I was a youngster. "Furthermore, you claim credit for using 'the coined term "tertiocracy" to describe cynically the one-third or less participation of Long Beach voters in city and school board elections.' As food for thought you might pause to consider that cynicism has on occasion been described as intellectual dandyism.

"You pointed out that while over 9 per cent of the mailed questionnaires were returned, this could not be considered as a representative response. I think the case for representative response can be disputed. It is most unfortunate that frequently only one-third or less of our citizens vote in local elections. Part of the reason is that the other two-thirds have not formulated an opinion prior to the election. We cannot arbitrarily rule out the definite possibility that if the remaining two-thirds would take the time to develop an opinion the majority of them would go along with the one-third who actually do the voting. If this is a correct hypothesis, then the voluntary response to the survey could be very close to prevailing opinion."

Bond says he does not, however, treat my criticism lightly and, in the interest of the best possible representation, will "re-evaluate man surveys to make doubly certain they are a good means to obtain prevailing opinion. My objective is not to justify the surveys but rather to determine how much trust can reasonably be placed in them.

"Accordingly we have discussed the survey with Dr. Perri Stinson of the Quantitative Methods Department, School of Business Administration, Long Beach State University. This expert in the field of statistical research said the results of this survey are not unrepresentative of prevailing opinion simply because a structured sampling technique was not used.

"In conclusion, I believe the results of the survey area a great deal more valid than you have given them credit. In direct response to your observation that 'until it's scientific, it's grab bag,' I will immediately conduct a scientific sampling to validate the survey results. Both Dr. Stinson and JoAnn Case of Opinion Research of California, Inc., have agreed to help me develop the sampling methods.

"Regardless of the outcome, whether you are correct in your self-confessed 'cynical assumptions,' or I am right in placing my 'faith in these surveys,' the test results will be furnished to you and the chips will fall where they may. The public stands to benefit one way or the other, and that's what's important."

Bond quotes A. Robert Turgot in a closing thought: "'What I admire in Columbus is not his having discovered a world, but his having gone to search for it on the faith of an opinion."

I'll buy that, Bill. After all, I too sailed into this disputative, uncharted area on the basis of an opinion.

End pollution

EDITOR:

Look around you and look inside of you: We are all suffering from our own Watergates.

While Richard Nixon has presided over the deliberate assault on his political rivals, the American people have surrendered to the perpetual assault on the natural and urban environments. All this is done in the name of preserving the status quo of the 60 per cent.

It all fits pathetically into the neat pattern of a cover-up. How else can we explain the painful feeling of guilt that is surfacing in all of us? This administration hasn't betrayed us. It's a mirror of what we are and could continue to be.

We know we can't continue to dump our garbage into the air, the water and the earth. Why risk three more years of an administration that promises profit preservation over profit utilization to plan for a more compatible relationship with our environment?

Is it too soon to have some second thoughts about a man named McGovern, who turned out to be as human as Richard Nixon but infinitely more courageous in revealing his "cover-up"?

I am a Democrat just itching to overthrow "that Republican mob," you will charge. Sure, there is some natural truth busting through. But, God, would like to get rid of my "Watergate" and get on with the really important job of making things right again — wouldn't you?

EDITOR:

I'm a Boy Scout working on my Eagle project. I collected supplies and money to buy supplies for children in disaster areas. I cannot believe the response I got from so many people, even though many did not know me.

All I can say is that it is wonderful the way the people want to help those in need. I want to thank everyone who donated and helped, and I'm sure the children who receive the supplies will also be very grateful.

I'm happy to say I met my goal in collecting supplies and money to buy supplies for the chest the Red Cross will send to the children in disaster areas.

Logical outcome

EDITOR:

Watergate is the logical outcome of an administration headed by a singularly arrogant man.

Ramifications of the Watergate affair must be brought to light. The contribution of vast sums of money to the campaign fund of Richard Nixon by individuals not known for altruism leads to speculation as to their motives. Essentially, is this a government of the people or can the presidency be bought by the very rich who stand to gain the most?

U.S. ombudsman could prevent future Watergates

WASHINGTON, D.C.—With all the evidence of abuses of presidential power, the Watergate affair can be a blessing in disguise if the public, the press and the Congress learn from it lessons on the evils of arbitrary government secrecy.

Congress has the opportunity to pass legislation to reduce the possibility of future Watergates.

BUT IF THE Watergate hearings are viewed as just another television spectacular with nothing to do with success or failure of governmental programs, or with survival of our democracy itself, the episode will be only a dirty blot with no redeeming features.

The abuses of power by the Nixon administration unfolding before Senator Sam Ervin's Senate Select Committee are not unique. They have existed in Washington in varying degrees throughout the Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

The abuses merely have grown bigger as the government has grown bigger and as the press and public have become more susceptible to the superficial hocuspocus of big public relations.

President Nixon, his former White House chief of staff H. R. "Bob" Haldeman and his former Special assistant John D. Ehrlichman, didn't originate these concentrations of power.

POSSIBLY Haldeman and Ehrlichman, the stars in the technique of government by advance men, may have performed unintentionally a great service to the American people.

Because of their lack of governmental experience and because of their unrestrained hunger for an arrogant use of power, they didn't understand that open government and accountability to Congress are the only safeguards against the inevitable corruption that comes from great power.

The Watergate disclosures focus attention on the details of corruption that many of us were too busy to notice.

Most of the misuses of power being revealed have been present in Washington for years. Past examples have fallen only a little short of conditions in the Watergate affair.

Arbitrary secrecy policies have allowed governmtnal administrators to make dictatorial decisions that violate the civil rights of their employes.

Questionable applications of national security classifications have permitted the concealment of huge cost-overruns in multimillion-dollar defense contracts. The absurd extention of secrecy to protect welfare recipients has covered fraud in dozens of social programs.

SECRET DESTRUCTION, manipulation and falsification of records have been part of the everyday activity of governmental bureaucrats.

Every administration, Democratic or Republican, has assumed it had the right to obstruct justice through political control of the Justice Department.

In many too many cases, the press and Congress shrugged off these dishonest practices as "just normal politics."

This chronicle of past abuses isn't intended to minimize the crimes of Mr. Nixon, crimes of at least omission, even if we accept his explanation that he didn't know what Ehrlichman and Haldeman were doing.

SOME MECHANISM must be established to give the public the assurance that there is a way to restrain the unbridled power of the President, his White House staff and the executive branch even when the normal government checks and balances don't work.

The mechanism must have power when Congress, the judiciary and the press are either unwilling or unable to fight back and risk a few of their creature comforts.

There must be a power that is constant even when a citizenry is lulled into complacency by promises of great achievements on the domestic front and greater achievements on the international front or is led to believe its government is not telling the truth only because of "sensitive negotiations."

AN ANSWER TO this problem is an independent ombudsman. But the ombudsman must:

1. Have access to records and people in the executive branch, including access to the president.
2. Have statutory independence, such as the General Accounting Office (GAO).
3. Require periodic public reports made simultaneously to the President, the Senate and the House to assure that there can be no bottling up of facts or conclusions.

Passing of an ombudsman law to provide tenure, independence and access to records and the President, would do a long way toward preventing future Watergate affairs.

To get such a plan off the ground would require not only congressional approval of legislation but also would require the selection of an ombudsman of the stature of former Senator John J. Williams, the retired Delaware Republican who was considered the "conscience" of the Senate.

The ability of the GAO to attract controllers general such as Lindsay Warren, Joseph Campbell and the now presiding Elmer Staats demonstrates that such men of integrity and independence are available.

BERRY'S WORLD

"How's everything in the ecology game?"

Fair-and unfair-criticism of the press

I had hoped to get away from Watergate this week, but the readers won't let me escape. Beyond that, I am a sucker for a challenge.

On May 20 — in what I believed to be a sensible summation of the Watergate overflow — these observations were recorded in this pillar of opinion:

"Watergate, painful and distressing as it is, can be instrumental in purging American political life of an accumulation of sordid practices and shameful public morality. I disagree with those Americans who either dismiss Watergate as 'just politics' or are now thrown into a state of despair over the future of our country. The first connotes unwillingness to face reality; the second suggests that all is lost.

"My personal faith in this nation's ability to emerge from Watergate with sharper definitions of purpose, and a stern resolve that it must never happen again, is very strong indeed.

"We badly need a purge of putrefactive politics, and Watergate is the right medicine."

BRIEFLY STATED, I was attempting to point out that the nation had survived other scandals, and that the Republic will stand.

But alas, and in my naivete, I had overestimated the capacity of my adversaries to "come and reason together," as Lyndon Johnson was wont to say in his troubled moments.

The antipress wolfpack is again in full cry and nipping at the mastiff's heels.

ONE H. P. LAURITZEN of Naples, Florida, addresses his plaint to The Washington Post, The New York Times and the Knight Newspapers. "What are you trying to do to our country," says Mr. Lauritzen, "in tearing down the President at a time of delicate negotiation with other countries that affect the welfare of every human being? You are not only destroying his effectiveness but creating a worldwide disrespect for all Americans and our country?"

Mr. Lauritzen also bemoans "the tearing down of confidence and building nothing — least of all moral values." He charges: "You are the prime cause for a decline of nearly $200 billion in stock and bond values. When the depression really hits, be sure to congratulate yourselves — no one else will, especially the 20 million old people living on fixed incomes."

Egad, man, the non sequiturs are inflating faster than the economy. No, we are not trying to tear down the President, but merely seeking to keep him straight. As for moral values, what kind of an example has been given the country by the White House?

NOR CAN I imagine such capitalistic institutions as The New York Times, The Washington Post and Knight Newspapers engaging in a willful conspiracy to depress the stock market and bring on a depression. Some of us live on fixed incomes, too.

Mrs. Walter McGarry of Vero Beach, Fla., is a critic who first expresses respect, and then socks it to you. She agrees with Mr. Lauritzen that his letter "reflects the feelings of most intelligent people of our wide acquaintance." Mercy me, I would have given Vero Beach

John S. Knight

Editorial Chairman, Knight Newspapers

a higher I.Q. than that.

Mrs. McGarry opines that "Sure, the people want news and facts — but this thing is being belabored to death, and beyond the point of boredom. Most people feel that it is just another case of routine fun and games the politicians have played since time immemorial. They all spy on each other and always have — little boys playing cops and robbers."

So the people want news and facts, Mrs. McGarry? It appears instead that some people want all the news that agrees with their previously conceived notions of what the news should be.

Nice bland, laundered news that does nothing to reveal or inform? Nothing that would cast discredit upon a President unless, of course, he happened to be a Democrat? Is that it, Mrs. McGarry?

THE LADY FROM Vero Beach and numerous other critics always inquire why "powerful, inspired press didn't give equal effort to uncovering the unsavory facts on Chappaquiddick, the Bay of Pigs, Johnson's fair-haired boy, Bobby Baker, and Mayor Daley's uncounted Republican votes in Chicago."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's escapade at Chappaquiddick was fully reported at the time, excepting only such hearing testimony as was sealed by the court. Moreover, the case had no national significance.

The Bay of Pigs invasion — poorly conceived, badly organized and never fully implemented — was a fiasco for which President John F. Kennedy publicly assumed full responsibility. All known information was published.

The Bobby Baker case received wide coverage at the time. Baker was tried, convicted and served nearly 17 months in prison.

Vote stealing in Chicago and Cook County has been going on — to use Mrs. McGarry's words, "since time immemorial," but that doesn't make it right. Richard M. Nixon, who allegedly was counted out of the presidency by the Daley machine, chose not to ask for a recount as he did not wish to throw the country into a crisis of uncertainty.

Mrs. McGarry, with womanly guile, reassures me that her letter "was not written from an adverse standpoint." Oh, brother!

THE PRIMARY role of the press is to keep the public informed, to investigate wrongdoing in both the private and public sectors, and to offer objective, fair and reasoned editorial commentary.

We do not always meet that test. Some editors are smug and complacent, others are over-zealous in the pursuit of their gut reactions, a few are blind to reality, many bridle at deserved criticism.

My criticism of the Watergate coverage has nothing to do with investigative zeal or full disclosure of unsavory facts. I honor the reporters who have uncovered so much of what is wrong with an administration which is brutally arrogant, morally deficient and unwilling to communicate with and place its trust in the people. Never in my time has any administration been so isolated from the people who voted it into power.

Having said this, it seems to me that the young reporters and their editors who have performed such a tremendous public service in the Watergate investigation are now engaging in a questionable practice always previously scorned by ethical journalists.

My personal bete noire is the use in a news story of such phrases as "an official source," "sources close to the case," "one source said," "according to reliable sources," and similar nonattributions. If the source does not exist, or cannot be named, why not simply say, "it was learned"?

ANOTHER VALID criticism can be made of those editors and columnists who have already tried and convicted President Nixon. Example: Joseph Kraft, a respected writer, recently concluded his column thusly: "Nobody can imagine that the President is totally innocent. The question about Mr. Nixon now is: How guilty?"

The Sen. Ervin committee, a special prosecutor and ultimately the courts must decide as to the guilt or innocence of any person said to be involved in the Watergate affair. True, the press must report all developments. But it has no right or power to try and convict out of hand.

I urge, therefore, that the press exercise a greater measure of restraint while the due processes of law are being followed.

THE PEOPLE want the truth, but let the truth be ascertained by those duly appointed to seek and find the truth.

It seems to me that elements of the press, in their euphoria over deserved Pulitzer prizes and countless other awards, may be, as Clare Boothe Luce said to the American Society of Newspaper Editors, "drinking the blood of their victims" in an orgy of arrogance matched only by the White House itself.

L.A.C. Says By L.A. COLLINS SR.

Reagan tax refund reform petition

The petition to place on the ballot a tax reform and reduction program is now being circulated. It is for the purpose of having the registered voters of the state decide if taxpayers are to receive a refund on state taxes they paid which have resulted in a surplus of some $800 million in the state treasury. The Legislature refused to place the issues on the ballot or to vote the refund — so the governor is seeking to give the voters the opportunity of making the decision.

The proposition to be voted on would give taxpayers an estimated reduction in their next year income taxes of up to 20 per cent. It would eliminate personal income taxes for individuals with no more than $4,000 a year, or for a couple with $8,000 a year. These savings would come from the surplus now available.

IT WOULD ALSO set a limit on what the Legislature can impose on a taxpayer in the future. As the governor says, "It is a complicated formula but the economists have determined that Californians pay 8.75 per cent of their home in state taxes. This includes income tax, sales tax and other taxes." Under the proposed plan this percentage would be gradually reduced to 7.15 per cent of incomes over a 15-year period. That means a decrease of 18 per cent of incomes that would be collected in state taxes. This is the "tax reform" part of the program.

It would not mean taxes would not be increased over the years as incomes increase. But it would mean they would be a smaller percentage of incomes. As government costs increase due to inflation, incomes will increase, which will provide additional tax income to the state — but a smaller percentage of personal incomes than the present basis. Holding to the present or lower percentage would retard the Legislature in voting for many expensive programs that would call for higher taxes than the maximum allowed under the governor's proposal.

THE PLAN TO BE voted on if the petitions are successful would provide that a surplus be built up to provide for any emergencies that may occur. If a recession occurs and the state does not collect enough to do a good job the rates would be allowed to equal that of the present for that depression year. If some project voted by the Legislature was so costly it could not be paid for by the maximum tax allowed the project could be presented to the voters for approval as is now done for bond issues.

The petitions also would prohibit increasing of property taxes except to cover inflation and population growth — unless by vote of the people. Similar limits are now in effect. But this reform amendment would strengthen the protection to property owners.

It is a complicated formula, but it is the first time in this state that a governor has supported a measure to place in the constitution a provision that would curb the Legislature in imposing increased taxes at ever higher portions of incomes of the people. Many members of the Legislature are opposed to any restrictions on their authority to increase taxes by simply appropriating more money for new programs. They operate on the theory of "spend first and tax later."

The petitions are being circulated to place the amendment on the ballot later this year. It will need over 500,000 signatures of qualified voters to place it on the ballot. It will take a lot of volunteers to circulate the petitions. It is a program that deserves widespread support. It would give the people a greater control of how they are to be taxed. Some such curbs are greatly needed.

In wake of Watergate

WASHINGTON — The flood from the Watergate scandal has damaged the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

In the past the agency has been one of the shining lights of the Nixon administration and its former boss, William Ruckelshaus, the "Mr. Clean" of the federal government.

SOME OF Ruckelshaus' decisions were controversial, particularly his compromise on auto exhaust standards, which drew fire from conservationists and auto manufacturers alike.

But Ruckelshaus at least gave the impression of a man who was trying to make reasonable and fair decisions.

DOWN TO EARTH

Gilbert Bailey

In addition he was obviously a driving force behind the nation's efforts to clean up its air and water as an articulate and strong spokesman for that cleanup program.

Now, of course, Ruckelshaus in the wake of the Watergate scandal has a new cleanup job, the cleanup of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which is shot through with interoffice fights, bad morale and the hangover from direct political interference in its part in the Watergate investigation.

BUT WHAT about the EPA?

Robert Fri, an able and professional administrator, is now in charge, sort of.

He wants out of government and he is strictly a temporary administrator.

Fri held a press conference awhile back and he too is articulate but he obviously isn't a Ruckelshaus. He is a caretaker.

At least one program — an emergency smog plan for the Los Angeles Basin where emergency smog levels were reached last year — has disappeared someplace in the bureaucracy.

EPA is about ready to modify its controversial plan to ration gasoline in the Los Angeles Basin, but it has no real alternative to offer that might clean up those dirty skies.

Major new policies do not appear to be in the works.

And the White House, which is so busy trying to bail itself out of the Watergate, has made no move to name a permanent replacement to Ruckelshaus.

AS A RESULT, EPA is just drifting along and that drift will not improve the quality of air, water and life in these United States.

Bill Ruckelshaus had planned to stay on at the agency until President Nixon called for help with the FBI.

At present he has said he doesn't plan to go back to EPA when he leaves his temporary post as acting director of the FBI.

That's too bad. EPA needs Ruckelshaus or someone like him.

3 key projects in L.B. slated for coast unit hearing

Construction applications on three major Long Beach projects — the City Hall - Main Library, Pacific Terrance Center and a hotel-restaurant complex on the Pacific Terrace shoreline — are scheduled for consideration Monday by the regional coastal commission.

Public hearings, which were postponed at the conclusion of last Thursday's meeting, on those and several other projects will begin at 9 a.m. in the Long Beach Harbor Department's board room, 925 Harbor Plaza Drive.

The 12 member commission — formally known as the South Coast Regional Zone Conservation Commission — has jurisdiction over all new development within 1,000 yards of the shoreline in Los Angeles and Orange counties.

Under the powers granted it last fall by the passage of Proposition 20 — the Coastal Conservation Act — the commission must publicly hear arguments for and against applications before it can approve or deny a permit for construction.

At Monday's meeting, the City of Long Beach is scheduled to seek approval for the three projects, which include:

—Construction of a new City Hall and main library annex in the area bounded by Ocean Boulevard, Magnolia Avenue, Broadway and Pacific Avenue.

— Construction of an exhibit hall and remodeling of the existing Municipal Auditorium at Pacific Terrace Center.

—Construction of a hotel and restaurant complex for the Brock-INA development on 17 acres along the downtown shoreline.

Coin, stamp show Thursday

A flawed Lincoln penny worth $25,000 and a renowned 24-cent airmail stamp—on which an airplane accidentally was printed upside-down—will be among rare exhibits at the annual Stamp and Coin Exhibition, Thursday through Sunday at the Long Beach Auditorium.

The exhibition, which attracts coin and stamp dealers from around North America, this year also will feature experts from throughout the country in the fields of numismatics and philately.

According to Jim Ray, of the sponsoring Long Beach Coin Club, a panel of specialists will discuss the collection of coins at 2 p.m. Saturday, with Maurice M. Gould, numismatic author and syndicated columnist, serving as moderator.

Other scheduled speakers are Charles H. Wolfe, of Ohio, a specialist in ancient foreign coins; Robert Medlar, of Texas.

Chairman of the Long Beach show, Samuel Lopresto Jr., explained that the show will include a wide variety of exhibits from leading dealers of rare coins and stamps.

The exhibition will run from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, said Lopresto, and from 10 a.m-6 p.m. on Sunday.

AGENDA

Here are the agenda for Monday's meetings of the Long Beach Board of Education, to be held in the student cabinet room on City College's liberal arts campus:

Unified district Conference, 3:45 p.m.

1. Discussion of membership in Big 5 Association of Public School Districts.

Meeting, 4 p.m.

1. Regular order of business;
2. Resolution approving membership in Big 5 Association;
3. Exclusions, expulsions.

College district, 4:30 p.m.

1. Regular order of business.

Scouting for Pictures

Staff Photographer Curt Johnson roamed the 15th annual "Showcase of Scouting" at Long Beach State Saturday and found these scenes. The "monkey rope" above was about 10 feet off the ground. The youngster at lower right was a target in the spounge throwing contest. The event drew about 16,000 persons.

Winning poetry prizes routine work for her

By BOB SANDERS
Staff Writer

Mrs. Irving Jaffee of 13361 Eldorado Drive in Seal Beach's Leisure World won a poetry contest recently.

But that's an old story for Mrs. Jaffee, who writes under her maiden name of Mary F. Lindsley.

The contest she won was the competition for Theme Poem of the 1973 California Poetry Festival, sponsored in Sacramento by the California Federation of Chaparral Poets.

Mrs. Jaffee was a favorite in the contest, since she has written — and, more importantly, had published — 12 books of verse.

She also taught for more years than she will admit English Literature at Hunter College in the City of New York.

A graduate of Hunter she earned her Master of Arts degree at Columbia University and is the holder of two honorary Doctor of Philosophy degrees, one fron the Free University of Taiwan and the other from the Free University of Asia.

Having come to Southern California only a little over two years ago, she is proud to be secretary of the Long Beach chapter of the federation and vice president of the newly organized Lakewood chapter.

Her festival winner a four-sonnet poem, brought her a $50 cash prize in addition to the honor of having the poem published for the members.

The contest theme was the California Gold Rush Days and the sponsors even provided the title, "Ride With the Sun."

According to Mrs. Jaffee, the entries had to be narrative, 60 lines or less, on the pioneer element of the gold rush days with strong human interest and emotional appeal.

MRS. IRVING JAFFEE —Staff Photo

A few lines from her entry read:

"Soon whips cracked: canvas-covered shelters lurched
West ward; pans swayed and clattered: drivers shouted
Curses at wayward mules: splahsed mud besmirched
Hunched, eager figures, scowling faces. The routed
And scattered Indians rode in dark pursuit."

City approves condominiums

Permits for 131 condominium apartments in the 3700 block of Country Club Drive were issued Tuesday by the Long Beach Building Department to the Carlsberg Construction Co.

The development, which will cost an estimated $2.8 million, was designed by architect G. A. Smith.

Bergman still nicest of nice

CANNES — Ingrid Bergman is still the nicest of the nice ones. Standing behind three other people at the newsstand in the busy lobby of the Carlton Hotel, she was waiting to buy a pack of American cigarets. She wasn't hurrying, she wasn't pushy, the others didn't recognize her. When she'd bought the cigarets, I said hello. Miss Bergman invited me to her suite — she could hardly help it because by now I was in the elevator with her — to talk for a few minutes before she went off to the Film Festival where she was "Madame president" — chairman of the judges.

"I don't know what it means to be the president — I guess it's just that I sit in the middle," she said with a light laugh.

There was no doubt about it: 24 years after the great scandal with Roberto Rossellini, she was the biggest, most popular celebrity at the festival. Everybody gravitated to her at the parties. She was courteous, it seemed to me, to everyone, and attentive to their requests.

INGRID BERGMAN
Most popular

AND THE demands were great. "It's so late when we finish seeing the pictures," she said. "Then they have a party or supper.

"And last night the birthday cake came at 3 a.m.! Then there's all the TV, and in between, the radio. Today I did Belgium, Romania, England and then Merv Griffin. Ingmar Bergman doesn't like all the big parties. He won't travel. He won't go to most of those things."

"But you do?" I said.

"I learned to live with it," she nodded.

There was a Swedish party for Ingmar Bergman and they were the center of attention. As they stood talking, Bergman and Bergman, Ingrid put down a piece of reindeer meat she'd been nibbling, and smiled for the photographers. What had they talked about? "Just how we met once several years ago," she said. He and his wife moved on through the pushing crowd.

MISS BERGMAN was in a philosophical mood. Everything seems to have happened twice as long ago as you thought it did, she said.

"We were talking about when Tony Perkins and I did 'Goodbye, Again' with Litvak. We guessed it was six years ago. It was more like 12!"

I reminded her that I had once gone to interview her in Fiuggi, Italy, when her son was a baby.

"Too bad you didn't see Robertino now. He's 23 and this big!" She held her hand above her head. "He was my escort here. No, he's not an actor. He studies architecture."

Lately she's been much in the company of film executive John Van Eyssen but she's skittish on that subject.

ONCE SHE TOLD me her feeling about suffering and I asked if it still held. She had said she didn't regret the pain she'd suffered in the breakup of her marriage to Dr. Peter Lindstrom.

"Yes," she said now, "if you don't go through difficulties in your life, then you can never appreciate happiness. And you can never understand other people's unhappiness if you don't have some of your own."

"And are you happy now?" I asked, hoping for an admission.

"Well," she laughed, "we won't go into that!"

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: A hypochondriac exclaimed to a friend, "I had the most wonderful dizzy spell today!"

WISH I'D SAID THAT: You can usually pick out the host at a party. He's the one who keeps reminding guests to make only local phone calls.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "The secret of infant care lies in keeping one end full and the other end dry."

EARL'S PEARLS: Mack McGinnis says he saw a little old lady walking wearily out of a beauty parlor, sighing, "It's too much work, this growing old gracefully."

Carl Stokes, former mayor of Celveland and now an NBC newsman, was asked if he'd like to be mayor of NYC. He shook his head: "As a TV newsman I have one hour of public life a day and 23 hours of privacy. As mayor I'd have 23 hours of public life and one hour of privacy." That's earl, brother.

"Filmflam" banned

KUCHING, Malaysia (AP) — Movie theaters displaying "Adults Only" signs may get into trouble for not showing sexy enough films. The City Council president said stern action would be taken if it was found the signs had been used only as drawing cards to mislead the public.

In Light Opera Roles

Glenn Bradley, as Lutz, and Cammy Wesson, as Gretchen, appear in the Civic Light Opera production of "The Student Prince" today and Friday, Saturday and Sunday for the next two weeks. Tickets to the musical in the Jordan Theater, 6500 Atlantic Ave., are available at Mutual and Liberty agencies and the CLO boxoffice, 518 E. Fourth St.

Generation gap bridged by trumpeter Ferguson

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Maynard Ferguson, whose role as a high-note trumpet specialist with Stan Kenton threatened to make him a musical museum piece 20 years ago, has discovered how to beat the generation gap—join the "now" generation.

Few save Woody Herman, County Basie, Duke Ellington and Kenton have learned Maynard's formula for surviving with a 15-piece band in the age of git-fiddles and Moog Synthesizers.

The Ferguson recipe is to know yourself, do your thing, change with the times and be happy about it.

Maynard has been leading one of the nation's hottest new big bands on a concert tour from the East to the West Coast, throwing in high school benefit performances and campus jazz clinics along the way.

The group, which he calls an "international jazz-rock orchestra," comprises young men half Maynard's 44 years.

STANFORD'S OLD HOUSE NEAR RUIN

MICHIGAN BLUFF (AP) —The house in which Leland Stanford lived when he was an obscure storekeeper is falling to ruin in this Placer County hamlet.

Efforts to save the sagging frame building have failed, according to C. C. Roumage, a member of the Placer County Parks and Historic Restoration Commission.

Stanford, an early California railroad baron, governor and U.S. senator, operated a store here in 1853. He died in 1893.

The house was properly maintained until 1966. Neighbors said the owner, Mrs. Winifred Codman of Fair Oaks, plans some restoration.

River widening slated to curb flood threat

The lower Santa Ana River, which approached flood crest during the heavy rains of the 1968-69 year, will be widened in the vicinity of Hamilton Street.

That winter's storms, which cost five lives in Orange County and did millions of dollars in damage, posed a major threat to the safety of thousands of residents in Huntington Beach whose homes are in flatlands west of the river levee in Hamilton Avenue area.

Emergency crews sandbagged the river levees to contain the runoff flow; it was an around-the-clock effort to contain the rushing torrents of rainfall runoff channeled into the river.

H. George Osborne, chief engineer of the county's flood control program, said that the district owns some "odd shaped" parcels in the vicinity of Hamilton Street on west side of the levee, and that Abco Equity Funds, Inc., which owns much of the remaining land, offered to buy the county holdings. the company planned a housing development.

Osborne said the district would not sell because of the widening of the river in this area. The project may be from a point north of Hamilton Street to the ocean.

It was disclosed that the Army Corps of Engineers will design the project, and Osborne said he was "unhappy" with the progress of the design work. He claimed the Army's "indecision" was slowing down the project which he held to be "vitally needed" against the next major rain.

As development continues in Orange County, especially in the Santa Ana Canyon, and in the counties of Riverside and San Bernardino, which are part of the Santa Ana River watershed, the threat of flooding in the lower reaches of the river are increased, Osborne said.

The river—widening project is expected to cost several millions of dollars.

It was learned that the Army engineers plan to produce preliminary designs in September and call a public meeting. More research and designing would then be done before a public hearing is called.

Storm-channel projects

The Orange County Flood Control District is planning $1.4 million worth of work on the Bolsa Grande storm channel, and Chief Engineer H. George Osborne said Saturday it will be designed by John Toups and his engineering staff.

The work will link the Bolsa Chica channel with the Westminster channel in Westminster and the construction will extend to Trask Avenue in Garden Grove.

He also disclosed negotiations between his district and the City of San Juan Capistrano for creation of a 1911 Assessment District Act project on Casitas Capistrano storm drain. He said there are plans to form a special district to finance the $230,000 project under the state's 1911 act which authorizes special taxing agencies for individual projects.

Osborne also said the flood control district will construct a retarding basin near El Toro to check the flow of Aliso Creek, and plans to incorporate the basin in plans for a recreational park at El Toro. He said the basin will cost about $685,000 to build.

LBSU feports stolen typewriter

Long Beach State University campus police said Saturday that burglars, who forced a locked door, took an IBM Selectric typewriter valued at $309 from one of the school's classrooms.

For new blood center

Red Cross drive tops $70,000

A Long Beach-area fund drive by the Red Cross, aimed at financing a new blood storage and donation center, has topped the $70,000 mark with assists and endorsements from a variety of community groups, a Red Cross spokesman has announced.

William H. White, chairman of the Long Beach Red Cross fund campaign, explained that while 20 community hospitals and organizations are supporting the drive, other contributors and fund drive aides still are being sought to help reach the project's goal of $225,000.

Object of the drive is to allow the Red Cross to build a new blood center and expanded headquarters facility at 3150 E. 29th St., said White.

He added that the Long Beach center would serve the chapter's entire area, including the cities of Artesia, Bellflower, Cerritos, Hawaiian Gardens, Lakewood and Paramount, as well as Catalina Island.

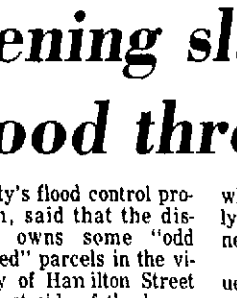

The funding campaign, supported by many area doctors and nurses, also has received the endorsement of the Long Beach Building and Trades Council and a wide range of civic and professional groups.

Hospitals providing assistance in the drive include Memorial Hospital Medical Center, Long Beach Community Hospital, St. Mary's Hospital and Pacific Hospital, said White. The Long Beach Medical Association and California Nurses Association also have lended support, as have AID-United Givers and Chapter 73 of the Long Beach Mended Hearts.

White said business and professional groups supporting the drive are: Long Beach Chamber of Commerce; Junior Chamber of Commerce; Long Beach Bar Association; Long Beach Firefighters, Local 372; Long Beach City Employes Association. Merchants groups and other civic organizations which have endorsed the drive include: The Assistance League of Long Beach and its Las Hermanas Auxiliary; Downtown Long Beach Associates, Long Beach Motor Car Dealers Association; the Naples Improvement Association and the Junior League of Long Beach, Inc.

"All of us in the community have a vested interest in seeing that Red Cross has larger facilities to carry out its mission in the community."

Groups or individuals desiring to participate in the drive have been asked by Red Cross campaign members to contact the Red Cross Director of Development at 319 W. Broadway, Long Beach, 90802.

YOU HAVE A RIGHT TO KNOW

• Did you know that in spite of having an estimated 20 million dollar surplus at the end of the school term, the Long Beach Unified School District administration is recommending further crippling cuts in your child's education? • Did you know that your child's educational program has steadily deteriorated even after you voted a tax increase in 1969? • Did you know that academic subjects such as English, Foreign Language, Social Studies have been seriously curtailed the past few years? • Are you aware that classes are so overcrowded that your child receives little or no individual attention? • Do you know that library services to your child have been cut back and further reductions are being proposed by the LBUSD district administration? • Are you aware that music and art programs have been seriously slashed? • Did you know that downtown administrative salaries are from 10% to 76.6% over the state average, the Superintendent gets 76.6% over the average, the 2 Associate Superintendents 27.9% over the average, 6 Directors 45.6% over the average, 6 Consultants 45% over the average, 4 Supervisors 36.7% over the average?

Is it any wonder that the Teachers Association of Long Beach and the California Teachers Association have imposed sanctions on the Long Beach school administration?

HARBOR DIVISION POLICE INSPECTION SCHEDULED

Deputy Chief Louis Sporrer, commander of the South Bureau of Los Angeles Police Department, will inspect the department's Harbor Division at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The inspection will cover not only the division's 400 sworn personnel, but physical facilities of the divisional headquarters at 2175 Wilmington-San Pedro Road in San Pedro. All shifts will report for the forenoon inspection.

Similar inspections are being conducted at other bureaus of the department, five of which were established in the decentralization of last January.

In the decentralization, which was ordered by Chief Edward M. Davis, Harbor Division became a base for double its former number of officers.

The division embraces the communities of San Pedro, Wilmington and Harbor City, and the Port of Los Angeles, with a population of 127,000. It is commanded by Capt. Holbert D. Burns.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: Purposeful change is your motto for the coming year. Competition this year inspires you to superior achievement. Today's natives are natural travelers who often select some technical subject for special study.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Use lively ideas promptly, even in haste, while you're in the rush of enthusiasm. Do no "favors" today.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Tho closer and more affectionate, associates can impede your work—find a middle course. There's a possibility of increasing earning power.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Intuition leads you thru a creative day. Humor sparkles. Be hospitable and make your friends comfortable.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Recent puzzles are resolved when more details are completed. Bargain hunting succeeds, for once.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Exert yourself to be seen and heard this extremely productive day. Ask for what you're sure is yours.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): More has been working in your favor than you have realized. Technical advice can be helpful, but do your own thinking.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Give others chance to function, altho you have to redo their errors later; everybody learns from the experiment. Home life has rewards.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Begin a new career activity. Forgive an awkward friend rather than lose him by criticism.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Open your week's adventure boldly, make new commitments. Technical or legal procedures go well. Use the evening for planning.

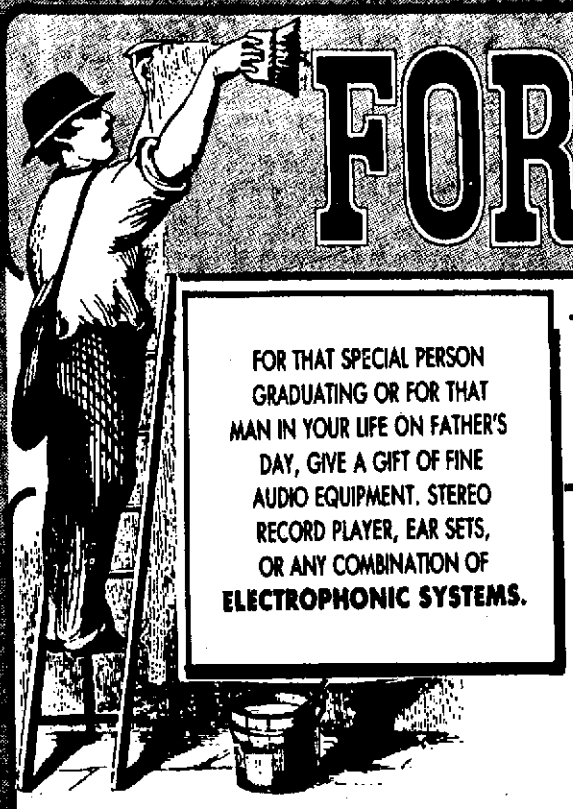

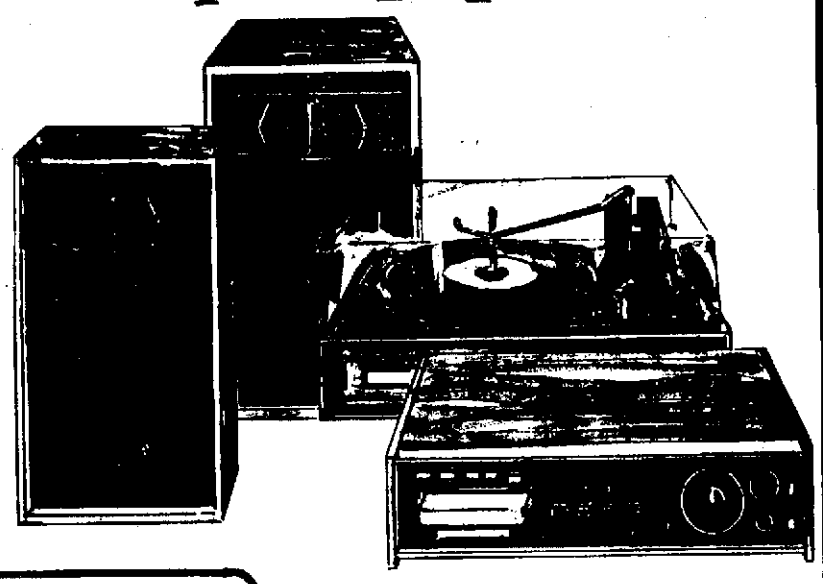

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Extend your welcome spirit to those you like. Sentimental ventures are facilitated by circumstances beyond public view.

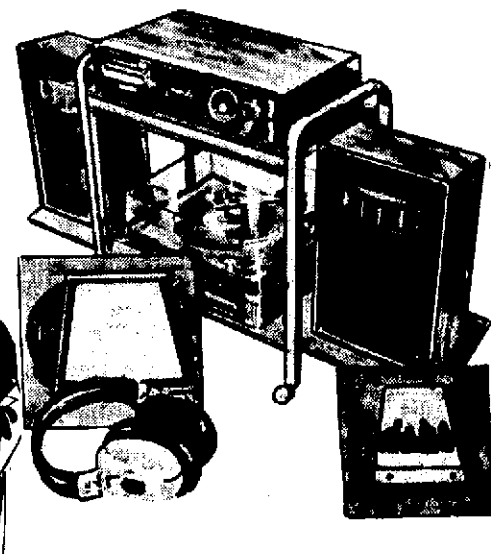

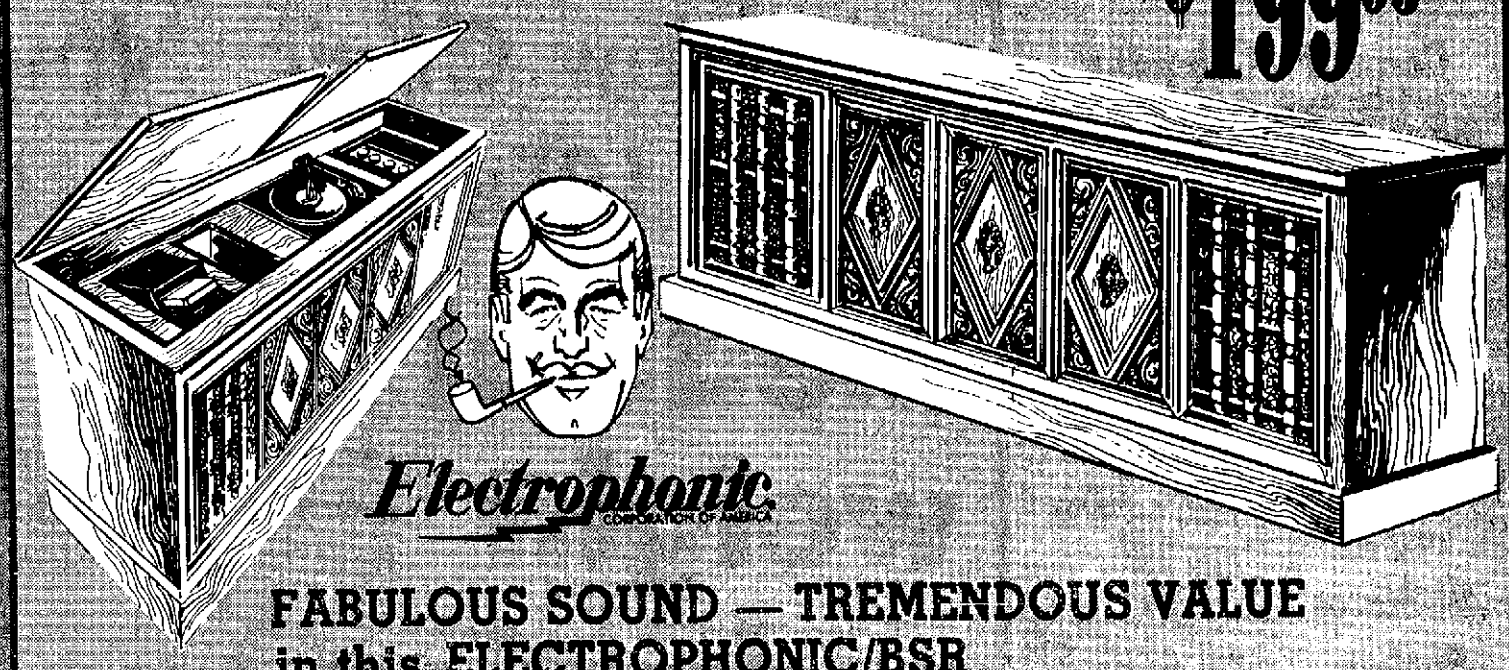

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be prepared to reach far and wide, travel to get what you need. Resistance develops late in the day.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Sharing means much more than letting others have part of your material prosperity. Encourage loved ones toward creativity.

Summary of Secret Witness cases, rewards

As part of the Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program, summaries of cases in which rewards of specified amounts are offered are printed in the Independent and Press-Telegram each Thursday and Sunday. Rewards paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in any other criminal cases, not covered in these summaries, will vary in amount depending on the seriousness of the offense. The summaries follow:

— Rewards totaling $4,000, including $2,000 guaranteed by the Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program and $2,000 offered by the Compton City Council, will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of 55-year-old Compton city employe Raymond Adams. Adams was shot to death by an unknown gunman as he was operating a city street sweeper at 4:45 a.m. Sunday at the northwest corner of Compton and Long Beach Boulevards. Officers answering a call of shots fired in the central Compton area found Adams slumped over the wheel of his sweeping machine, which was standing at the corner with the motor still running.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of 21-year-old Joyce King, of 5221 Cortland Ave., Lynwood, slain in the early morning hours of Jan. 1, 1972. Miss King left her home shortly after midnight to walk to a nearby drive-in restaurant. Her partially-clothed body, slashed by 40 to 50 knife wounds, was found approximately eight hours later in an alley behind the 11600 block of Louise Avenue in Lynwood.

— A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Julia Holan, 88, who died April 14 of injuries received when she was knocked down by a purse thief on Eighth Street near Pacific Avenue on the previous day. The killer thief was described as white, about 18 years old, about 5 feet, 8 inches tall, medium build, and with neatly trimmed brown hair.

A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the driver responsible for the hit-run manslaughter death March 23 of 6-year-old Gary Perkins, of 625 Magnolia Ave. Gary, son of Eugene and Barbara Perkins, was walking with two adult friends of his parents to a nearby delicatessen and had stepped out in front of them to cross the street at Seventh Street and Magnolia Avenue when a car speeding south on Magnolia ran the red light,and struck the boy, and kept going. Police found the car, a 1965 red Mustang, abandoned near the Queen Mary the next day. The owner said it had been stolen.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Deborah Ann Baker, 18, whose strangled body was found March 21 in a vacant field adjacent to Los Coyotes Country Club, near Beach Boulevard and Rosecrans Avenue in Fullerton. Fullerton police theorize the young woman's body was dumped in the field after she was killed in the early morning hours on that date in another location. Miss Baker was last seen alive by a girl friend with whom she was temporarily sharing an apartment at 1313 E. Wilshire Ave., Fullerton, at 1 p.m. on the previous day. At that time, she left the apartment and told her friend she was going on a job interview.

— Rewards totaling $4,000 — including $2,000 each from the Secret Witness programs of the Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram and the Santa Monica Evening Outlook — will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Kathleen Ann La Chance, aspiring Long Beach 24-year-old actress. Miss La Chance was last seen alive at 5 p.m. on Nov. 15, 1972, when she left an actors' workshop play rehearsal at the apartment of a friend in Los Angeles. Her nude body, arms bound by leather straps and mouth stuffed with sand, was found late that night near the pier on the Santa Monica beachfront. She had been raped and stabbed repeatedly.

— Rewards totaling $2,500 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murder of Mrs. Judith Cooper, 31, stabbed to death by a robber on the morning of last April 2, in a television rental shop at 8580 Washington Blvd. in Culver City, where she was employed as a secretary. Mrs. Cooper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.B. Older of Long Beach, was slain with more than 50 knife wounds by the bandit who took $1,500 from the store's safe.

— A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Fletcher Jordan Herndon, 58, of San Pedro, on the night of last Feb. 6. Herndon and his wife had just returned home from dining out and Mrs. Herndon was parking the car when an unknown assassin hiding outside the house at 985 Channel St. felled Herndon with two shotgun blasts in the chest as he walked up to the front door.

— A $2,025 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killers of pharmacist Patrick Horgan, 59, at the Horgan Pharmacy, 1403 Cherry Ave., on March 9. Horgan was shot in the back as he waited on three men who fled without taking any money after the shot was fired. The killers, black men in their early or middle 30s, drove away in a 1963 or 1964 maroon Chevrolet convertible.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Victor Joseph Zalneraitis, of Long Beach, whose body was found lying in the oil fields southwest of Cherry Avenue and Burnett Street in Signal Hill last March 30. Zalneraitis had been slain by multiple stab wounds in the chest and back, apparently inflicted with a pocket knife. The 6-foot, 180-pound victim was last seen alive in a pool parlow at 2499 E. Pacific Coast Highway in Signal Hill late on the night before the body was discovered by an industrial worker.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Mrs. Helga Dorothea Brown, 64, whose nude body was found in Scherer Park last Sept. 23. Mrs. Brown, last seen alive by her husband and friends on the morning of Sept. 17, had been beaten and strangled by someone who hid the body on an island in the duck pond part of the park. Her empty purse and part of her clothing were found near a picnic table in the park area.

— A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Freddie Tidmore, alias Fred Douglas Mabson, 20, sought in connection with the holdup shooting of John Bell, 33-year-old clerk at the Wooden Shoe Liquor store, 2053 Orange Ave., last Dec. 20. Bell, critically wounded, identified Tidmore as his assailant. Tidmore, who is black, 5 feet 10 inches tall, 155 pounds, is believed to be still in the Long Beach-Compton area.

— Secret Witness will pay $2,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of 11-year-old Teri Lynn Hollis, of 2036 Dalemeade St., Torrance, who was kidnapped from the front yard of her home last Thanksgiving Day. Her body, clad only in a white T-shirt, was found on a rocky and desolate stretch of beach 11 miles south of Oxnard on the following day. The little blonde girl had been raped and strangled. Teri was last seen alive by an informant who told Torrance police she was riding near her home on a bicycle pedaled by a young man about 21 years old, dark-haired, and about 5 feet, 6 inches tall.

— Rewards totaling $4,000 will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer of Mrs. Velma Harris, 44, shot to death in her Long Beach home at 5020 Centralia St. on Aug. 17, 1971. Her body was discovered by her husband, Ralph K. Harris, 47, when he came home from work at 11 a.m. Mr. Harris has posted a $2,000 reward in the case, and this amount is being matched by the Secret Witness service.

— A $1,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrests and convictions of the members of a Long Beach area auto theft gang who steal cars from throughout the Southland and then, at one of a number of auto repair shops, strip them for parts.

— A $2,000 reward is in force for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer of Mrs. Marguerite June Makeig, 50, shot in the head and killed when she returned to her home, 10608 Felson St., Bellflower, on the afternoon of Aug. 11, 1971. Mrs. Makeig had been shopping. When she walked into her living room, someone armed with a small-caliber handgun fired once, the bullet striking her in the head.

— A $2,000 reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the man who killed Elliot C. Lawson, 38, during a holdup at the Atlantic Inn, 1854 Atlantic Ave., at about 1:10 a.m. on July 16, 1971. The killer is described as a Negro, about 25 years old, 5-feet-7, 130 pounds with a two inch Afro hairdo. The man has a slender face, large eyes, a slender nose, and smooth, medium complexion. He has a deep voice, is straight in posture and is well-groomed.

— A $2,500 reward is in force for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer of Independent, Press-Telegram pressman Frank M. Schiavone, 41, and his wife, Shirley, 44, who were shot from ambush May 9, 1972, upon returning to their home in Westminster after an evening out. Westminster police are seeking to question a man believed to have been the last person to have seen the Schiavones alive. The man was with them in Woody's Bar, Springdale Avenue and Garden Grove Boulevard, Westminster, shortly before they were murdered. He is described as a white man in his mid-20s to early 30s, from 5-feet-10 to 6-feet-1 in height, with wavy dark brown hair, a medium-dark, olive complexion and pock-marked square face with high cheekbones.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killers of Long Beach auto wholesaler Robert Wilson Cogley, 44, shot to death in the parking lot of the Highway Center Liquor Store, Pacific Coast Highway and California Avenue, at 1:40 a.m. last Aug. 12. Cogley's killers are described as Negros between 16 and 19 years old and from 5-feet-7 to 5-feet-10 in height.

How to become a Secret Witness

Secret Witness seeks information from the public leading to the capture of fugitives and the arrest and conviction of other criminals. For this purpose, a guaranteed fund of $100,000 has been established by the Independent, Press-Telegram to be used for rewards of varying amounts.

Identies of informants will be kept secret.

You will be paid a reward if the information you give Secret Witness results in the arrest and conviction of a criminal, or the capture of a fugitive in cases publicized in this column. Rewards also will be paid for information resulting in arrests and convictions in cases not published by Secret Witness.

To contact Secret Witness, telephone 436-2526 from 8 a.m. to midnight weekdays, or from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. Saturdays, and Sundays. Do NOT give us your name. Or write to Secret Witness at the following address: Secret Witness, P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

This is how the last page of your "Secret Witness" letter should look after you have typed or printed your information about a crime.

DO NOT SIGN YOUR NAME. Instead, select a code name for yourself ... any name, as long as it's not your own ... and place it and a code number at the bottom of your letter. The code number should combine three letters and three numbers in any combination.

Tear off and keep a corner of the last page, with the same code name and number on it. Mail your letter to "Secret Witness," P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, 90801.

NORTH SHORES' FLOOR PLANS CHANGED . . . for better lakeside living

Dimension for better existence by buyers

Another new dimension for better living has been completed at North Shores executive homes on a 37-acre lake in Lake Forest.

A few modest construction changes were made that made the plans even more acceptable to the homebuying public than they were previously.

R. C. Jewett, builder-developer, stated that he had ordered the changes made because most of the families interested in purchasing one of the two plans all had the same objection to the original floor plan of both homes.

"In plan 5, we changed walls in the kitchen and informal dining area to "open up" the entire kitchen and make it bigger and brighter, and installed a breakfast bar for informal dining and entertaining.

"Plan 6 was formerly a four bedroom home. By changing the positions of walls we now have a home with three much, much larger than-average bedrooms. A wet bar, as well as a new family room, were also added to the lower level.

North Shores homes are priced from $45,600 to $77,400 with conventional financing.

All the homes of North Shores are two or three-level homes with up to five bedrooms and three baths.

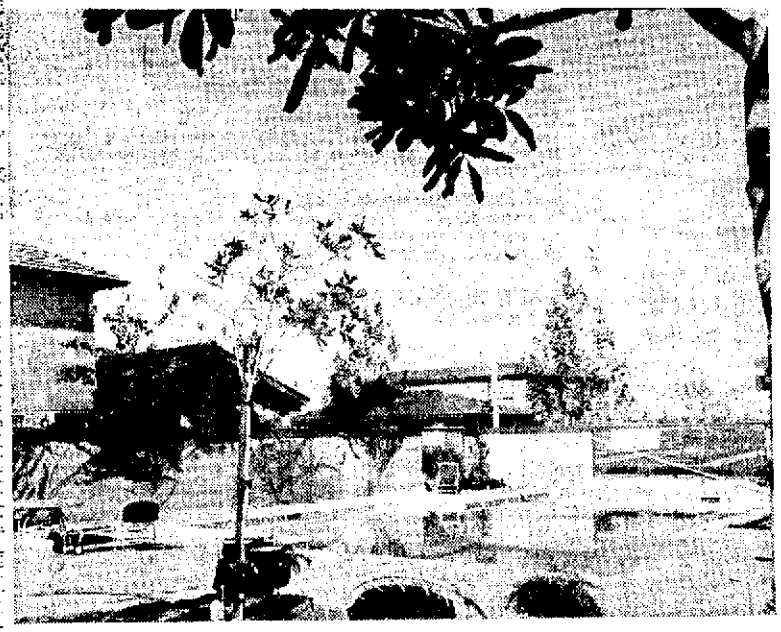

There are as many as three fireplaces in individual homes with some 24 feet in height.

Almost all of the homes face the lake and contain the luxurious appointments and features commensurate with the price and the site.

Every home has wide expanses of glass, lower decks or patios and upper level balconies running the width of the home to provide owners with unobstructed views of their peaceful surroundings.

The six model homes are open daily from 10 a.m. to dusk under the supervision of Wm. McCabe, Inc., sales agent.

COOL PLUNGE AREA . . . Westport Cerritos Villas residents

Westport Cerritos Villas 'priced right'

Every warm summer weekend is a vacation for buyers of Westport Cerritos Villas as residents collect around the huge swimming pool and cabana.

The two and three-bedroom garden villas are arranged around the recreation area so that every family has convenient access to the facilities.

Priced from just $22,500, the one and two-story townhomes, built by Westport Home Builders, may be purchased with no down VA, low-cost FHA or conventional financing, according to Al Erickson, sales director for the development of new homes.

Well-designed interiors contain deluxe kitchens with all built-in appliances including range, oven, disposal and dishwasher. Luminous ceiling panels provide shadow-free illumination for work areas.

Storage cupboards throughout are a thoughtful feature attesting to the quality of design and construction.

The prime location of the villas in the city of Cerritos is another attraction to homebuyers. Within 30-minutes drive of Long Beach, Los Angeles' downtown section and the metropolitan areas of Orange County, the villas are just off the Artesia (91) Freeway.

Los Cerritos Mall is a nearby regional shopping center with over one hundred shops, stores, theatres and restaurants. Four major department stores in the Mall (Broadway, Ohrbach's, Robinson's and Sears) provide full service to Westport Cerritos Villas residents.

Furnished models are open daily from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on 166th Street, between Norwalk Boulevard and Bloomfield Avenue in Cerritos.

Navy contract

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Hughes Aircraft Corp. has obtained a $10 million Navy contract to provide an aircraft tabular display system.

REAL ESTATE

ROBERT BECKMAN, Real Estate Editor

Wind Tree West is 'park-like'

Wind Tree West family townhomes in Anaheim feature quality construction throughout and yet are priced from just $18,950. The two-bedroom, two-bath garden homes are available in single-story or two-story plans and are offered by the Econ Group.

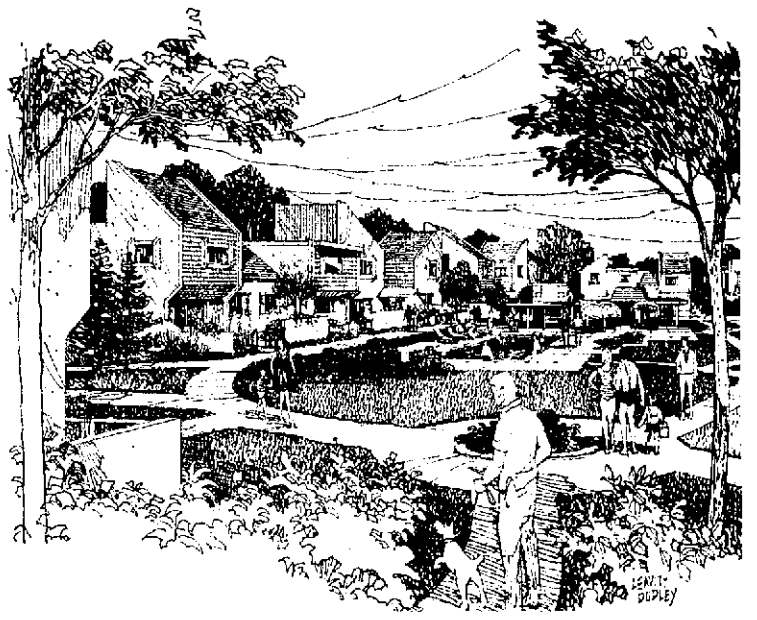

Every purchaser becomes a voting member of the homeowners association which is responsible for maintaining the park-like grounds, building exteriors and recreation amenities in prime condition.

Homeowners can enjoy the leisurely lifestyle of California living. Residents have more time to spend with their families, their friends, pursuing hobbies or advanced educational opportunities.

Condominium living allows buyers the privacy and financial advantages of homeownership and still provides security for weekend or extended vacations.

Price-included features in the luxurious interiors range from wall-to-wall carpeting to custom draperies.

To visit the display model, open daily from 10 a.m. to dusk, take the Riverside Freeway (91) to Euclid Street exit. Turn south to La Palma, east (left) to West Street which is the first signal, then a left to Wind Tree West.

PRIVATE COMMUNITY OF CASAS DEL PATIO . . . in Paramount

Casas del Patio close to centers

The private Paramount community of Casas del Patio, close-in to the employment centers of the South Bay, Long Beach and Lakewood, offers buyers presently living in those areas the best new townhouse living anywhere in the east county area.

Open just a short period of time, with over 25 per cent of the homes already sold, Casas del Patio's two-story, two and three-bedroom residences are located within a short distance of the junction of the Long Beach (7) and Artesia (91) Freeways.

And, in addition to the convenient transportation, the townhouses offer homebuyers a complete "move-in now" package with occupancy before the start of the fall school term.

Air conditioning, wall-to-wall carpeting and window-to-window drapes, private fenced patios, attached enclosed two-car garages and as many as 1½ baths are included in the full purchase price.

No down VA, low-cost FHA and conventional financing are all offered.

Under construction is a recreational center with swimming pool, facilities for barbequing, and a clubhouse with complete kitchen facilities for formal and informal entertaining by homeowners.

Decorated model homes are open daily from 10 a.m. to dusk under the supervision of Walker & Lee sales personnel. The models and sales facility are located on Orange Avenue, north of the Artesia Freeway, between Alondra and Artesia Boulevards.

Joint venture

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wheelabrator-Frye, Inc. said it entered into a joint venture to construct a $27 million energyconversion incinerator facility in Saugus, Mass. General Electric Co.'s Lynn plant will purchase the power generated by the plant.

Recreation amenities abound at Larwin Tara Hill

Recreation amenities for the entire family — kids, teenagers and adults — abound at Larwin's new Tara Hill at 1001 Stevens Ave., Santa Ana.

The $4.1 million garden apartment community has been opened for immediate occupancy by the Multiple Family Housing Division of The Larwin Group, Inc. Special moving allowances are being offered.

Tara Hill's facilities are designed to foster a variety of health and recreation activities. They include a striking adult recreation center with a wood-burning fireplace, billiards and party room, color television, exercise room, and saunas; a separate, furnished recreation center for teenagers; an adult swimming pool and adjacent child's wading pool; and a one-quarter acre volleyball field, plus tetherball and basketball equipment.

With thoughtful planning, Larwin has also included paved areas for hopscotch and foursquare. Family cook-outs are possible at 13 barbecues spaced throughout the attractively-landscaped grounds. And for busy mothers, an on-site Tara Child Development Center and several tot lots are offered.

THE 256-UNIT community is built of white stucco accented with warm wood balcony, patio and building exteriors, and offers apartments with as many as four bedrooms in five spacious floor plans. Rents, including gas and water, start at $175 for the one-bedroom apartment, which has its own nursery.

Hostesses are on site to show the apartments from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

One block away, at Bristol Street and Sunflower, is South Coast Shopping Plaza. Elementary, junior high and senior high schools, a hospital, two libraries, two fire stations, two post offices, Santa Ana Memorial Park and Orange County Airport are nearby.

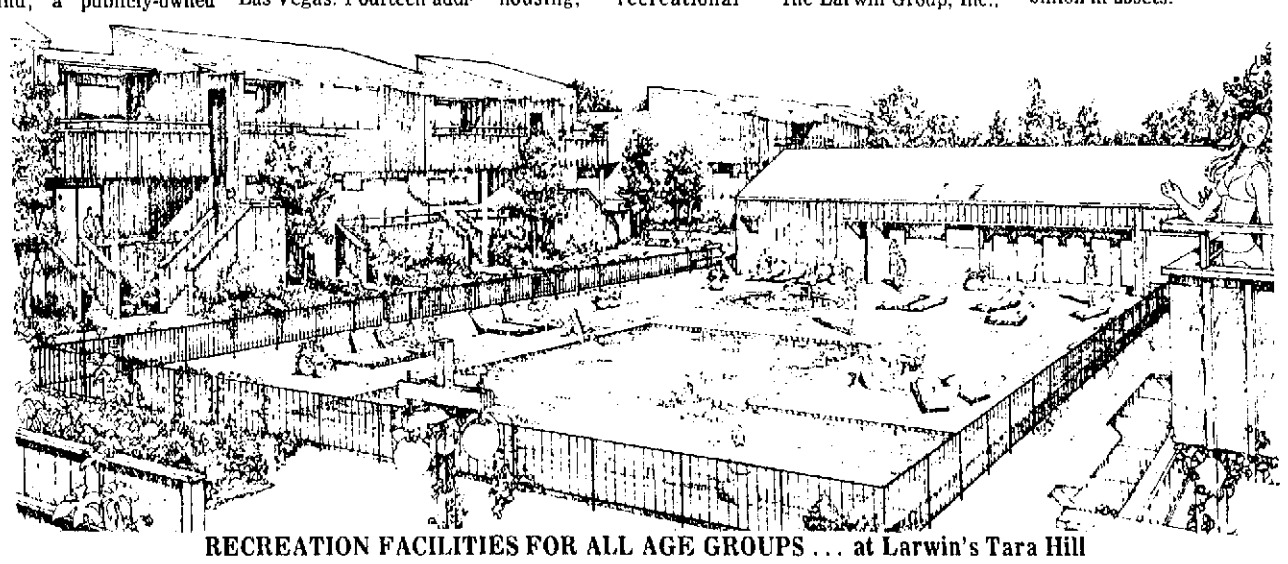

Focus of Tara Hill's recreation program will be the all-wood adult recreation center, with its striking paneled interior and informal fireplace lounge. Several of the rooms in the recreation center will be accented with super-graphics recalling the Old West and the rugged plainsmen of the late 1800s.

THE community, at 1001 Stevens Avenue, is located off Sunflower just one block east of Bristol Street and the South Coast Shopping Plaza in Santa Ana.

Larwin is developing and will manage Tara Hill for the owner, the 1971 CNA-Larwin Realty Fund, a publicly-owned real estate limited partnership. Larwin now manages a total of 27 family and adult communities throughout California and in Denver, Tucson and Las Vegas. Fourteen additional communities are under development.

In addition to multiple family housing, Larwin has major divisions in single family and urban housing, recreational communities development, mortgage banking, real estate investment trust management, and commercial development.

The Larwin Group, Inc., now celebrating its 25th anniversary, is a subsidiary of CNA Financial Corp., a Chicago-headquartered management company with $4.3 billion in assets.

DESIGN FOR PEOPLE

Put window to use; to conceal outmoded

By EMILY MALINO

Not everyone has an expansive picture window or a pair of handsome French doors. In fact, many of us have a pair of very plain Jane windows, often too narrow for the wall in which they stand and too small to be significant.

For years, the trend has been to conceal: hang a traverse track on the ceiling and drape the wall from corner to corner, engulfing the windows in a sea of fabric. Or, perhaps, to stretch the window by hanging a pole above it and arranging a wide panel of fabric on either side.

Today, however, most of us are looking for new options for windows. We are tired of paying for the laundry or dry cleaning of endless yards of fabrics; we are equally bored with the impersonal cliche of a pair of drapery panels, no matter how trendy the fabric or how ornate the cornice.

TODAY'S people don't want to devote hours to maintaining anything as unnecessary as collected yardage of dusty fabric. They are choosing sensible, practical window coverings that provide privacy and light control without costing an arm-and-a-leg or requiring regular monotonous maintenance.

These new alternatives — shades, shutters, blinds, screens, or any of the many other ideas contemporary designers have dreamed up — are not radical or modern or really new at all. Most of them have historical roots as deep as draperies or curtains and will adapt as happily to traditional as to today's furnishings.

Take that pair of ugly-duckling windows, for example. Washing them out in draperies would take all the focus from the room. Instead, try to enlarge them with a simple fool-the-eye technique.

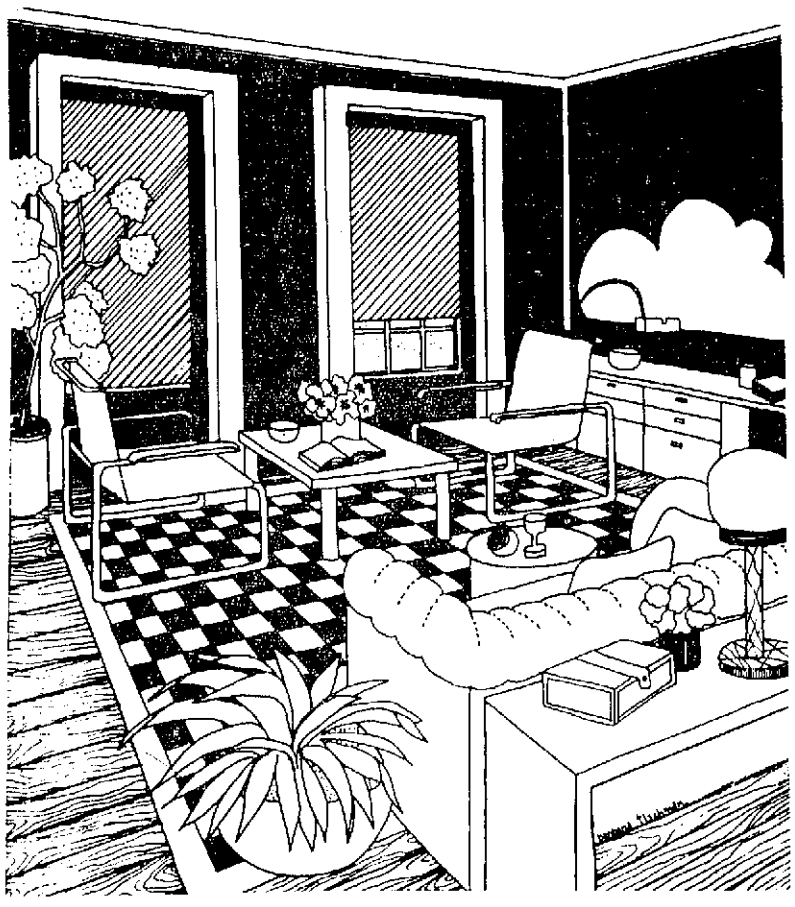

BUILD A frame of stock four-by-four lumber for the top and sides of each window. The frame should be about six to 12 inches from the window on all sides — the actual space is determined by placing the top beam midway between the ceiling and the top of the window. The side beams should be the same distance from the window as the top.

Now, choosing a deep, rich color you like — rust red or earth brown or navy blue — paint the walls outside and inside the new frames on all sides of the real window. Or, if you like white walls, leave the new wood frame a natural or stained color, and paint the wall inside and outside the frame pure white.

Choose a simple window covering. A shade in a solid color or a stripe that blends the color of your wall and your trim would be two perfect possibilities. Or use a matchstick bamboo blind or vertical vanes in white or off-white to match the bold new frame. Or even a pair of shutters, painted to match the wall color or the frame.

What you have done is not merely to extend the actual window; you have also created a handsome and interesting wall, easily the focal point for a pair of elegant chairs and a comfortable love seat. And yet there is nothing to wash or dry, clean or dust or vacuum in this contemporary approach to a typical decorating headache.

WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM?

Watch 'blue-suede' boys

By DON G. CAMPBELL

Every profession has its fair share of "blue-suede shoe operators" — the fast-talking, double-tongued swingers who are just a tiny step above the con man by virtue of the fact that they manage to stay just a hairline within the law.

MR. CAMPBELL:

I had a piece of commercial property for sale. I signed with a local real estate broker for one year. When his time was up I gave it to another in the same town. But this was an agreement for three months and no papers were signed. The only thing he came up with was that he had asked two persons if they would be interested in a new building. He never showed them the place or mentioned my name.

After his time was up I signed a listing for a year with another broker. A year later this prospect came to me and asked to buy. I took him to my real estate broker, the terms were agreed upon and the papers are going through.

Now, this broker who had it for three months had my property attached and wants full commission claiming he got my buyer interested in my place. My buyer claims he never knew my place was for sale until we met. My lawyer saw his lawyer and now they are willing to settle for a few hundred dollars.

I could put the money in escrow and fight it, but it would take time and eat up money for lawyers. What can I do? — Mr. E.O. (Buffalo, N.Y.)

ANSWER: I'll BET they are willing to settle for a few hundred dollars. Why shouldn't they be? They couldn't win a case like that in front of an elementary school traffic court.

You can do what you want, but I'll be bitterly disappointed if I find out you let yourself be extorted by this crook. For openers, I would suggest that you tell your lawyer to stop being so nicy-nice with this pair of bums and that you intend to file a countersuit for the potential loss of the sale, and the inconvenience, if they persist in this shakedown.

Sure, it's sticky and may cost you a little money. But will you really be able to live with yourself if you sit still for this kind of a swindle? Do you want to live with the knowledge that, by knuckling under, you encouraged this chiseler to fleece other members of your community?

MR. CAMPBELL:

I am 50 years old, have been out of work for several months and seem unable to find anything to do for which I qualify.

Since I have an equity of about $8,500 in my house, I don't qualify for welfare and the people at the welfare department have suggested that I re-mortgage my house and live on this money. This doesn't seem like too good an idea to me.

I am sure that I could get about $10,000 out of the sale of my house. With this amount, do you think it might be possible to purchase an income-type property or a little business to create a job and income for myself?

I am thinking along the lines of a small shop (retail sales), a service (laundromat or self-service car wash) or a multiple dwelling. — Mr. L.A.U. (Minneapolis)

ANSWER: I wouldn't go winging off in this direction without giving it a lot of long, hard thought. The business jungle is littered with the bones of the inexperienced and thinly capitalized proprietors who went into a little business in the same way you are considering it.

Laundromats and self-service car washing establishments are a couple of excellent examples — both types of activity, contrary to appearances, require a whale of a lot of expertise.

A retail shop of some sort is a possibility if there is some area — men's clothing, hardware, crafts and hobbies — where you have more than a casual understanding of the problems. I suggest you go to the local office of the Small Business Administration and pick up that bureau's literature on how to go into business for yourself. It's very well done.

SPANISH-STYLE FIREPLACES POPULAR

One of attractions to new Southland housing is use of Spanish-style fireplaces and extensive bookcase areas, such as this at Mission Viejo's new retirement community, Casta del Sol. Most builders, as Mission Viejo, include such refinements as standard features. Also becoming more popular: 24-hour security systems.

C-E Glass building at Watson Center site

The C-E Glass Division of Combustion Engineering, Inc., will occupy a 94,000-square-foot building under construction at Watson Industrial Center, it was announced by Watson Industrial Properties, owner and developer of the center.

The tilt-up concrete building will be on 4.39 acres at 22411 Bonita Street, Carson. Total value of the land and building is about $1.25 million, according to James R. Toscano, Watson's director of marketing.

Of the total building under roof, approximately 5000 square feet will be office space. Completion will be in the early fall.

The plant will produce tempered safety glass for residential and commercial construction. The glass, which breaks into small pellets instead of jagged pieces when broken, is used in patio doors, store and office entrances, shower tub enclosures, store fronts and other hazardous areas.

Based in Pennsauken, N.J., C-E Glass is the nation's largest glass tempering organization. The new facility will replace a smaller plant in Carson and will employ about 200 workers on three shifts.

Architect on the project is George W. Riley & Associates, Irvine. Contractor is Oltmans Construction Company, Monterey Park. Gloria Segall of Kramer Realty Company, Long Beach, represented both parties in the lease.

CENTURY 21 SPAROW REALTY ANOTHER RECORD MONTH

Betty Sumpter and Jim Selover were given special recognition for their outstanding performance in commercial and investment sales.

Century 21 Sparow Realty sold $1,000,000 worth of property in first 10 days of April and finished the month with gross sales of $1,759,600. A company record-breaking month and an amount 47% over that of April a year ago. During the month Sparow Realty helped 63 buyers and sellers solve their real estate problems.

Century 21 Sparow Realty's office has reported opening escrows totaling $5,027,275 this year. This points to a company where knowledge and pride gets the job done.

Get expert advice for home paint job

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's that time of year again: picnics, pools and painting.

If your house demands painting before you can enjoy the pool and picnics this summer, you'll be interested in the following Do's and Don'ts on painting from Sapolin Paints, Inc., a 91-year-old firm that specializes in a wide variety of paints for the home.

First the Do's:

— Know Your Dealer. This is the most important bit of advice on paint purchases since a reliable dealer — not an inexperienced clerk — can be of enormous help in choosing the right product for the job. Tell him what you are going to paint, the present condition of the surface and the type of finish coat and color you want.

— Read it. Do, carefully, read and re-read the label on the can thoroughly before you take brush in hand. Reputable manufacturers have taken a lot of time, money and research to help you get the right results based on these important label instructions.

— Quality. Buy a quality paint. Only the wealthy can afford cheap paint which will require a re-paint job within a short time. When it comes to paint you are going to apply yourself, the amount you save by economizing could mean no savings at all on the job. The difference in cost could be $2 to $4 per gallon with the results obtained worth much more in the appearance of the finished job and its lasting qualities.

— Professionals. Obtain at least two bids if you are going to have the job done professionally. Make sure identical details are included in written estimates. Don't leave anything to chance. If shutters have to be taken off, specify who will do it, how much will be charged. What about clean-up? No detail is too small, or you will find additional time and labor charges tacked on. Require evidence that a contractor is fully covered by compensation and insurance.

— Preparation. Make sure that you, or your painter, observe the manufacturer's instructions for proper surface preparation. This is more important than the painting itself.

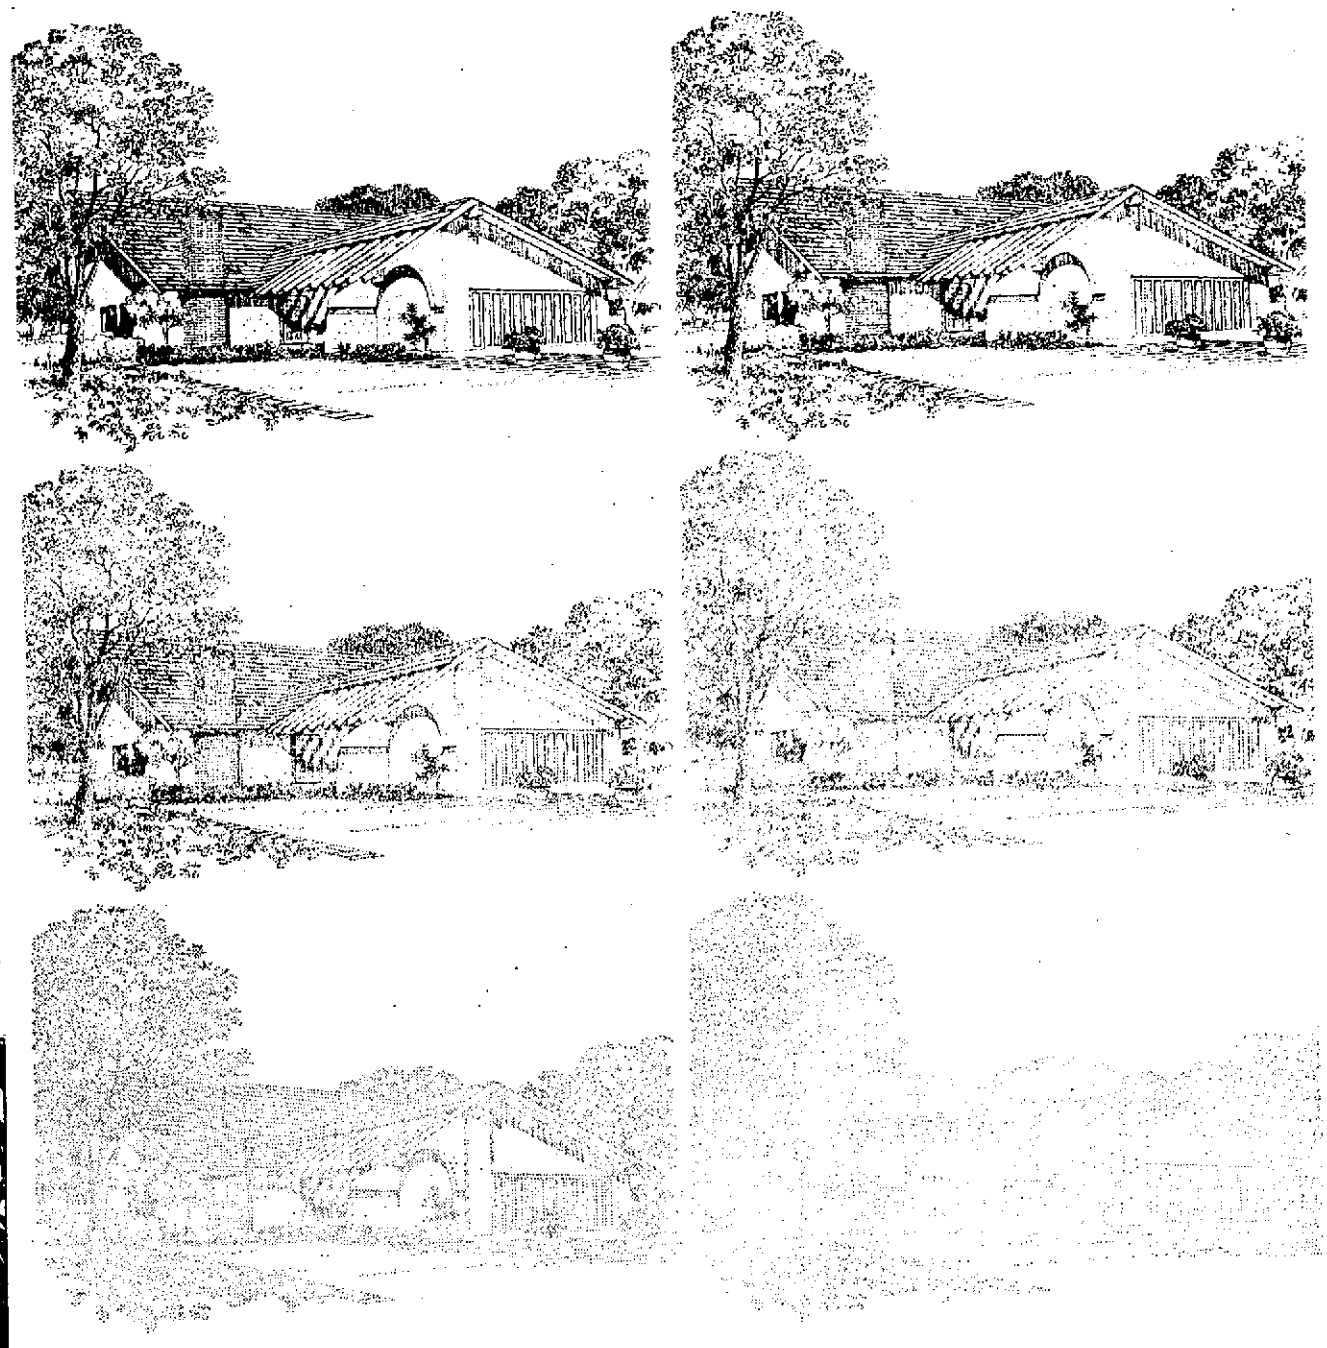

— Tools. Use proper tools for a good job. On a do-it-yourself job, it doesn't pay to skimp on equipment, and that includes a sturdy, well-constructed ladder. And be sure you use that ladder properly. Anchor it firmly, angling it sufficiently for safety, and don't over-extend your reach.

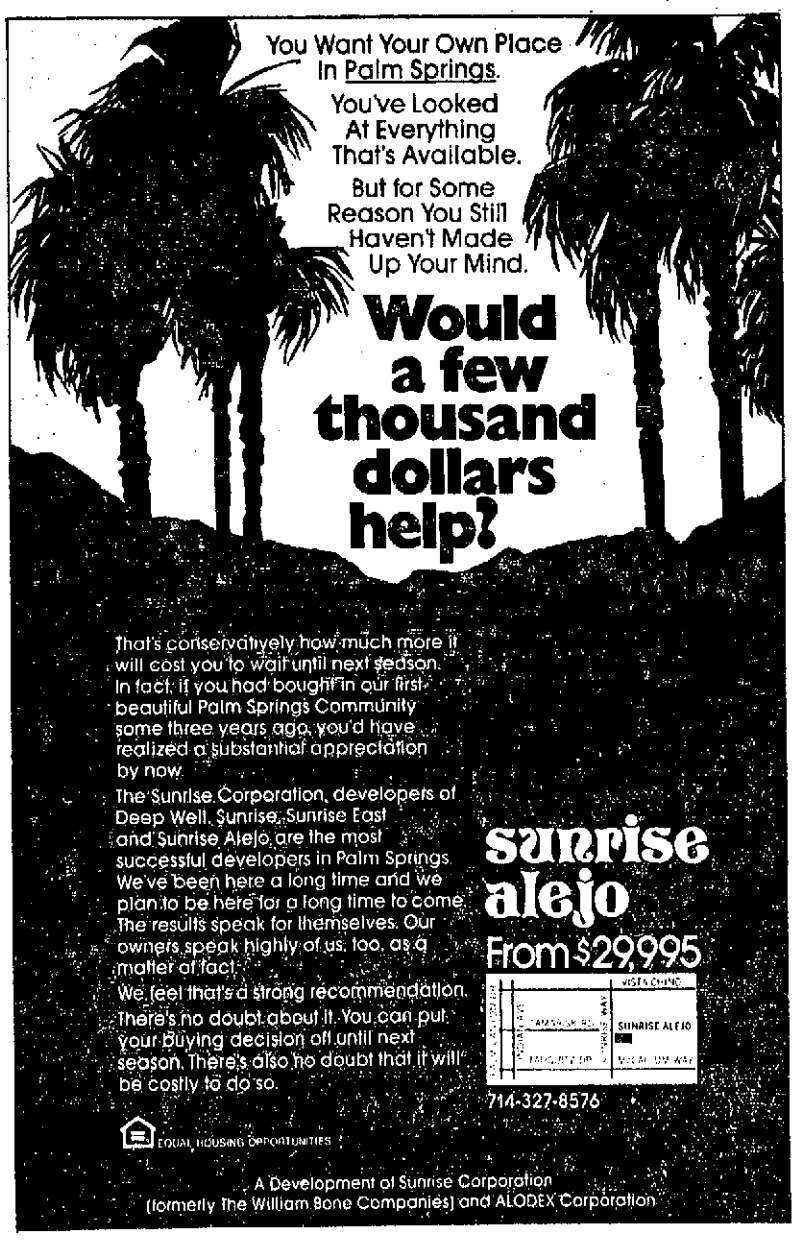

THE DON'TS:

— Don't deal with an unknown contractor without checking references with several satisfied customers. Beware of long-term guarantees.

— Don't paint outdoors if the weather is unreasonably cool. Generally, it should be above 55 degrees for a good paint job. Avoid, also, painting on any surface that is hot from direct exposure to the sun.

— Don't think one type of paint formulation is like another. There are many new paints on the market. Don't apply the new type latex paints with a pure bristle brush, for example.

7¼% INTEREST. AT THIS RATE, WE'LL BE SOLD OUT BEFORE YOU KNOW IT.

People recognize a good value.

Like the 7¼% interest rate on the new homes at Tempo Cypress and Tempo Cerritos.

They also recognize a good home. Which is why our Tempo homes are selling as well as they are.

The unfortunate thing is that after these homes are sold there won't be any more. There's simply no more land available for Tempo.

So, if you're in the market for a new home, better hurry out to one of our Tempos and get yourself a value.

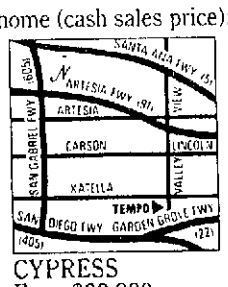

Before they're sold out.

Typical VA financing at Tempo Cypress for a $38,990 home (cash sales price): $90 down payment. First trust deed of $38,900 paid in 360 equal monthly payments of $259.48, principal and interest. (7¼% ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE, NO SECOND TRUST DEED.)

Typical VA financing on a $44,990 home (cash sales price) at Tempo Cerritos: $90 down payment. First trust deed of $44,900 paid in 360 equal monthly payments of $299.40, principal and interest. (7¼% ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE, NO SECOND TRUST DEED.)

Hofmann takes key Irvine Pacific post

Henry Hofmann Jr., a Southern California contractor, builder and development company executive for 30 years, has joined the Irvine Pacific Development Company as purchasing manager, E. B. Akins, president, announced.

Hofmann, 57, will be responsible for on-site and off-site purchasing for Irvine Pacific, the Irvine Company's single-family residential building unit.

Before joining Irvine Pacific, Hofmann was a vice president and director of purchasing for U.S. Development Co., headquartered in the Irvine Industrial Complex, Irvine.

A licensed contractor and real estate broker, Hofmann has operated his own Orange County contracting firm building housing tracts, custom homes and commercial buildings, and has been associated with several major development firms.

HOFFMAN attended Northwestern University Law School, Chicago, prior to entering the construction and development field in his father's business.

Formation of the Irvine Pacific Development Company earlier this year marked the Irvine Company's entry into the single-family home development and building field. Irvine Pacific is now accepting bids on its first project on Promontory Bay, Newport Beach.

The Irvine Company has been building its own apartments and commercial shopping centers for several years.

PROMOTED
Thelma Mayfield, with outstanding sales record with Ellis-Schrader Realty Inc., has been promoted to branch manager of firm's Lakewood office.

Woodruff Gables sold to Hyatt firm

Hyatt Corporation (OTC) announced the purchase of Woodruff Gables Medical Hospital, Inc., a 75-bed acute general hospital in Bellflower, for an undisclosed amount of Hyatt stock.

Located at 17800 Woodruff Ave., the hospital provides general medical and pediatric services, including three surgery suites, nuclear medicine, inhalation therapy, physical therapy, and intensive care and coronary care units.

Hyatt Medical Enterprises, Inc., a wholly-owned hospital and paramedical management services subsidiary of Hyatt Corporation, will manage the health care services at the Bellflower hospital.

S & S homes popular

More than $3 million in new homes have been sold at Encinitas Estates community north of San Diego, developed by S & S Construction, a subsidiary of Shapell Industries, Inc.

The community, which will include a total of 500 homes when completed, offers homes priced from $36,950 to $47,950.

Five models are on display at Encinitas Estates in distinctive single, split-level, and two-story designs ranging in size from three to six bedrooms. Each home features shake roofing, brick and natural stone exteriors, fully fenced rear yards and concrete driveways.

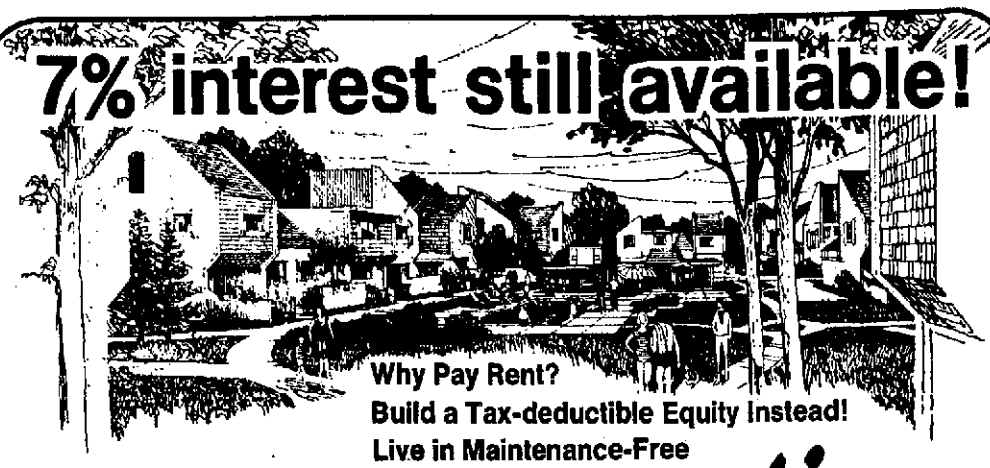

DIRECTOR
Dick Simmons, star of television series "Sgt. Preston of the Yukon," has been named director of activities at Rancho Carlsbad, adult resort mobile home community.

Builders set talks

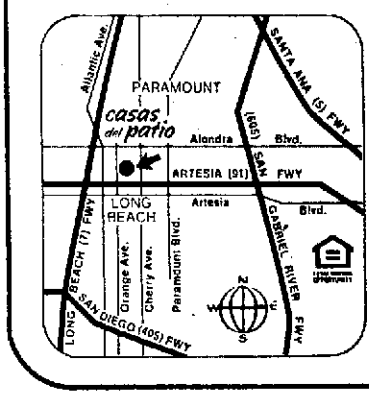

An "earth-shaking" program has been scheduled for the monthly dinner meeting of the Southland Builders' Exchange on Tuesday, June 12, at the Golden Sails Inn, it was announced by President Richard O. Prior.

Joe Dobrowolski, manager of technical sales-services for the Portland Cement Company, will summarize the high points of the damage caused by the San Fernando earthquake.

Zinger has served as director of hypnosis in two medical centers including the largest overweight research center in the U.S.

Novato project okayed

The planning commission of Novato in northern California has unanimously approved plans for the first phase of "Village Marin," the most ambitious single project ever to be undertaken by the Newport Beach-based homebuilding firm of U. S. Development Corporation.

Value of the project on completion is estimated at $30 million, according to Donald G. Zellner, president.

Village Marin will be located on a 519-acre site alongside Highway 101, just 17 miles north of the Golden Gate Bridge, in Marin County, one of the most attractive residential areas in the northern part of the state.

It is the largest development ever to be considered by the city of Novato, and it was the only one ever to receive unanimous approval of the city's planning commission on first presentation.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

A sales associate since 1971, Larry Hill has been named assistant manager of the Bellflower office of Bruce Mulhearn Inc. Realtor, 16911 Bellflower Blvd., according to an announcement by Louis O'Brien, manager. Hill succeeds Don Conley, now corrdinating manager for both Bellflower and North Long Beach offices.

Mulhearn schedules classes

Salesmanship training classes will start anew Monday in the newly remodeled and air conditioned classroom of Bruce Mulhearn Inc. Realtor, 16911 Bellflower Blvd., Bellflower.

The course primarily is geared to the real estate field.

Classes are conducted by Bruce Mulhearn, CRB/RECI, and are open to all persons without charge or obligation. Classes begin at 7 p.m.

Topic for the first in the eight-week series will be "Your Future in Real Estate" and in the following weeks will cover time management, telephone techniques, prospecting, obtaining the listing, qualifying buyers and showing property, presenting the offer and closing the sale.

Miracle Terrace complete

Miracle Terrace, a $3.5 million, 179-unit retirement apartment complex, the first such project in Anaheim financed and operated on a non-profit basis under a HUD grant, has been completed three months ahead of schedule, it was announced by Coast Construction Co., Inc.

Located at 225 South Western Ave., the project is composed of seven two and three-level buildings, an arts-craft area, a central lounge for group and private use and a large outdoor patio with gas barbecues.

Monthly rentals range from $100 to $120 for efficiency and one-bedroom apartments. All units provide draperies, wall-to-wall carpeting, air-conditioning, refrigerator, range, oven and garbage disposal, as well as individual personal security signals connected to the main office.

All buildings have individual elevators and ramps, and laundry facilities.

To qualify as residents, persons must be at least 62 years of age with limited income.

Financed by Bankers Mortgage Co., San Francisco, the project was constructed by Coast Construction Co., Inc., Irvine, and sponsored by the Western Avenue Baptist Church of Anaheim.

Changes may startle Hall of Famers

Dodgers host Oldtimers

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

It looked like the Hall of Fame filing into the Stadium Club at Dodger Stadium Saturday afternoon...Mickey Mantle.. Peewee Reese...Stan Musial...Lefty Grove...Dizzy Dean...Bob Feller... Carl Hubbell.

There were many, many more of baseball's former greats, in town to take part in today's Oldtimers Day celebration at 1 p.m., before the Dodgers and Montreal Expos.

There to greet them for a luncheon gathering was the manager of the Dodgers, Walter Alston, and he issued a word of advice.

"Things have changed," he told the oldtimers. "When you get out onto the field you'll still find the old resin bag. But now we also have liquid resin, and pine tar. You also wear a glove when you bat nowadays. Also, no modern player would be without a glove under his regular glove.

"And," he said with a twinkle,"after the game when you come into the clubhouse you'll see a long line of hair dryers."

Then he stroked his balding head, smiled and said,"If the other guys' hair dryers are being used, you're welcome to use mine."

Chub Feeney, the president of the National League, also issued a word of welcome.

"I see a lot of guys here who heard we might go to the designated hitter rule," he said. "A lot of you guys probably figure you're candidates."

Casey Stengel said—for him—a few words. He spoke for 20 minutes. There were laughs, old stories and get togethers with former teammates and former enemies in baseball's idea of a class reunion—the Oldtimer Game.

It all started in 1947 when the Dodger vice president Red Patterson, at the time with the Yankees, staged a day to honor Babe Ruth. He brought the Yankees of old together with some of the American League greats. It attracted 65,000 fans to Yankee Stadium as well as a lot of interested promoters in other big league arenas.

In short, it made Oldtimers Day a regular part of the summer. There are a dozen similar promotions this year in the majors and some oldtimers, like Mantle and Musial, will make all the rounds.

It's costing the Dodgers roughly $25,000 to house, feed and transport 44 former big league greats from all over the country as well as present each with an attractive gift.

Is it worthwhile?

We're hoping for 40,000," said Patterson, "and a normal Sunday game with Montreal might draw 20,000.

Today's Oldtimers Day game is the third presented by the Dodgers.

"I wanted to do it five years earlier," Patterson said,"but the thinking was that not enough tradition had yet been built. So we waited until our 10th season in Dodger Stadiun before staging one."

"I think these things are great. Those guys will be up all night down there at the Biltmore Hotel, recalling old stories and getting up all the old lies.

"My favorite story about an Oldtimers game was that one in 1947 and Ty Cobb came to me and asked if he could bat lead off. Hell, I thought he had to catch a plane or something so I said sure. Then he tells the catcher, Wally Schang, to be careful because he hadn't swung a bat in a long time and he didn't want to hurt anyone. Cobb must have been 61-years-old at the time.

Anyway, Schang lies back like he says he will and darned if Cobb doesn't drop a bunt out in front of the plate and try to beat it out.

"You think these guys don't want their hits even now!"

Kathy Schmidt extends own record; Feuerbach 71-1 1/2

Combined news services

Berkeley — World record holders Al Feuerbach and Rod Milburn hopped off a jet to win their second major meet titles in different parts of the country in as many days and Long Beach City College coed Kathy Schmidt increased her American woman's javelin record here Saturday in the Kennedy Games.

The 19-year-old Miss Schimdt, who only last week at Modesto threw 207-10, increased that mark by three inches here to 208-1.

The 245-pound Feuerbach won the shotput with a toss of 71 feet, 1½ inches, the fourth best effort in history — behind only his world mark of 71-7 set a month ago in San Jose and two throws by Randy Matson.

Olympic gold medalist Milburn of Southern University held off the challenge of Tommie Lee White and captured the 120-yard high hurdles in 13.4 seconds.

Milburn had set a meet record of 13.4 Friday and won the hurdles event at the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. College Division meet at Crawfordsville, Ind.

Feuerbach won the shotput Friday in the U.S. Track and Field Federation championships at Wichita Kan., before returning to the West Coast to score his Kennedy Games triumph. He leaves today to compete in a meet in Russia on Tuesday.

Besides his winning throw Saturday, Feuerbach, the Pacific Coast Club of Long Beach star did 70-6¼.

"Competing two days in a row with travel in between fatigues you," said the muscular shot putter. "But it loosens you up too. There are so many variables that I don't know which combination is best, but I usually do quite well the second day.

"I like to think I'm capable of a world record anytime, and I go for it all the way in each meet. I always take my six throws."

Sprinter Steve Williams was the day's only double winner by taking the 100-yard dash in 9.3 and the 220 in 20.6.

Former University of Southern California star Willie Deckard was second in both sprint events.

In the 440 relay, Deckard spoiled the comeback of one-time University of California star Eddie Hart.

Hart, running anchor for the Bay Area Striders, lost his team's lead. Cal International anchorman Deckard passed him to win by about five yards.

Hart was competeing for the first time since the Munich Olympic Games, where he was disqualified from the 100-meter event for missing a qualifying heat.

In other fine performances, Gordon Minty of England, a three-time NCAA College Division champ while competing for Eastern New Mexico, took the 3-mile in 13:15.4; world 400 meter record holder Marilyn Neufville set a Games record of 55.1 in winning the women's 440; Tim Vollmer set a Games record when he won the discus with a throw of 209-4; and South African Danie Malan ran away with the 330 in 1:49.0.

Wohlhuter skips 880 for 3:58.8

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — One week after setting a world record in the half mile, Rick Wohlhuter passed up an invitation to a special 880 Saturday and instead broke four minutes in the mile with a 3:58.8 clocking, his career best.

The Chicago Track Club ace took over early in the last lap and sprinted away from the field at the U.S. Track and Field Federation championships at Wichita State's Cessna Stadium.

"I wanted to run under four minutes and felt that this track would be a pretty good place to get that time," Wohlhuter said, emphasizing he considers himself primarily a half miler. "I'm not used to running a mile and I thought I was out there for an eternity."

Larry Rose of the Pacific Coast Club of Long Beach finished second behind Wohlhuter in 4:02.2 and Bruce Fisher of Syracuse was third at 4:03.1.

Olympic champion Dave Wottle had trouble winning the invitational half mile even without Wohlhuter's presence. He shot from seventh to the top of the pack on the final curve for a narrow win at the tape in 1:49.5 - well above Wohlhuter's 1:44.6 run in Los Angeles a week ago.

Wottle, the Bowling Green runner with a gold medal and a record in the 800-meter run, nipped Skip Kent of Wisconsin at the tape. Kent had moved into a 10-yard lead with 300 yards to go but faltered in the backstretch.

The University of Texas closed out the meet with a 3:05.7 mile relay, fastest in the U.S. this year.

The race was tight until the Longhorns' third man, John Lee, opened up a 15-yard lead with a 46.3 quarter mile.

Gary Ordway an Dwight Stone, two other Pacific Coast Club aces, broke USTFF records. Ordway threw the discus 201 feet, 5 inches to take the record away from Brian Oldfield of the Chicago Track Club, who set the old mark of 193-9 in 1972.

Stone won the high jump with a meet record leap of 7-3½, beating the old mark of 7-1 turned in by Bill Elliot of the PCC in 1971. William Oates of Texas was second with 7-0.

Dennis Schultz of Oklahoma State won the 440 in a fast 45.8.

team in the daytime," he said. "I don't know what it is — maybe we're not getting our rest — but we look awful in day games."

They also have developed an annoying habit of looking terrible against Peterson.

The Yanks gave Fritz — one of the sultans of swap along with teammate Mike Kekich — the only run he needed in the fourth inning when Bobby Murcer singled with two out, stole second and scored on Ron Blomberg's base hit to center.

New York added a second and final run in the fifth on a walk to Thurmon Munson, Gene Michael's hit-and-run single and Horace Clarke's sacrifice fly.

Even though Peterson may have felt differently, the only hits he surrendered were Rudy Meoli's third inning single and Bob Oliver's lendoff hit in the fifth.

ANGEL ANGLES: The long road trip winds up this afternoon with Clyde Wright (3-6) facing New York rookie George Medich (3-2) . . . The Angels are currently 4-7 for the sojourn . . . Ryan has never beaten the Yankees . . . The Angels had their best chance to score when they loaded the bases with two out in the sixth but Peterson induced Oliver to ground meekly to short . . . New York manager Ralph Houk has joined the list of those suspecting Bill Singer of throwing a spitter. "It's a shame they let him get away with it," Houk moaned . . . gallons. The placing of all the fuel on the left side is expected to be a great anti-fire measure.

USAC also mandated that the area formerly occupied by the right-side tank be filled with an energy-absorbing material.

The changes are effective with the running of the Pocono "500" July 1 in Pennsylvania and will apply to all national championship races from that date.

USAC president Reynold MacDonald said, "our constant objective is to make auto racing safer and more enjoyable for everyone involved."

The tragedies at Indianapolis last month included the death of driver Art Pollard in a practice run May 12 and that of a pit crewman struck by a fire truck when the rain-delayed race was finally run Wednesday.

Among the nearly 50 members of racing elite in attendance at the afternoon meeting were Johnny Rutherford, whose top official speed in the time trials was just under 199 mph; three-time 500 winner A. J. Foyt, one of the most outspoken in his criticism of this year's race, and Frank Del Roy, who resigned as USAC's technical committee head, effective June 15.

Other areas of safety discussions included the 2½ mile track itself, which some drivers say is among the safest around, but which others say is too narrow for the speeds run this year.

Some observers also think the stands are too close to the track. The injured included fans burned Monday when Salt Walther's machine crashed in the main straightaway and spilled burning fuel into the seats.

Walther was transferred Saturday from Indianapolis Methodist Hospital to the University of Michigan Burns Center. His condition is still listed as serious.

Driver Swede Savage, burned in a fiery crash when the race was finally run Wednesday, remained in critical but stable condition.

Ryun takes mile second night in row

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Distance runner Jim Ryun, troubled by an aching right hip, won the mile run for the second time in as many nights Saturday in an International Track Assn meet.

Ryun took the mile in a time of 4:05.1, dashing past Keith Munson, who led the race most of the way, at the start of the final lap. Ryun crossed the finish line 15 yards ahead.

Brian Oldfield, the leading money winner on the ITA circuit, won the shotput with a throw of 69-4½. Fred DeBernardi was second and former Olympic champion Randy Matson third.

Jean Louis Ravelomonsoa won the men's 60-yard dash with a time of 6 seconds flat. It was the second night he won the event.

Bob Hayes of the Dallas Cowboys beat Earl McCulloch of the Detroit Lions in the 40-yard dash. Paul Gibson won the hurdles, and Henry Hines took the long jump.

Track highlights

NCAA COLLEGE DIV. CHAMPIONSHIPS at Crawfordsville, Ind.

Sprinter Steve Riddick won the 100 and 200-yard dashes and anchored the winning 440-yard relay team as Norfolk State captured its first track and field title Saturday by scoring 54 points. Lincoln University finished second with 48 points followed by Eastern Illinois with 45. Three meet records were broken as Western Maryland's Knut Hiellnes won the discus 193 feet, Anthony Hall of Norfolk tossed the javelin 258-7 and Cal Poly Obispo's Reynaldo Brown high jumped 7-2. Laranee Jones of Northeast Missouri was clocked in 46.1 for the 440 while the mile was won in 4:06.2 by Ashland's Steve Foster.

against Renko in the bottom of the first with three runs, one on a single by Willie Crawford and two more on Ron Cey's single to left.

But that was it. They got a single in the second, two more base hits in the fourth and nothing else the rest of the way.

Bailey's homer in the fourth cut the Expos' deficit to a single run and then Ken Singleton slugged a two-run homer in the fourth to put Montreal ahead to stay, 4-3.

It marked the ninth and 10th home runs served up by Messersmith, a man who tossed only five in 170 innings last season for Anaheim.

The Expos finally chased Messersmith with two more runs in the seventh. Messersmith issued two walks with one out in the seventh and George Culver took over. But a single by John Boccabella scored one and the second came home on an infield out by Tim Foli.

"They simply out-hit us," Alston said afterward, "and they made fewer errors.

"Maybe it's good that all the errors and poor hitting went into one game. The last time we won a pennant (1966) it seemed like that was the way we did it — play well for awhile, then have everything come to a head in one game."

Now it's Alston who's rivalling Mauch's patience.

DODGER DOPE: The Oldtimers Game introductions will begin at 1 p.m. today with the Dodgers and Expos to follow at 2 p.m. . .

The Dodgers lead the National League in doubleplays, with 66 . . . The Dodgers, once easy prey for lefthanders, have defeated the last five they've faced . . . Against lefthanders the Dodgers now are 8-9 . . .

Hammond 2nd, O'Brien third at 55th State meet

WOODLAND (Special) - Ted Hammond couldn't catch Jerry Herndon for the second week in a row here Saturday and it cost the Compton High long jumper first place in the 55th State track meet.

Hammond jumped more than 25 feet for the third time this year in 85 degree weather at Woodland High School Stadium, leaping 25-4¼ only to see Herndon from El Cajon of San Bernardino better that by just a quarter of an inch to take the title at 25-4½.

Bellflower's Bob O'Brien finished third in the mile at 4:11.9. Alvin Gilmore, one of many outstanding distance runners turned out at Lompoc, captured the event in 4:11.4.

O'Brien was given the same time as second place finisher Dan Crowley from Gunn in Palo Alto. Southern Section champion Barrie Williams of North Torrance was never a factor in the race and finished seventh.

Despite Williams' misfortunes, it was a highly successful day for Southern Section athletes who accounted for both meet records and won seven events.

Tim Curran of Crespi cleared 16-2¾ in the pole vault to break Steve Smith's meet record of 16-0 set four years ago. Jim Niedhart of Newport Harbor increased the meet record in the shotput to 67-3¼.

Other Southern Section champions were Randy Lopez of Alhambra in the half-mile (1:52.4), Mike Johnson of Pasadena in the 120 high hurdles (13.6), and Clancy Edwards of Santa Ana in the 220 (21.2).

Ronald Whitaker and Randy Turner won the 440 and high jump and Whitaker also ran a leg on the winning 440 relay team to give San Francisco Wilson the team title with 20 points - eight more than runnerup Lompoc which got first from Gilmore and Terry Williams in the 2-mile Friday night.

The championship was the first ever won by a San Francisco high school in the meet's 55-year history.

Whitaker won the 440 in 47.0, ran the second leg on the 440 relay, then anchored a fourth place finish in the mile relay with a 46.3 split to bring his team from last to fourth.

Turner won the high jump at 6-6. Jordan's Daryl Robinson was sixth at 6-4.

A capacity crowd of 7,700 watched the meet.

440 relay - San Francisco Wilson (Farmer, Whitaker, Kirtman, Walker) 41.5, Edison, Fresno 41.6, Sacramento 41.7, Compton 41.9, Monrovia 42.0.

880 Lopez (Alhambra) 1:52.4, McManus (Ygnacio Valley, Pleasant Hill) 1:53.6, Lagorico (Taft, L.A.) 1:53.8, Wolman (Fairfax, L.A.) 1:53.8, Johnson (Aviation) 1:54.1.

Dedeaux and Trojans bid goodbye to 'Rod The Tree'

"Save the Ball Gobbler Tree," read the big sign on the leftfield fence.

High on the tree's sturdy trunk another sign hung.

"Good Bye . . . Good luck," it said, from "Rod The Tree."

Rod Dedeaux, before his USC baseball team played its last game on old Bouvard Field, looked up at the more than 100-foot-tall eucalyptus tree and laughed about the signs put up by a booster group.

"More balls have stuck up in that tree," he said, "I wonder how many. Of course, other coeches say only our balls hit the tree."

High branches hang over the field down the first base line, about where the outfield grass begins. Fair or foul, any ball hitting the tree is out of play.

"No doubt about it, Rod The Tree has won a lot of ball games for us," Dedeaux said of pop flys ruled dead that otherwise would be outs. "No, it's never cost us a game."

The tree was planted when the campus was founded in 1880. Dedeaux, Southern California baseball coach since 1942, remembers when he could use a ladder to trim branches himself.

"Someone told me once that nails would kill," he said. "There must have been a million nails driven into it, but it just grew out more than ever."

Why didn't Rod just chop the tree down years ago? "I knew better than that," he said. "It was planted to serve as a focal point on the campus."

Bovard Field will be the site of the university's performing arts building, and the tree will be in the center of a patio. There it will continue to provide shade as it hes for Trojan athletes all these years.

The baseball team will play next year in the $750,000 Dedeaux Field now under construction.

The new field is a dream come true for Dedeaux, but he felt nostalgic Saturday.

"Bovard Field has served a lot of great, athletes," he said. And the tree? "Nothing will ever disturb that tree. I'm certain of it," he said.

Flory sparks Nitehawks, 7-1

SAN BERNARDINO - Jerry Flory provided the spark both on offense and with the glove in Saturday night's 7-1 Long Beach Nitehawks victory over San Bernardino.

The Hawk centerfielder went 3-for-4, drove in four runs, stole two bases including home and contributed two outstanding catches in the outfield.

Long Beach resumes Western Softball Congress competition today at San Diego against Sub-Flot in a doubleheader at 2.

Ed Klecker struck out 18 and contributed a solo home run on his own behalf as the Lakewood Jets annihilated the Lakewood Barons, 14-0.

But he would like an Olympic medal

Sprinting is NOT the end-all for Don Quarrie

DON QUARRIE OF JAMAICA

An encyclopedia describes Jamaica as "a tropical paradise of high mountains, soft breezes and colorful plants and flowers where the climate is delightful both in winter and in summer."

The travel posters picture tourists sitting in the shade listening to calypso bands while smiling natives deliver frozen daiquiris.

"It's not really what a lot of people think it is," says Don Quarrie, the USC sprinter whose home is the large island in the West Indies 90 miles south of Cuba.

"I enjoy it there, but as far as industry is concerned, it's just developing."

Quarrie's father is a policeman. Don is the third eldest of five brothers and a sister.

"I'd say I come from a poor family," he says.

"Losing doesn't bother me, really. I try to do my best, but at the same time I accept the fact that on some days somebody may be more ready to run than I am." — Don Quarrie.

"Yes, I would say that. I go home for Christmas, and even once a year keeps me from being homesick much."

BECAUSE Donald O'Riley Quarrie could run fast, he had a chance for an education that could someday make him one of the leaders of his island's development. As a USC senior, he has carried a full load of 16 units in business administration.

Although he shares the world record of 19.8 seconds for 200 meters, Quarrie does not live and die for his sport.

"Not really," he says in his quiet way. "I have other goals as far as my life is concerned, because I won't be running too long. Most likely the next Olympics will be it for me."

Quarrie, the Pacific-8 champion in the 100 and 220, has best performances of 9.1 (wind-aided) for 100 yards, 10.1 for 100 meters, 20.2 for 220 yards and his world record for 200 meters, and if that's as fast as he ever runs he'll be happy.

"If you put your mind too much on it," he says, "I think it's harder to get it than if you relax and let it come."

BUT IF HE has one athletic goal, it is the 1976 Olympics at Montreal. Quarrie has been a member of two Jamaican Olympic teams but has yet to run for a medal because of injuries, including tendinitis in one knee.

"In '68 I was still in high school. I got second in the trials and qualified for the 100. Then I got hurt in Mexico City while practicing, so I ended up just watching the meet.

"In '72 I planned to run both the 100 and 200 but I got hurt in the Pac-8 meet. I did heal up but I wasn't sure I'd have enough speed for the 100. Then I got over there and got a hamstring in the semifinals of the 200."

Jamaica's banner at Munich was carried by another sprinter, Lennox Miller, an Olympic silver medalist who preceded Quarrie to USC and is now studying in the Trojan dental school. But Miller was not overly persuasive in recruiting Quarrie, who first went to the University of Nebraska.

"A few Jamaicans had been there before," Don explains. "I guess the main thing was that I had a friend going there.

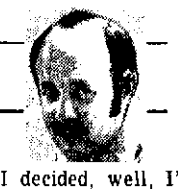

"I knew how it was out here. I'd come here for the USA-Russian meet in '69, but by that time I'd already signed with Nebraska. I figured it wasn't that cold. But after I got there I didn't enjoy the weather at all, so I decided I'd better get out."

QUARRIE'S TRANSFER after his freshman year cost him his sophomore season of eligibility, but he has had two good years with the Trojans, whom he will lead into the NCAA meet at Baton Rouge, La., this week.

Don's assignment will be to run eight races in three days for the Trojans — three heats each in the 100 and 220 and two in the 440 relay.

Coach Vern Wolfe figures he's up to it. After all, he once ran on a severely injured leg just to pick up a point for the team.

"That was in the Pac-8 last year," Don says, "the day after I'd pulled up in the 100. I already had made the finals in the 220 and there were six people in it and everybody got a point, so I decided, well, I'll jog through and get a point."

Don's time was 29 seconds, his "most embarrassing moment" in track.

WHEN HE LEFT Jamaica he wasn't accustomed to losing.

"In high school I rarely lost," he says, recalling the formative years at Kingston's Camperdown High. "I think I lost only once in a high school meet. I pulled up in the 100 — but I didn't stop. I kept going and got second.

"The things I achieved at that time I still regard as important. They were a steppingstone to everything else. My parents had a part, also, because my little brothers run track, and if one of us wins it gives them a thrill."

Quarrie plans to stay in the U.S. for awhile after graduation and perhaps join a track tour to Europe "for a couple of weeks."

"Then I'll just quit for a month or two. . . just do nothing.

"I'm not really making track something that will control my life. I will control it."

W. Murphy Crawford—emerging superstar

Willie Murphy Crawford wears number 27 on his back and on his finger.

It appears in blue block figures between the shoulders of his home white and road grey costumes of the Los Angeles Dodgers. It appears fashioned into a diamond ring for the pinky of his right hand when it is off the playing field and not wearing a glove or carrying a bat.

"Because," Willie explains, carefully avoiding anything as common as modesty, "number 27 is going to be the next really famous Dodger number. Willie Murphy Crawford is going to be a superstar."

The foregoing utterance forms part of an incredible coincidence. It is precisely what the Dodgers had in mind when they adopted Willie as a bonus infant in 1964. The price was not officially revealed but it was known to be sufficient to purchase rings for all of Willie's fingers, not to mention bells for his toes.

Obviously, Crawford has progressed rather slowly toward his destination as a super player. The current season marks a decade in professional baseball which is nearly enough time to place him in the category of a veteran.

HAPPILY, Willie is emerging. The Dodgers, in a manner of speaking, are flying and no small degree of the credit can be placed at the large feet of Willie Murphy Crawford.

Murph, as he is affectionately known around the jewelry stores, raised his average to .321 by batting .403 during the month of May.

After one particular seven-day stretch in May, he was recognized by the National League which bestowed the honor of player of the week.

This does not create the status of superstar, but Willie is moving in the proper direction. Curiosity prompts one to inquire of Willie as to what this is all about.

"It isn't me," Willie replies. "It's the manager. I asked him at the start of the season if he wanted to win the pennant this year. He said he did and I told him how to do it."

Which is?

"YOU PLAY Willie Murphy Crawford every day. Number 27 is going to be a superstar but he can't make it sitting on the bench. Now, the manager is getting smart and you can see for yourself what's happening to this team."

Willie over-simplifies, of course. One thing leads to another in baseball and if the manager saw fit to insert Crawford as a regular, he also saw a change in the guy.

One thing that happened to Crawford was his conversion to Buddhism which is, however, a matter not to be dealt with here. A man's religion is his own private affair.

Another theory not without logic is that some of the characteristics of super stardom have rubbed off on Willie. You see, it was his habit to hang around two genuine superstars who recently played with the Dodgers. They would be Frank Robinson and Dick Allen, both of whom have gone on to the easier life of the American League. But they are thought to have left considerable influence on Crawford who may turn out to be a super protege.

"Not really," the protege says. "They were good guys and great players but I have always had my potential. It is like I told you, the thing is to play me every day."

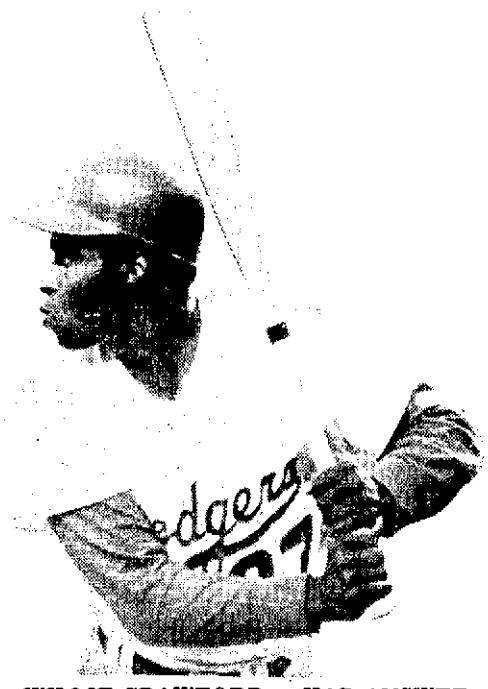

HAPPINESS is playing every day and happiness on a baseball team is contagious. Is willie doing it to the team, or vice versa?

"Who knows?" Willie replies, waving a hand with a ring on each finger. "But it sure is a cinch this is a happy team."

Happy teams have been known to go all the way which could create a problem. They give rings to guys who play in the World Series and Willie already has the one he got for batting twice in the classic of 1965. He wears it on the same hand as the diamond 27 and the birthstone and the star sapphire.

"Another ring would be a problem," Willie Murphy Crawford concedes, "but I'll get around it somehow. I know — I'll grow another finger."

Don't laugh. A superstar can do anything.

THE SPORTS QUIZ

It's tough enough to pick winners at a race track but how about these questions on thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown events? Give it a try. At least, win or lose, it can't cost you any money.

1. Which of the Triple Crown events is the oldest: Kentucky Derby, Preakness. or Belmont Stakes?
2. Which of the Triple Crown events is run over the longest distance?
3. Citation, ridden by Eddie Arcaro, was the eighth horse to win the Triple Crown (1948). On what other horse did Arcaro sweep the Triple Crown?
4. In 1955, Swaps and Nashua hooked up in the Triple Crown events. One horse won the Derby, the other won the Belmont and Preakness. Which horse won the Derby?
5. The record for riding the most Kentucky Derby winners was set at five by Eddie Arcaro. Who tied the record in 1969?
6. Only eight horses have won the Triple Crown. Name four of them.
7. Riva Ridge missed last year's Triple Crown by losing the Preakness. Who won the 1972 Preakness?
8. What Cinderella horse won the first two legs of the Triple Crown in 1971?
9. What horse set the Kentucky Derby record of 1 minute, 59 2/5 seconds?
10. Name the horse that in 1967 won the Preakness and the Belmont and went on to set a record of $817,941 for money won in one year.
11. Citation and Count Fleet held the Belmont record of 2:28 1/5 until 1957. Name the horse that broke the record that year.
12. The winningest jockey in the world is Bill Shoemaker. How many times did he win the Derby?
13. In 1969, Majestic Prince was favored to win the Triple Crown. He won the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness but lost in the Belmont to what horse?
14. Earl Sande became a Triple Crown winner in 1930. What horse did he ride?
15. How many Kentucky Derby winners were ridden by Johnny Longden, the second leading jockey in history?

Stanley Ketchel knocks down Jack Johnson in 12th round

Colma, Ca., 1909

Jack Johnson, the recently crowned heavyweight champion is making a crucial defense of his title today. "The Michigan Assassin," Stanley Ketchel has challenged the black champion and there are a lot of people who think Ketchel will whip Johnson.

The unusual fact about this fight is that Ketchel is the current middleweight titleholder. Johnson will outweigh him by approximately forty pounds.

Nevertheless, Ketchel is a devastating puncher and has vowed to take the crown away from the controversial champion.

Except for a flash knockdown scored by Johnson in the second round the fight moves slowly under this extreme California heat.

Johnson is either being overly respectful of his opponent or he is just toying with him. Ketchel is the aggressor but Johnson ties him up as soon as Stanley gets inside. At long range only an occasional Johnson jab is landing.

Round twelve begins and Ketchel keeps stalking his man. Suddenly Stanley strikes out with a leaping overhand right delivered with all his power. It lands flush on Johnson's jaw and he crumbles to the canvas.

The big champion pushes himself up slowly. Ketchel charges in for the kill. He swings. Johnson swings. They both land. They both fall!

Johnson landed a smashing right hand on the chin of the charging Ketchel. Stanley's punch landed harmlessly on Johnson. Ketchel fell as if shot by a gun. Johnson stumbled over the fallen challenger and landed by him on the canvas.

Johnson is back on his feet now as the referee counts over the unconscious "Michigan Assassin." He will not rise. He has been knocked out cold in an incredible finish.

Big Jack Johnson is still the heavyweight champion of the world. His crown may be very difficult to dislodge.

Move over Iron Man, here comes Wilbur

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Joseph Jerome McGinnity pitched for the New York Giants shortly after the turn of the century and became something of a baseball legend under the non de guerre of Iron Man McGinnity. During the 1903 and 1904 seasons he and the incomparable Christy Mathewson were a fabulous pair.

McGinnity won 31 and 35 games in those years while Matty was on his way toward superstardom with 30 and 33. But one thing McGinnity could do that Matty didn't even try. The Iron Man could pitch and win doubleheaders. Over the course of his career he achieved it five times, a record.

Many years ago Lefty Gomez brought his new bride to Yankee Stadium to see her first ball game and he was particularly distressed when she saw him lose a heartbreaker, 1-0. She tried to console him afterwards.

WILBUR WOOD
'Iron Man who?'

"Cheer up, honey," she said. "You'll beat them tomorrow."

"Tomorrow?" he snorted. "Who do you think you married — Iron Man McGinnity?"

Once again the hallowed name of Iron Man McGinnity is being dusted off and returned to public consciousness. The other night Wilbur Wood of the Chicago White Sox stepped on the mound for the resumption of a game with Cleveland that had been suspended after 16 innings with the score tied. He won it in the 21st inning, rested briefly and than pitched a complete second game. In all he worked 14 innings and allowed a mere six hits as he achieved two victories in the same night.

But the figure that bowled over experts and inexperts alike was the number 13. It represented Wood's victory total at the time and three-quarters of the season still lies ahead. If the left-handed knuckle-baller were to sustain the same giddy pace for the rest of the way — it's impossible, folks — he would become a 52-game winner. The last 30-gamer was Denny McLain (with 31) in 1968, the last 40-gamer was Ed Walsh in 1908 and off in the distance somewhere is Ol' Hoss Radbourne with 60 in 1884 when the rules were different.

It almost seemed silly to waste time on such an astonishing projection. But Wood is an astonishing pitcher. He defies all accepted theories anyway. First of all he doesn't look like a pitcher. He looks more like a bartender. He seems soft and he throws soft. He's a 200-pound 6-footer with blue eyes, a receding hairline and a pot belly. He's 31 years old and was a journeyman of no distinction during seven seasons in the minors.

Both the Pirates and Red Sox had taken looks at him. Neither was impressed. But when he joined the White Sox at the Sarasota training camp in 1967 as an apprentice member of their relief corps, the fates smiled on him. The squad leader in the bull pen was Hoyt Wilhelm, who still was to be throwing his knuckle ball in the big leagues at the age of 49.

Wilhelm taught Wood everything he knew about the knuckler, the most esoteric of all pitches, and the left-hander became an artist as a relief operative. When the perceptive Johnny Sain, perhaps the best of all pitching coaches, joined the White Sox in 1971, he switched Wilbur to a starting role and produced a 22-game winner. Last year he was a 24-game winner. This year? The total could be fantastic. Not for a moment, though, has Wood ever forgotten who pointed him along the road to greatness.

When he reached the 20-game goal for the first time, he doffed his hat and bowed low in the proper direction.

"Thank you, Hoyt Wilhelm," he said.

Because there is little wear and tear on the arm in throwing the knuckler, Wood doesn't need as much rest or spacing as does the average pitcher. Last year he pitched 25 games with only two days off and Wood seems to have the rubber arm that goes with being a master of the flutter ball. He had thrown it off and on — mostly off — since junior high school in Cambridge, Mass. It was Wilhelm who convinced him he should throw it 80 per cent of the time.

"When I first met up with Hoyt," Wood once told me, "I had all the questions but he was the only one who had all the answers."

Sorry, Wilbur. That's nonsense. No knuckleballer has all the answers. The pitch is so unpredictable as it dances in the general area of the plate that no one knows whether it will move in or out, up or down. The pitcher doesn't know. Neither does the catcher and least of all the batter.

"I aim for the heart of the plate, belt high," says Wood in self-contradiction, "and hope for the best."

There's no such thing as the classic "pinpoint control" for a knuckleballer. But Wood is far more on target than most, with control sharp enough to hold his walks to well under two a game. He works so often and well that he pitched 377 innings last year, the highest in his league since Ed Walsh worked 393 in 1912.

But back in 1903 a National League record of 434 innings was set by — who else could it be? — Iron Man McGinnity.

Ms. Evert, Court in net finals

PARIS (UPI) — Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Australia's Margaret Court won their semifinal matches Saturday in the $135,000 French Open tennis championships to advance to the women's singles finals, setting up the pairing expected before the tournament.

In men's singles action, Tom Gorman of Seattle advanced to the semifinal round where he will meet Romania's Ilie Nastase, the men's second seed.

Miss Evert, 18, easily vanquished Francoise Durr of France, the 1967 champion, 6-0, 6-1, needing only 37 minutes to complete her victory. In gaining the finals, scheduled for this afternoon, Miss Evert kept her tournament record intact of not having lost a set.

Mrs. Court downed countrywoman Evonne Goolagong, 6-3, 7-6, to reach the berth opposite Miss Evert.

Gorman defeated Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, 6-4, 7-6, 4-6, 6-1. Kodes won the men's title in 1970 and 1971 but saw Gorman win five straight games in the final set.

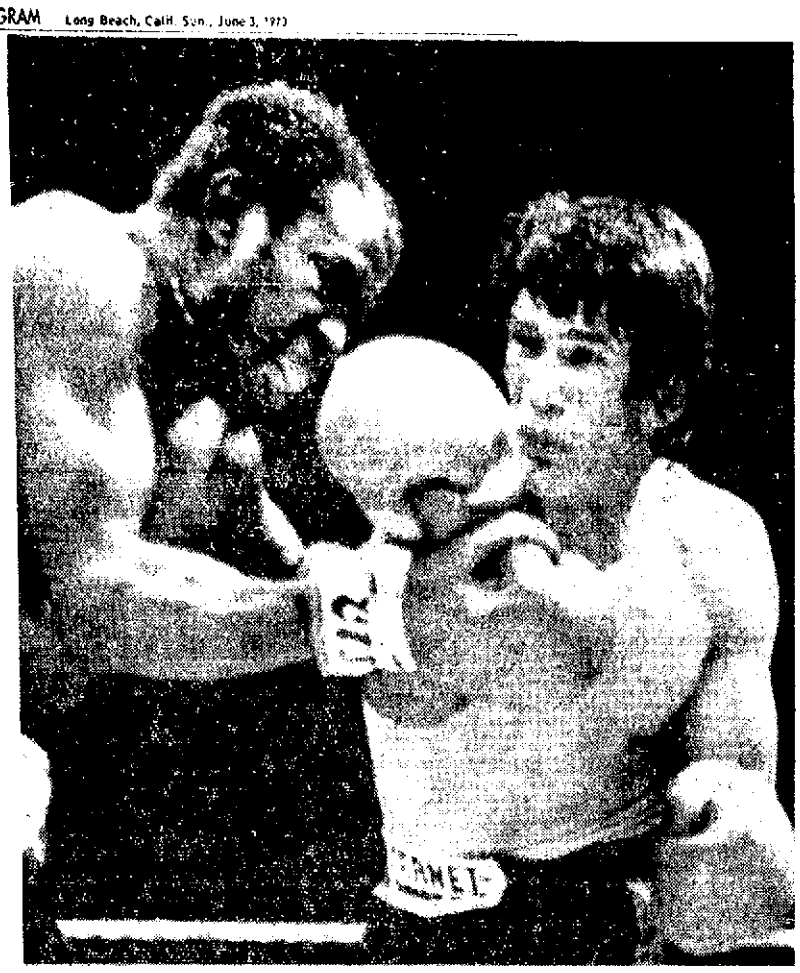

Nastase disposed of Roger Taylor of Britain, 6-0, 6-2, 7-6, to reach the semifinal berth opposite Gorman. Earlier Saturday Taylor defeated Paul Gerken of East Norwalk, Conn., 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 6-7, 6-4.

In the women's doubles semifinals, Miss Durr and Betty Stove of The Netherlands combined for a 6-3, 6-4 victory over Chris and Olga Morozova of Russia, and in the final will face Mrs. Court and Britain's Virginia Wade, who defeated Mona Schallau of Iowa City, and Eugenia Birioukova of Russia, 6-1, 6-4.

In other men's singles action, Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia topped Frank Froehling of Miami, 6-2, 6-2, 6-3, in a fourth-round match. Pilic will face Paulo Bertolucci of Italy in quarterfinal play. In the other remaining quarterfinal matchup, Adriano Panatta of Italy, a 7-6, 2-6, 7-5, 7-5 victor over Bjorn Borg of Sweden in a fourth-round match, will meet Tom Okker of The Netherlands, the winner over top-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena, Friday.

Aussies log sweep

SURBITON, England (AP) — Wendy Turnbull beat U.S. Junior Champion Ann Kiyomura of San Mateo, Calif., 6-2, 6-0 and Owen Davidson took Tony Roche 4-6, 6-4, 10-8 as Australians swept the singles titles in the Surrey Lawn Tennis Championships Friday.

Lis' homer nips Tigers

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Joe Lis, who entered the game in the ninth inning as a defensive replacement for Harmon Killebrew, hit his second home run of the season in the bottom of the 10th Saturday to give the Minnesota Twins a 3-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The victory went to reliever Ken Sanders, who pitched the 10th in relief of starter Bert Blyleven, who was seeking his fifth successive win and third consecutive shutout.

Blyleven allowed 11 hits in the nine innings he worked. Woody Fryman went the distance for Detroit, his record dropping to 2-5.

Emile can't stop Monzon

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) — Carlos Monzon of Argentina retained his world middleweight boxing crown for the sixth time Saturday with a close but unanimous 15-round decision over Emile Griffith of New York.

For the 35-year-old Griffith, who held the middleweight title twice and the welterweight crown three times, it was a second unsuccessful bid to take the title from the Argentinian, who beat him in 14 rounds in Buenos Aires in 1971.

Referee Pierrot Bramhilla of Italy scored the fight 147 to 145 for Monzon and judges Raymond Balderau of France and Karl Berteet of West Germany had it 147-143 and 147-144 for the South American.

Monzon, 31, who had to run three miles Friday before weighing in at 159 pounds, collected a reported $100,000 and Griffith, who tipped the scales at 157, received $45,000.

Monzon, who never has been sent to the canvas in his pro career, improved his record to 82-3-9 while Griffith, who was taking part in his 24th — and perhaps last — world championship fight, is now 77-14-1.

Griffiths, moving in behind a left jab and using his right cross sparingly but effectively, took the early offensive. Monzon relied on his counterpunching and his right again proved the weapon which enabled him to keep the title.

Griffith clearly thought he won the fight, as did the sellout crowd of 8,000 fans in the open-air Louis II Stadium.

"I am really shocked at the decision," said the New Yorker. "I really felt I won the fight. Every punch I took off him I took easily, and he has no punch at all."

Griffith had the slight edge going into the last five rounds but his age caught up with him. He slowed down and Monzon, the more powerful boxer, took advantage, catching him with a vicious right hook in the 14th which glazed Griffith's eyes and turned his knees to rubber.

But Griffith, who has been fighting as a pro since 1958, knew how to hang on. He came inside and tied Monzon up, but it wasn't enough by then to prevent the fight from slipping away from him.

Monzon said he was "perfectly happy about the decision."

"I thought I was just about level by the 10th round but after that I was quite convinced every round was for me," he said. "In the 10th, I thought I had him knocked out but he is a very, very strong fighter — one of the hardest I have ever been in the ring against."

Monzon said he was so tired at the end that he would seriously consider retiring with the crown.

McCarver slam does it for Cardinals, 6-2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Tim McCarver hit Houston relief pitcher Fred Gladding's first pitch for a grand slam home run Saturday night, capping a five-run eighth-inning rally that lifted the streaking St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-2 victory over the Astros.

Ted Sizemore ignited the uprising by drawing a one-out walk from reliever Jim York and Ted Simmons' two-out double scored pinch runner Dwain Anderson with the tying run. After an intentional walk and an infield hit filled the bases, McCarver batted for Ken Reitz and Gladding replaced York. McCarver slammed the first offering into the right field seats for his first home run of the season and fifth career grand slan.

It was the 10th victory in the last 11 games for the Cards while the third-place Astros dropped 4½ games behind San Francisco in the National League West.

Campaneris, Tenace back Hunter's 3-hitter

BOSTON (AP) — Bert Campaneris scored the tie-breaking run on a passed ball in the sixth inning and Gene Tenace homered in the seventh while Catfish Hunter pitched Oakland to a three-hit 3-1 victory over Boston Saturday night.

Campaneris opened the sixth with an infield hit off loser Bill Lee, 5-2, was sacrificed to second and took third on Sal Bando's long fly ball. He then raced home when a pitch eluded catcher Carlton Fisk.

Tenace drilled his 10th home run of the season into the left field screen to provide Hunter with an insurance run an inning later.

Rip Diablos, 13-6

Troy going to Omaha again

USC exploded for 19 hits including four home runs Saturday to rip Cal State Los Angeles, 13-6, to capture the NCAA District 8 championship and earn the right to defend its College World Series title in Omaha beginning next weekend.

The Trojans meet Harvard, winner of the District 1 championship in first-round action in Omaha next Saturday.

Shortstop Roy Smalley was the hitting star for the Trojans with four hits including two home runs (one right-handed, one left-handed), a double, three runs scored and four runs batted in.

Earlier in the week Trojan coach Rod Dedeaux had nominated Smalley for all-America honors calling him "the outstanding player on the Pacific Coast."

Smalley had a home run and triple in four at bats in Friday's 4-3 Trojan win in the first game of the best two-out-of-three game series.

A three-run Smalley homerun highlighted a five-run second inning for USC. That lead was quickly wiped out when Manny Estrada of the Diablos hit a two-run homer and Clyde Freeman a three-run triple in the home half of the second.

Terry Bulling's solo homer in the third made it 6-5 for Cal State and then the big Trojan bats went to work.

Rich Dauer blasted his 11th home run with two aboard in the fourth for the Trojans to make it 8-6.

Daryl Arenstein homered (his 8th) with Fred Lynn on in the fifth for two more USC runs and Smalley followed with his second homerun of the day, pushing the count to 11-6.

Dauer drove in single runs in the seventh (on a sacrifice fly) and ninth (on a single) to run the margin to 13-6.

The four home runs by the Trojans increased their season total to 61, establishing an NCAA single-season home run record. The old mark was 60 set by the 1970 Trojans.

USC is now 46-11 for the season while Cal State L.A., winner of the PCAA title, closed its year at 31-20.

Lefthander Jeff Reinke (2-0) picked up the win in relief. He replaced starter Mark Barr in the fourth and allowed just one hit the rest of the way, fanning five.

Brewers clip Chisox

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Ellie Rodriguez drove in three runs including the winning run in the 13th inning to give the Milwaukee Brewers a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox Saturday afternoon.

The score was tied 2-2 when George Scott walked to open the 13th. John Briggs' sacrifice moved him to second but he was out at the plate attempting to score on Ollie Brown's single. Brown went to second on the throw and was replaced by pinch-runner Bob Heise. Cy Acosta came on in relief for the White Sox and Rodriguez hit his first pitch to score Heise.

Rodriguez drove in the Brewers' first two runs in the sixth with a bases loaded single and two out.

Kirby cuts string Padres blank Mets

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Clay Kirby turned in his first complete game since August 5th last year and Ivan Murrell contributed his first home run since Aug. 29, 1971 as San Diego blanked New York for the second night in a row, 3-0, Saturday.

The shutout stretched the Mets' scoreless innings to 21.

Kirby hadn't won a game since opening day and his start was his first in a month.

Kirby, who took an ERA of 7.03 into the game, set down the Mets on five hits and struck out four.

San Diego got only five hits off George Stone, but bunched them in the third and fourth innings when they posted all the runs.

The Padres got their first run in the third on a single by Rich Morales, Kirby's sacrifice and Enzo Hernandez's double over third base.

Giants' 16-hit attack subdues Phils, 11-7

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tito Fuentes and Bobby Bonds ripped three hits apiece Saturday, leading San Francisco to an 11-7 comeback victory over Philadelphia.

Fuentes singled home two runs in the sixth inning to give the Giants the lead for good. San Francisco added three wrapup runs in the eighth, one coming on Bonds' 12th homer of the season.

The Giants, winners of six of their last seven games to lead the National League West, collected 16 hits off five Philadelphia pitchers with the loss going to Jim Lonborg who gave up hits to all four batters he faced.

Fuentes singled off Lonborg with the bases loaded to drive in the tying and lead runs.

Charlie Williams, who replaced Juan Marichal in the sixth inning, was the winner. Elias Sosa picked up his third save of the year by blanking the Phils in the last three innings.

Pittsburgh win streak at six

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Dock Ellis survived a shaky seventh inning and pitched Pittsburgh to a 4-3 victory over Cincinnati Saturday.

It was the sixth consecutive victory for the streaking Pirates.

The Reds nicked Ellis for an unearned run in the first but Pittsburgh bounced back with three in their half of the inning on consecutive singles by Dave Cash and Manny Sanguillen, a double by Richie Hebner, a walk to Willie Stargell and an infield out.

The out was a line drive off Billingham's leg by Bob Robertson, which forced the pitcher to leave the game.

Pittsburgh added another run in the fourth on Milt May's RBI single.

In the Reds' seventh, Gene Locklear was hit by a pitch and Pete Rose singled. Robertson's throwing error on Joe Morgan's liner allowed one run to score and Johnny Bench's grounder delivered another but Ellis shut off the rally after that.

Cubs victors on wild pitch

CHICAGO (AP) — Jose Cardenal drove in the tying run on an infield out and then scored the winner on a wild pitch, lifting the Chicago Cubs to a 4-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves Saturday.

The Cubs were trailing, 3-2, when Glenn Beckert opened the sixth inning with a single. Billy Williams singled him to third and he scored as Cardenal forced Williams. Then Ron Santo singled Cardenal to third and the Cub outfielder scored the deciding run on a wild pitch by reliever Ron Schueler.

THERE'S NO CATCHING LEADER
Ken Still (left) lets out big 'ah' after seeing birdie try miss cup while Lanny Wadkins flings wedge in disgust. Both players fired one-under-par 71s Saturday but trail leader Tom Weiskopf by two strokes going into final round of Kemper Open in Charlotte, N.C., today.

Weiskopf streaks toward Kemper win

Combined News Services

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Streaking Tom Weiskopf rode string of three birdies to a third-round 68 and a two-stroke lead Saturday in the $200,000 Kemper Open golf tournament.

Weiskopf, who has finished 1-2 in his two previous starts, had a 54-hole total of 203, 13 under par on the hot and muggy, 7,219-yard Quail Hollow CC course.

Veteran Ken Still and the youthful Lanny Wadkins matched one-under-par 71s and were tied for second at 205 going into today's finale for the $40,000 first prize.

"I'm playing really well, putted very well and feel very confident," said Weiskopf, a tall Ohio native tied for fifth in money winnings with $81,822 on this year's tour.

"I'm looking forward to tomorrow," he said. "I'm not going to play conservative golf. "I'm playing as well as I've ever played — I'm very relaxed," Weiskopf said.

Still also had praise for Weiskopf. "Tom played a good solid round," he said. "The way he's playing he just might win the U.S. Open."

Four players, including second-round leader Leonard Thompson, were one more stroke back at 206. Also at that figure were former Masters champion Charles Coody, Memphis winner Dave Hill, and Cesar Sanudo.

Sanudo had the day's best round with a 66. Hill had a 67, Coody 70 and Thompson slipped to a one-over-par 73.

Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer each had a 71 and remained well back in the pack, Trevino at 210 and Palmer nine strokes off the lead at 212.

Defending champion Doug Sanders had to withdraw because of illness.

At one time, during the hot afternoon, Thompson, Wadkins, Still and Weiskopf all shared the lead at 11-under-par.

Big Tom solved that problem with a string of three consecutive birdies beginning on the 14th hole.

He wedged to 15 feet there and sank the putt. Another 15-footer on the next hole also went in for a birdie. He followed that with a punched wedge only two feet from the hole.

It appeared as if he might take a three-stroke lead but made his only bogey of the day on the 18th when he hit a flyer out of the rough, missed the green, and failed on a five-foot putt.

His first two birdies came on par fives. He reached the fifth with a wood second shot and hit a wedge to within two feet on the 10th.

Cycle racer killed at Man

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (AP) — John Clarke of Britain was killed Saturday when his motorcycle struck a wall during the first race of the 1973 Isle of Man Speed Week.

Clarke, riding a 250 CC Suzuki, died instantly after hitting a wall on the first lap of the classic Tourist Trophy motorcycle series, officials said.

The race was boycotted this year by many top riders, who claimed the event, which dates back to 1911, was too dangerous.

3 tied for ladies golf lead

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Skies cleared and three players tied for the lead after 36 holes Saturday in the rain-shortened Sealy-Faberge Ladies' Golf Classic.

Tied at 143 on the par 73, 6225-yard Desert Inn Country Club course were Bonnie Bryant, Sandra Haynie and Kathy Cornelius.

Only one stroke back in the LPGA event, shortened to 54 holes after Thursday's opening round was washed out by rain, was defending champion Betty Burfeindt.

Tied at 145 were Donna Caponi Young, Chako Higuchi, Judy Rankin, Carol Mann and first-round leader Mary Mills.

At even par 146 were Judy Kimball and Betsy Rawls.

The $100,000 tournament concludes today with the field of 56 professionals playing the final round with a celebrity-filled pro-am field. The winner gets $25,000 and a new car.

A former champion softball player, Miss Bryant of Oakland shot a 71 to go with her first-day 72.

Miss Bryant, the only left-hander on the women's tour, was four under par through 14 holes but bogeyed two of the last four holes to fall back into the three-way tie.

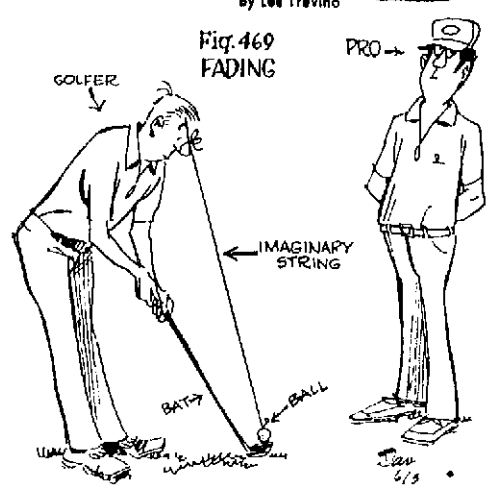

Mrs. Cornelius, of Litchfield Park, Ariz., made par on every hole except the par four sixth hole where she made a four-foot putt for her only birdie of the day.

Miss Haynie, second after an opening round 70, struggled to a 73, having to make a birdie on the par-5 18th hole to gain a share of the lead.

Miss Burfeindt had the best round of the day with a 70, including seven birdies but the Palm Springs pro also had four bogies.

Aid, as in fade

As a directional aid, the intentional fade will keep you out of more trouble than an early curfew. And it's one of golf's simplest shots.

Some guys call a fade a rinkydink slice. Maybe so, but it made Ben Hogan the deadliest shotmaker of all. (And it's bought the Mex a lot of frijoles, too.)

The beauty of a fade is that it doesn't hunt trouble like a hook. You can keep the ball in play. You won't spend as much time in the hollyhocks.

TO HIT a fade, pretend at address that a string runs from your nose to the ball. As you uncoil on the downswing, accelerate your legs. Try to make the right knee pass the line of imaginary string ahead of your hands.

The faster your legs go through on the downswing, the more the hands will lag behind. If the hands come in too fast, you'll duck hook, which is about as funny as a migraine.

Drag the club through the hitting area in one motion. Don't snap the hands or turn them over at the bottom. A sensation of the left hand pulling down is automatic. And so is a better scorecard.

JACKLIN LEADS IN FRANCE

PARIS (AP) — Tony Jacklin of Britain, despite bogeys on the last two holes, took a two-stroke lead in the French Open Golf Championship Saturday after shooting a third-round par 70 over the soggy 6,644-yard Valley Course at La Boulie.

Jacklin's 210 total led countryman Peter Oosterhuis, who fired a 68 to take second place with a 212 total.

Stewart sitting on pole for Monaco Grand Prix

MONTE CARLO (AP) — Scotland's Jackie Stewart will be at the pole position when he continues pursuit of his third world championship at the Monaco Grand Prix today.

Stewart, in a Tyrell-Ford, led all qualifiers with a practice time Friday of one minute 27.5 seconds for the 1.9-mile, an average speed of 83.79 mile per hour.

Ronnie Peterson of Sweden will be along side Stewart in the front row in a JPS-Lotus.

The trials were marred by a collision Saturday between cars driven by George Follmer of Arcadia, Calif., and Italian Arturo Merzario.

Both men escaped injury, but their cars were severely damaged and might not race.

Susan's Girl surprised

Minstrel Miss raced to a surprise victory over favored Susan's Girl in the $65,000 Milady Handicap for fillies and mares at Hollywood Park Saturday and Bill Shoemaker passed the $50 million mark in career earnings by finishing third with Pallisima.

Trailing until the second turn, Minstrel Miss closed with a powerful rush to catch Susan's Girl in the stretch and drew out to win by a length.

Third place in the race was worth $9,000 and boosted the money won by Shoemaker-ridden mounts over 24 years to $50,002,292. It was another milestone in the career of the all-time riding champion, who started the day with 6,493 victories.

Jockey Donald Pierce took advantage of a 10-pound pull in weight as Minstrel Miss carried 118 pounds to 128 on Susan's Girl.

Minstrel Miss ran the 1 1/16 miles in the good time of 1:41 4-5 and paid $14.20, $4.80 and $3.00. Susan's Girl, coupled with Mainzier, returned $2.80 and $2.20 and Pallisma was worth $2.80.

The victory was worth $38,000 and boosted Minstrel Miss' earnings for the year to $98,625. It was her fourth win of the season, but only her first stakes victory this year and the second of her career.

Last year she won the Palomar Handicap at Del Mar for her initial added-money win.

Mainzier cut out a brisk early pace followed by Bird Boots while Susan's Girl laid in third position and Minstrel Miss was last in the field of six until the second turn.

There Pierce brought Minstrel Miss to the outside for her belated drive that resulted in the rich victory for the daughter of Poona II.

The Milady is the final stepping stone to the $100,000 Vanity Handicap July 7 for the distaff championship of the meeting. The second choice in the race was Convenience, which faded to fourth place in the final stages.

Crimson Saint muscular three-year-old filly who tore up the Hollywood Park turf and four male rivals in the Meteor Handicap a year ago, returns to racing after a nine-month layoff in the 1973 edition of the Meteor today.

The daughter of Crimson Satan will face nine challengers in the five-furlong Meteor — this year on the main track — under 119 pounds and Laffit Pincay. She carried 107 last season while coming within two ticks of the American record for the distance, 56 seconds.

Gunning for the $33,800 gross purse and main track mark of :56 3/5 will be — in post position order — King of the Blues, Rough Night, Projector, Fast Fellow, Crimson Saint, King of Cricket, House of Porter, Impressive Style, Goalie and I'm Ed. The winner will earn $20,300.

Highweight of that swift bunch is Dr. James Brown's Fast Fellow, with Rudy Rosales aboard under 120 pounds.

Stanford, Hoover champs

Stanford junior high's eighth grade baseball team defeated Hoover 4-1 Saturday at Blair Field for the all-City championship.

Stanford was led by the four-hit, 10-strike out performance of Terry Kassien and the hitting of Jeff Wilcott.

In the ninth-grade championships Hoover defeated Marshall 3-1. Hoover had outstanding pitching from Don Ruzek and was led in hitting by Stan Williams, who was 3-for-3.

Q-horses will run Wednesday

Many of last summer's top freshman and a few who raced exclusively during the winter quarter horse meeting are currently preparing for expected starts in the 20th running of the $75,000-added Los Alamitos Derby.

Los Alamitos will open its gates Wednesday for the 23rd year and will feature the Derby June 23 with the trials the preceding week on June 15.

Don Guerro, owned by veteran actor Robert Mitchum, and Byou Bird, a Walter Merrick-owned filly, figure to be the top contenders to replace Inky's Angel, 1972 Derby winner, as the top sophomore on the grounds.

However, Rocky Denuedo, the track's "Cinderella" horse, and Pockatu and Love Charge, a pair of local stakes winners who are making comebacks following 1972 injuries, make this one of the finest three-year-old crops to come to Los Alamitos in several years.

Don Guerro, a lightly and sometimes ineffectively raced War Chic colt last year, scored a pair of impressive triumphs recently at Bay Meadows. One of the Mitchum-owned colt's victories came in the $140,000 Golden State Derby, the sister race of Los Alamitos' Golden State Futurity.

Citation handlers like Secretariat

Associated Press

The people who handled the last Triple Crown winner 25 years ago think Secretariat is about to match the feat, but they have expected triples before — and were wrong.

Jimmy Jones, who trained Citation in 1948, and Eddie Arcaro, who rode him, believe Secretariat should have little trouble winning this week's Belmont Stakes to go with his Kentucky Derby and Preakness victories.

"The further you go toward the Triple Crown, the weaker the competition gets," Arcaro said. "There's nobody on the horizon to beat him," Jones echoed.

Mrs. Gene Markey, the owner of the late Citation, declined to speculate on Secretariat's chances, saying she usually refuses in public to assess any horses except her own Calumet Farm runners.

Neither would Mrs. Markey make any comparison between Citation and Secretariat — for the same reason.

Both Arcaro and Jones said there is no way to compare the two horses since so much has happened in racing during the quarter of a century that separates them.

It would be like comparing Joe Louis and Jack Dempsey and you know you could never do that," Jones said.

Both the former trainer and jockey predicted a Secretariat victory in the Belmont, but both said they had been fooled before.

"I thought that Canonero II was going to win it and I still think he would have if something hadn't happened to him between the Preakness and the Belmont," Arcaro said.

"I thought Majestic Prince would win it, too," he added. "And Tim Tam," Jones said.

"Tim Tam would have won the Triple Crown, but he broke a sesamoid bone in the Belmont at the five-sixteenths pole. He was a game horse, though. He still finished second," Jones said.

But back to Secretariat and the 1½-mile test that stands between the Meadow Stable color-bearer and the Triple Crown.

"I said right after the Derby that he'd win the Triple Crown," Arcaro said. "I was one of those who had thought he couldn't run a mile and a quarter, but after the Derby I decided he could run 2¼-miles if he wanted to."

Speaking by phone from Monmouth Park, where he is director of racing, Jones called Secretariat "by far the best horse this year."

"I was rather impressed with him in the Preakness, but now the question is how good the other horses are — and that won't be answered until they race some more," Jones said.

"But Secretariat is by far the best and if they keep running him, he'll be the best by farther and farther," Jones added.

What did the trainer tell Arcaro on that afternoon in 1948 when he was shooting for the Belmont and the Triple Crown with Citation?

"I just said I didn't see how anybody could beat this horse unless he fell off," Jones said.

Arcaro didn't, and Citation won.

Perhaps Lucien Laurin will give the same advice to Ron Turcotte, Secretariat's rider, before Saturday's Belmont.

U.S. RACE ROUNDUP

BELMONT — Rokeby Stable's SUMMER GUEST ($6.40), the only filly in the field, came from off the pace to win the $57,000 Bowling Green Handicap over a mile and a half on the turf. JACINTO VASQUEZ rode the winner to a 2:29 1/5 clocking, in front of RED REALITY and ASTRAY.

ARLINGTON — Florida import ELEVEN PLEASURES ($30.60) went five-wide in the stretch and charged on to win the $27,400 Pucker Up Stakes, with a 1:37 3/5 time for the mile. PRINCESS DOUBLEDAY was second and 7-5 favorite GUIDED MISSILE third.

THISTLEDOWN — SO ELEGANT ($17.40), owned by New York Yankees' owner GEORGE M. STEINBRENNER III, scored a half-length victory over GEAUGG DANCER to win the seventh running of the $21,875 North Randall Handicap. Time for the mile and 70 yards was 1:44. Odds-on favorite EMORY JAY was third.

GARDEN STATE — WINDTEX ($4.60) and MO BAY ($9.60) each scored victories in the two-division Camden Handicap on closing day. The former, ridden by MIKE HOLE, went the mile and 1/16 on turf in 1:43 4/5, while MO BAY was timed in 1:44.

CALDER — Local entrants MAJESTIC GINA ($22.60) and I'M ADORABLE ($7.60) won narrow victories in the two divisions of the $15,000-added Aspidistra Stakes. Both ran the mile on the grass in 1:36 4/5.

Negratti takes Curtice's place

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Dr. Albert E. Negratti, a much-traveled former basketball star and athletic director, was chosen Saturday as the new athletic director at the University of California at Santa Barbara.

Negratti, 53, replaces Jack Curtice, who steps down June 30. Curtice, the acid-tongued former football coach at West Texas State and later Stanford, has been ailing for some time with a heart condition.

Negratti is currently athletic director at the Merchant Marine Academy in Kings Point, N.Y. He assumes his new post July 1.

DONNELL CULPEPPER

Ecology yes, but there's a limit

Scott Johnson, who identifies himself as an 11th-grade student—he doesn't list his school or address—writes that he always thought I was a great conservationist, but that now he has serious doubts about that inasmuch as I wrote part of a column detailing how a resort owner killed a bobcat that was choking a valuable dog. Scott probably thinks now that I have grown horns.

Well, Scott, it might surprise you to know that I still think I am 100 per cent for conservation, but I draw the line at this super-environmental bit that is going around in some circles.

Cliff Johannsen, owner of the Cedar Stock Resort on Trinity Lake, was NOT hunting bobcats, and I doubt seriously that he would do that. He was in the kitchen of his resort when the cat attacked the dog, and he went out and beat it until it released the dog, which happened to be a valuable animal.

If I had been in that resort and the cat was killing my dog, I would have done the same thing. Bobcats and wildcats are certainly not on the endangered species list, but that doesn't mean that I am advocating an open season on the animals. It might surprise you to know that I have never killed any animal larger than a rabbit, and few of those. Yet that doesn't mean that I am going to draw a typewriter bead on those who hunt legal big game.

SOME BIG-GAME HUNTERS would hate me if I told them how I feel about the killing of polar bears, elephants, black bears and grizzlies just to take the head for a trophy, or the pelt for a rug.

However, Scott, if your school teacher tells you that no living animal should be killed, you had better take another look. Deer, for instance are beautiful and I, for one, wouldn't kill one unless I were in distress in the forests and had to have food, but that doesn't mean that deer should not be "harvested" properly.

If you don't understand that certain habitats can support a certain number of animals, and that those animals die off or become victims of predators it not harvested, then I think that you should go to the Department of Fish and Game, 350 Golden Shore, Long Beach, and talk to the men who have the job managing wildlife.

They are not killers but they have a terrific job to do in keeping the habitat and the wildlife in balance. They have to take all kinds of talk, a lot of it vicious, from those who don't want any living thing killed and those who would like to see all laws repealed so that they could do as they please.

You said in your note to me that the bobcat's kittens probably would starve because of Cliff Johannsen's action. Well, I think that the cat was trying to provide a rather expensive meal by killing a miniature Doberman Pinscher.

ON THE SUBJECT OF VANDALISM, and this is one of my pet hates, a reader whose name I won't divulge says that he thinks the City of Long Beach is inadvertently making vandals out of some youngsters on the west side of the city.

It seems that the old Southern Motel, situated on the east side of the Los Angeles River Flood Control Channel at Pacific Coast Highway, is being torn apart, board by board, and my informant says that it is a wonder that somebody hasn't set it afire.

The motel was abandoned and the property, I am told, belongs to the city, which sealed the front of the building but neglected to do anything about the back side of the structure.

First the windows were wrecked, and that seems to be the initial fate of any building that is abandoned or vacant for any extended period.

Now, says my informant, the kids are wrecking the place, and there are times when they congregate in the old motel. They have torn boards out of the windows, carried off doors and other pieces of wood.

My friend wonders why the city officials neglected to do anything about the back side of the building. Perhaps, as he says, it's about time that the place was dismantled and the property cleaned off. We have entirely too many eyesores in this city.

OWENS OF ILLINOIS, A MINING and refining company in Orange County, has been fined $12,440 by Judge Blair Barnett, of the South Orange County Municipal Court in Laguna Niguel for pollution of San Juan Creek and part of Dana Harbor.

The fine is one of the largest, if not the largest, ever assessed against any company for pollution of California waters. The case involved 10 instances wherein the company allowed a petroleum product to enter an otherwise unpolluted stream. Judge Barnett ordered the company to pay $999 on each count, plus an additional $2,450 in penalty assessments.

F&G Warden Don Stuckey made the discovery of the pollution last February, but the case was not settled until late in May.

Judge Barnett also placed the firm on three years' probation and ordered it to clean up the siltation and residues resulting from pollution of the creek. He also ordered the company to take steps to avoid any further pollution of San Juan Creek or any other state waters.

The cleanup work must be completed before the first rains start next fall and the Fish and Game Department will inspect the cleanup work after it is done.

The judge is to be congratulated for taking such a strong stand. His action certainly was no "slap on the wrist."

PELE
The greatest

PELE AT COLISEUM TODAY

Guadalajara will attempt to break Santos' domination of Mexican first-division teams when the two clubs clash in the Southland's international soccer season opener at 3 p.m. today at the Coliseum.

The Pele-led Santos team has recorded four consecutive wins against Mexico's top teams in Coliseum matches since 1968. The Brazil-Mexico games began in 1968 in Los Angeles when Atletico Espanol, formerly known as Necaxa Club, fell to Santos, 4-3.

Since that setback, Guadalajara lost to Santos, 2-1; Jalisco fell, 2-1, and Club America lost, 4-2. Guadalajara was first upended by Santos in Sept. 1970 at the Coliseum before more than 24,500 fans. Pele scored the winning goal with less than six minutes remaining in the match.

The match's winning goal came against Nacho Calderon, the veteran goalie of Mexico's national team. Calderon has made 45 appearances for Mexico against world-class competition. He is one of the oldest members of the Guadalajara team at 28. Calderon has been with the team since he was 16.

The Brazilian team has scored two victories against Italy's Lazio Club during its current United States tour.

In today's 1 p.m. preliminary match, the Hollywood Kickers of the Greater Los Angeles Soccer League face Pacific League's Phoenix Club. Two womens soccer teams meet in an 11 a.m. match.

ANSWERS TO QUIZ

1. Belmont Stakes, inaugurated in 1867. The Preakness was run for the first time in 1873, the Kentucky Derby for the first time in 1875.

2. Belmont Stakes, 1½ miles. The Derby is 1¼ miles, the Preakness a mile and three sixteenths.

3. Whirlaway, 1941.

4. Swaps. (Note: This somewhat misleading since Swaps ran in ONLY the Kentucky Derby. He skipped both the Preakness and Belmont.)

5. Bill Hartack.

6. The eight were Sir Barton (1919), Gallant Fox (1930), Omaha (1935), War Admiral (1937), Whirlaway (1941), Count Fleet (1943), Assault (1946), Citation (1948).

7. Bee Bee Bee.

8. Canonero II.

9. Secretariat, May 5, 1973.

10. Damascus.

11. Gallant Man, 2:26 3-5

12. Three times: Swaps in 1955, Tomy Lee in 1959, Lucky Debonair in 1965.

13. Arts and Letters.

14. Gallant Fox.

15. Only one, in 1943, aboard Count Fleet.

Parsons completes 500 pack

DOVER, Del. (AP)—Benny Parsons and CooCoo Marlin turned in the best qualifying times Saturday as the field was completed for today's running of the Mason-Dixon 500 at Dover Downs International Speedway.

Parsons, who won the first leg of The Winston Cup Grand National series this year, was unable to qualify Friday while work was being completed on a new engine for his 1973 Chevrolet.

As a result, even though his qualifying speed of 130.733 miles per hour was the fifth best of the two days, he will start in the 11th row since none of the first 20 drivers could be dislodged.

Marlin, who arrived late Friday and was unable to get ready in time, toured the paved one-mile banked oval at 128.077 mph.

Last year, after qualifying third, Marlin ran in the top five for the first 200 miles of the Mason-Dixon, dropped to seventh after a long pit stop, and then retired from the race at 280 miles when the engine blew in his Monte Carlo.

David Pearson, who has won five races on the NASCAR circuit this year, will start at the pole position today after qualifying Friday at 133.111 mph.

On the outside in the first row will be Cale Yarborough, who has won two races since returning to the circuit following two years of Indianapolis car racing. In his first appearance at Dover Downs, he qualified at 131.737 mph.

Running side by side in the second row will be Bobby Allison, who has won both Mason-Dixon races since the distance was increased to 500 miles, and Bobby Issac, the top qualifier of 1972.

CONNIE MACK DEBUT FOR L.B. CARDS

Although the season is young, the game most Connie Mack baseball fans have been waiting for will be played tonight at Blair Field, at 6, when the pre-season favorite Long Beach Cardinals meet the Douglas Jets in the first game of a doubleheader.

In the second game Coletto Ford takes on Norwalk. Coletto is 1-0 while Norwalk is 0-2.

The Cards have yet to see action because of CIF eligibility while the Jets have played three games, winning two.

MIA WIFE:

Her hope is fading...

By Alma Kirkland

"I don't want to become a professional MIA wife," said 33-year-old Carole Hanson as she poured coffee into two bright pink cups.

As if to apologize for sounding abrupt, she continued, "It would be easy. People are so nice and it's so hard to say no, but this is probably my last interview."

Six years ago today, Marine Capt. Stephen Hanson's plane was shot down over Laos. He has been missing in action since. His wife has been in the never-never land of not knowing whether he is alive or dead.

In a Memorial Day address in Hollywood preceding National Missing In Action Week which begins today, Carole said, "As I face a very uncertain future with little hope of my husband Steve's return, I am confronted so often with the comment, 'Don't you wish you had tried to stop him from going into the Marine Corps, becoming a pilot and going to Vietnam?'

"Of course, it would be easy to indulge in self pity or play the game of 'I wish I had,' but I know my husband too well for that.

"He did as military men throughout our wars have done. He did what he had to do, what he felt was right, what he was called upon to do.

"Steve believed in the South Vietnamese people and this country's desire to help them attain freedom and he knew what it was to deal with the Communists of North Vietnam.

"Far from the 'warmonger' stereotype that Jane Fonda tried to attach to our pilots in Vietnam, Steve, as our other POWs and MIAs, was a gentle, warm, feeling human being."

Recalling the speech during the interview she said, "I kind of imagine it, too, will be my last."

CAROLE HANSON deserves a rest. For her, it has been a long, agonizing war.

Remembering how it was in the beginning she said, "Todd was born two weeks after Steve went overseas in September of 1966.

"I thought at the time, 'What a terrible, terrible thing to have a baby when your husband isn't home.' Now I know there are worse things—like wives who have had to face the same thing knowing their husbands were in prison or dead.

"From the beginning, I had reason to hope. Steve had been seen alive on the ground by a Special Forces man five days after he was shot down.

"Later there were intelligence sources that indi-

PICTURED with wife Elaine and the little dog he brought back from a North Vietnamese prison camp is Lt. Cmdr. Edward Davis who said, "Like the dog, words by Carole Hanson brought hope to all the men in camp."

...but her efforts bolstered theirs

SINCE HIS release from prison, Lt. David Rehmann has been making speeches on behalf of the men who are still missing. His main concern "is that no man is left in a bamboo cage" anywhere in Vietnam. At right is Lt. Rehmann as he was being marched through the streets of Hanoi after his capture.

When Carole Hanson was interviewed on the Mike Wallace show last year, she had no idea her statements would lift the morale of an entire prisoner of war camp in North Vietnam. Following are recollections of two returning POWs:

Lt. Cmdr. Ed Davis

"In prison I made a promise in my mind that when I got out I would come to California and thank Carole Hanson," said returning POW Lt. Cmdr. Ed Davis in a telephone conversation from his home in Morristown, Pa.

"You see, the Communists supplied us with propaganda to read, most of it anti-American. But sometimes something got through the lines — a little good in all the bad. Like the little dog I brought home was something good.

"The Mike Wallace transcript turned out to be like that. Carole was on the show. I knew she was a POW wife like mine. I read the transcript and became extremely impressed by the statements she made.

"She wasn't politically dedicated. The point was that her husband was gone. She didn't know if he was alive or dead but she did know it wasn't any country club we were living in.

"Yet, despite all she said, it wasn't worth throwing in the towel — not even for her husband."

Cmdr. Davis had been in prison since 1965 and this was the spring of 1972. "I didn't realize then all the good she was doing. It was just a nice thing and it really helped my morale."

After returning to the United States he met Carole Hanson unexpectedly at Bethesda Hospital where she was visiting another prisoner, Cmdr. Jim Bell.

He gave her a cross he and another prisoner had spent two years carving out of a spoon and said, "I wore this for four years and I'd like you to have it. I know the next few months won't be easy for you."

Lt. David Rehmann

"I also saw the excerpts from the Mike Wallace show," said Lt. David Rehmann from the home of friends in San Diego.

"Most of the reading material included quotes from Time, Life and Newsweek. We realized we were reading propaganda and we knew some of the quotes were out of context but it was still pretty disgusting sitting in a dungeon in North Vietnam reading anti-American statements by Americans knocking the administration and what we were trying to do.

"Then I read this Mike Wallace show and it was really demoralizing to know that some of the wives were giving up hope. These guys were struggling in extremely frustrating conditions.

"Then, here was this quote by Carole Hanson and it was enough to boost our morale sky high. Most of the guys in the camp read it and those who didn't heard about it."

Remembering other articles, Lt. Rehmann said, "The Life Magazine story quoting Valerie Kushner made her sound like she was trying to vent her frustrations and anxieties in another direction and she didn't know what to do.

"We all laughed at the Kushner article. We were all supposed to come back homosexual or impotent. We were pretty frank about talk of sex and marriage and we had a kind of stay loose attitude because we knew the divorce rate would be there when we came home. But I think when a woman marries a military man she knows what she is getting into and here was Carole standing behind her husband.

"In essence she was saying, I don't know if my husband is alive and it doesn't matter. He would want us to do what has to be done!"

Academic success due to staff's assistance

By LINDA ZINK
Staff Writer

If you think that college is for other people or that you're too old, too ignorant or too out of touch, listen to the words of two soon-to-be graduates of Long Beach City College.

The women—both of whom returned to school after years at work or at home— admitted there was a time when they never dreamed they would be receiving associate arts degrees.

"You can't imagine what 12 years at home with the children can do to a woman," said Dolly Ash, a Harbor City resident who will be leaving LBCC this month to pursue her degree in early childhood education at California State College, Dominguez Hills.

"You lose sight of your abilities. You wonder if there's anything—outside of raising children, that is—that you can do."

Today, Mrs. Ash knows that there is plenty she can do and she attributes this change in attitude not just to herself and a lot of hard work, but to the staff and unique programming at LBCC's Women's Continuing Education Center.

"I'm quite sure I would have started back to school but I'm not so sure that I would have stuck with it had it not been for the center," Mrs. Ash explained. "I'm afraid I might have gotten frustrated or discouraged and I would have given up.

"At the center, however, I was given the support and career guidance I needed and I was able to pursue my goals with confidence."

THE WOMEN'S Continuing Education Center, now located off the main building on the Business and Technology campus, opened in the spring of 1969 to provide returning women students with an organized place to turn for help.

In addition to providing testing and career counseling, the center offers a smattering of required and elective courses scheduled in convenient block form and a three-unit, non-transferable course, College and Careers for Women.

"Taking the College and Careers class was one of the smartest things I decided to do," said Mrs. Ash, a mother of three who enrolled at the center in the fall of 1971.

"There, I was exposed to women just like myself—women who had been at home for years and were trying to make that difficult transition from the PTA and Camp Fire Girls to the more competitive world outside."

Another June graduate who got her start at the Women's Center is Katie German, a grandmother who was in the first College and Careers class offered in the spring of 1967.

"Before I took this class, I didn't have the slightest idea how a person could enroll in college, let alone graduate from it," said Mrs. German. "But through the class they made it so easy to enroll that I thought 'Why not?' and I began taking required courses such as English 1-A and history."

All along, however, Mrs. German had no intention of earning a degree. She took classes as she wished—"I loved the philosophy courses"—and at her leisure. And the units kept piling up.

"Finally, my husband told me it was silly not to graduate since I had so many units. I agreed with him. The only tough part was the science requirement, but surprisingly, I did very well."

MRS. GERMAN and Mrs. Ash are part of the largest group of Women's Center students to graduate from Long Beach City College thus far. Joining them in the informal discussion, which took place prior to a luncheon in their honor, was Jewel Cowan, a Women's Center product who chose not to graduate from LBCC but to transfer to Cal State Dominguez with 60 units towards a degree in accounting.

"Coming here made all the difference," said Mrs. Cowan, a long-time friend of Mrs. Ash's who also enrolled at the center in the fall of 1971. "It was like a security blanket, I guess. It gave me the faith in myself that I needed."

Like Mrs. Ash and Mrs. German, Mrs. Cowan made a special point of commending the friendly atmosphere at the center and the helpfulness of the staff. They agreed that they needed this kind of enthusiasm and encouragement.

"When I started here I really had no idea what I wanted to do with my life but I knew that I had to find something to fill the void once my children are gone," said Mrs. Cowan, whose children are both in their teens.

"Now I have a definite goal and I give much of the credit to the help I got here."

SOCIALLY SPEAKING

Cross-country move is party inspiration

TAKES FOUR PEOPLE to lift the giant goodbye gift for Ron and Pat Wilkinson, at right. Helpers are farewell party hosts Carolyn and Bill Steuber.

By CAROLYN McDOWELL

It was quite a continental party.

Continental, in this case, meaning a farewell party for Ron and Pat Wilkinson with a cross-country menu.

Bill and Carolyn Steuber engineered the potluck and so many of the Wilkinsons' good friends wanted to come, they had to borrow the Los Cerritos home of Bill's parents, Harold and Gay.

Maxine Broker spent a week thinking and a week making the card table-sized centerpiece in the accompanying picture. It is not exactly an accurate relief map but it represents a lot of sightseeing across the country.

Kay Berg spent equal time collecting appropriate snapshots from all of the guests and making them into a memory collage to give to Ron and Pat.

The Wilkinsons will leave in a week or two for a new home in Andover, Mass., where Ron has been transferred by Raytheon.

Rod Stover concoted the most memorable dish. Eggplant stuffed with oysters. Wife Liz swears she didn't help him.

Nancy Still brought a carrot casserole made from a secret family-type recipe.

In addition to dining, there was dancing to a danceable duo.

Diners and dancers included Lou and Van Palmer, Bob and Lucille Metcalf, Ed and Judy Rohan, Dale and Patti Carey, Don and Suzanne Wilson, Jim Searles with Pat's sister, Judy Nixon, and Bud and Bonnie Baccus.

IT'S THAT MONTH again and so here we go with some newlyweds.

Long time Long Beachers, temporarily transplanted to Oslo, Norway, are Ray and Fay Traub.

They are stopping in our town briefly after jetting to Denver to witness the wedding of their daughter, Coni, to John Peterson, son of the Willard Petersons of Upper Montclair, N.J.

Coni is a stewardess with Continental Airlines based in Denver so she chose the Galilee Baptist Church in that city for the formal ceremony.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Peterson are honeymooning in Hawaii.

JUNE SALVATORI is resting up this week from the gigantic task of being the women's convention coordinator for the recent annual meeting of the California Pharmaceutical Association and the Women's Auxiliary.

Pharmacists and their ladies worked and played at the Disneyland Hotel and Anaheim Convention Center.

Long Beach Auxiliary President Melanie Owen was there with husband, Ron. Also Dorothy Davis with husband, Gordon. (Dorothy was installed first vice president of the State Auxiliary.)

Others were Yvonne Botzbach, president-elect of the local auxiliary, Bev Cacace, Chuck and Dorothy Ryan, Don and Kjersti Wolter, Clarence and Grace Reiker, Bill and Kay Smith and Val and Marta Moore.

LOTS OF SURPRISES at the installation luncheon of Group JD of Ebell of Long Beach.

The entire membership was surprised by a birthday cake with 10 candles centering the head table at Old Ranch Country Club. Everyone had forgotten it was the group's 10th year.

Incoming chairlady, Marilyn Shirley, and outgoing chairditto, Joyce Ashcraft, joined in blowing out the candles.

Norma Marter was installing officer for Marilyn and other officers, Louise Schinnerer, Marilyn Stribley and Bobbie Thornton.

Joyce Ashcraft was surprised (I wonder if she really was surprised—they gave the same thing to the past chairman last year) with a gold charm.

June Dugmore was REALLY surprised with a group gift of a Flavia patterned baby quilt. June's blessed event will take place this summer.

THERE WAS lots of excitement in our Life/style department when staffer Dianne Smith announced that she would become Mrs. Bill Glei in a ceremony at the Fern Grotto on the island of Kauai.

More excitement when we learned that it was to be a double wedding with former Long Beacher John Curtis taking Vonnie Wittorff as his bride.

The newly wed couples have returned with tales of the Hawaiian jungles.

Such as.

Plans to fly from Honolulu to Kauai the morning of the wedding were thwarted by airplane delays so tickets had to be exchanged for a different flight and in the process, Dianne's luggage disappeared with her wedding dress in it.

Since the Grotto is accessible only by boat, a long distance call had to be made to tell the chartered launch standing by with the minister on board to stand by some more.

The airline company assured Dianne that her dress was around somewhere so they finally caught a flight to Kauai.

Dianne's suitcase was the LAST one off the last possible plane.

So the brides changed clothes and they were off to the delayed ceremony.

Meanwhile, long time friends from San Pedro, Bob and Donna McNerney, had flown ahead to surprise the couples at the ceremony. The McNerneys had been hiding in the ladies room since 10 that morning. The vows were finally exchanged at one in the afternoon.

The Gleis are at home in Long Beach.

The Curtises are at home in Hollywood.

EVEN THE SUNDAY SCHOOL tots of St. Francis Episcopal Church, Palos Verdes Estates, get into the act culminating next week with antique show and wares. Pot painters from left, Katie Martyniak, 4; Ted Simpson, 4, and Stephen Martyniak, 5, prepare for plant and flower arbor.

Antique atmosphere to attract all ages to Palos Verdes show

Persons turned on by antiques and nostalgic pieces from America, Europe and the Orient; by gourmet lunches and dinners they might never prepare themselves, and by the sight and scent of freshly baked breads and pastries will have a rare three days in June in Palos Verdes Estates.

For on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Episcopal churchwomen of St. Francis Church, Via Rosa at Palos Verdes Blvd., will present for the fifth year an antique show that draws California's top dealers to show and sell.

Some of the 28 dealers accepted on basis of reputation for distinction and high quality of collections are Country Corner Antiques, Dorothy V. Grace Antiques, Great Expectations, Ron Belkin Antiques and Tom Potter Antiques, Long Beach; Audrey's Antiques, Seal Beach; Leslie's Treasure Cove, Bellflower; The Silver Elephant, Walteria; Torrance Flowers and Antiques, Torrance, and Trader Luke, Wilmington.

A turn of the century dining room, lighted with candles and decorated with period floral centerpieces will be the setting for luncheons and dinners. One of the luncheon delicacies will be black bean soup, and St. Veronica's Guild of the parish shares the ingredients and know-how with us:

BLACK BEAN SOUP

Soak overnight two cups black beans. Drain and put beans in a kettle. Add the following and simmer all for about six hours: 12 cups water, 1 turkey carcass, ham bone and beef bones, or any one of these if you don't have them all; 1 cup celery with leaves; ½ bunch parsley; 2 carrots; 3 small onions minced; 1 clove garlic; the white part of two leeks, 3 cloves; 1 bay leaf; dash red pepper, salt to taste.

Remove soup from heat. If possible refrigerate and skim the fat. Discard bones and strain the beans through a sieve or colander or put into electric blender.

Return soup to heat and bring to simmer. If it is too thick, add some more stock or water. Correct seasonings. Add ½ cup sherry wine, thinly sliced lemon to garnish on top. Pass a bowl of sour cream.

Steaks served with a special sauce made from an old recipe will be cooked by The Friars, men chefs of the parish.

Each day of the event baker's racks will be filled with fresh breads and desserts in a setting called the harvest cupboard.

Proceeds of the antique show and attractions will benefit various social service agencies in the Los Angeles community.

Scholarships awarded

Thirteen Southland students have received more than $4,000 in scholarships during end-of-the-year presentations made by local and state organizations.

Ten art, music and theater arts students from Long Beach State University received $200 scholarships from Fine Arts Affiliates during a recent meeting held for new and outgoing members of the boards of directors.

Art students honored were Brant Holme III and William Childress for their work in ceramics, Betzi Stein, jewelry and metalsmithing; Gary Romig for illustration and Brian Coleman for sculpture.

Music department awards went to Richard Lopez, Patricia Dobiesz and Marshal Romirez. Theatre arts students receiving grants were Henry Johnson for acting-direction and Pamella Tallman for costume design and make-up.

Recipients of the awards were chosen by the chairmen of the art, music and theater arts departments at LBSU.

THE NORTH LONG BEACH Junior Women's Club honored two Millikan High School seniors during a meeting at the Jordan Hi-Teen canteen.

Judy Marie Rapport, 18, was named "Miss Teenage Citizen" by the Juniors and was presented with a $25 United States Savings bond. Her essay, "Review of an Era," will be entered in district competition where she will be eligible for a $50 savings bond.

Also honored was Karen Elizabeth Bruffey, 18, who received a $25 United States Savings bond to be applied to her nursing education. Her essay, which pertained to the nursing field, will be entered in district competition where she will be eligible for a $200 nursing scholarship.

Both scholarships are annual awards. Entries are received from all five Long Beach high schools.

SUE WILLIAMS daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Williams of Long Beach, has been named 1973 Masland Duran Cover Girl for the Los Angeles Furniture Market and will receive a $1,000 scholarship award.

Miss Williams, a junior at Long Beach City College, is now competing against cover girls from other furniture centers for cover girl honors and a $2,000 Duran scholarship.

A ONE-YEAR scholarship from the California State Scholarship and Loan Commission has gone to Michael Butterfield, 17, a senior at Warren High School in Downey.

Butterfield, who plans to study forestry and conservation, will attend Long Beach City College this fall in preparation for further study at Humboldt State College in Arcata.

President's 'brave front'

ANNE ARMSTRONG, who holds the highest position on the White House staff of any woman in history, does not fit the stereotype of the Nixon aide.

By JOHN HERBERS
(c) 1973 New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — When the White House receives a request these days for a Presidential Aide to turn out for a public forum to discuss the Watergate Case, it is not unusual that the only one with nerve enough to make the appearance is a Southern gentlewoman named Anne Legendre Armstrong.

In a sense, Mrs. Armstrong, counselor to the President, is Richard Nixon's best brave front to the public as the scandals continue to rock the White House.

While the President and his Aides have remained largely in seclusion, Mrs. Armstrong — a rather pleasant mixture of Vassar, Louisiana Creole and Texas rancher — has been on television, on college campuses, at conventions and before editors enduring the questions that Watergate evoke.

By all accounts, she handles them rather well, from the President's point of view. First she establishes her credibility with the kind of frank statements that are rare from the White House.

"This is Watergate Central," she said in conceding that a Republican fund-raiser here last week was a flop. Also, "with I don't know how many millions sitting over there (at the Committee for the Re-election of the President), this is not exactly the biggest incentive to fund solicitations. Of course it may all go up in smoke in legal fees."

Then comes the party line: "I think the President has taken all the steps necessary and proper to see that we get to the bottom of this."

MRS. ARMSTRONG, as far as anyone can determine, holds the highest position on the White House Staff of any woman in history. While there have been women Cabinet members and other officials, the staff that operates around a president has traditionally been a domain of men, not counting secretaries and other non-policy positions.

The question asked most about Mrs. Armstrong is how she penetrated the so-called "Berlin Wall," the rigid staff structure set up by H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, the White House Aides who resigned recently. Her open and independent manner did not fit the stereotype of the Nixon Aide.

She came on the staff Dec. 18 from the Republican National Committee, where she had been co-chairman for a few months, moving into a spacious office in the Western Wing where the top Aides are clustered.

White House sources said the Haldeman-Ehrlichman faction never considered Mrs. Armstrong any threat to their power. The office of counselor had been held in the past by a succession of men who somehow had lost out in the competition for the President's attention, men such as Daniel Patrick Maynihan, Robert Finch, Donald Rumsfeld, Bryce Harlow, all of whom resigned.

NOW THAT THE STAFF is being reorganized under Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., it is not clear just how Mrs. Armstrong will fit in. But it is considered likely she will go on doing the wide range of chores she has been performing — acting as liaison between the White House and the Republican Committee and party members, speaking, handling women, youth and Mexican-American affairs, and so on.

"I think we are going to have more accessibility and better relationships with Congress," she said in an interview, almost with a sense of relief. That would be more in keeping with her style.

She was born in New Orleans on Dec. 27, 1927. Her father, Armandt Legendre, was a coffee importer and a member of a French Creole family. She attended Vassar on a scholarship, got into Democratic politics and worked as a volunteer for Harry Truman in the 1948 presidential race. She was graduated Phi Beta Kappa.

A few months later, she moved to Texas on marrying Tobin Armstrong, owner of a ranch containing 18 square miles and 3,000 cattle. There she took easily to horseback riding, target shooting and fishing. Armstrong, tall and rugged, resembles John Wayne. They have five children.

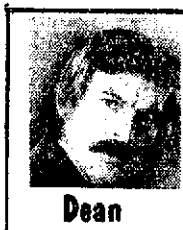

ON THE RANCH, Mrs. Armstrong began to drift into politics, doing precinct and volunteer work. She became a Republican in the first Eisenhower race of 1952 because "I was ideologically not at home in the Democratic Party." She soon became prominent in state politics and moved from there to the National Committee.

She is wrapped up in the Republican cause and believes more and more Democrats are going to be following John B. Connally into the GOP despite Watergate — "Those Democrats who don't believe in McGovern's isolationism, who don't believe in runaway spending, who don't believe in forced busing."

After 23 years on the Armstrong ranch, Mrs. Armstrong found Washington a little rushed but stimulating. She keeps an apartment here and the whole family — most of the children are in college — go back and forth between here and the ranch several times a month.

Her predominant feeling about the Watergate, she said, is one of sympathy for the White House families that have been shaken by it — "It is not a happy time because of the personal tragedies."

"I think there has been inuendo, hearsay, unproven charges," she said. "But I think the American people can sort out the facts from the fiction."

THE HAIR LINE

Dean & Josef

When we say we train our staff in every phase of beauty culture, this doesn't mean that they have to do every style our way. Quite the contrary, we train our people to achieve designs in haircutting, professional curl construction, and modern "1973" structural waving (permanent wave) and then encourage them to use this basic professional training to do their own designs.

Occasionally you might not care for a hairstyle you get and would like to try another member of the staff. Our stylists are not offended, but actually encourage you to try another's approach to your individual look.

Regardless of which stylist you choose, you will always get the best workmanship available in our salon.

AT WIT'S END

Are you sure of the facts, Ma'am?

By ERMA BOMBECK

Child psychology books call it the "Age of Independence" . . . that time in a child's life when he or she is super-critical of parents and their ideas.

I call it the Jane Fonda syndrome.

They wake up negative. They go to bed negative. And if a parent is smart he won't turn his back on them. You get the feeling if you asked them what they wanted to be if you allowed them to grow up they'd pick "orphan."

It's hard to pin down the exact moment when mother, a warm, plump symbol of apple pie and Geritol, wakes up one morning and discovers she is the Viet Cong in white anklets. But from that moment on, you can't do or say anything right.

IN ONE DAY alone last week I racked up the following sins:

"You spoke to me in front of my friends."

"You think you know everything because you watch Jeopardy."

"You don't like my friend, Malcolm, because he goes barefoot in the winter."

"If you gave me the bike, I have every right to sell it."

"You think because he's little, he's perfect."

"You used my deodorant and it's personal."

"Boy, you don't even know how to shrink jeans yet."

"People who lose their car keys all the time shouldn't be allowed a license."

"You sneak up on me on the phone so you can hear."

THE SINS I could absorb. It's the constant contradictions and interruptions that plague me. As I reported the other morning at breakfast, "I saw an amusing thing at the supermarket . . ."

"You always say amusing," whined a voice. "Isn't anything just plain funny anymore?"

"Anyway," I started again, "I saw the fattest man ever . . . weighed about 300 pounds."

"The fattest man according to record weighed 568 pounds and was buried in a piano box," said the interruption.

"Anyway, he got stuck in the turnstile . . ."

"I'm sure," said the voice belligerently.

"Are you saying I'm not telling the truth?"

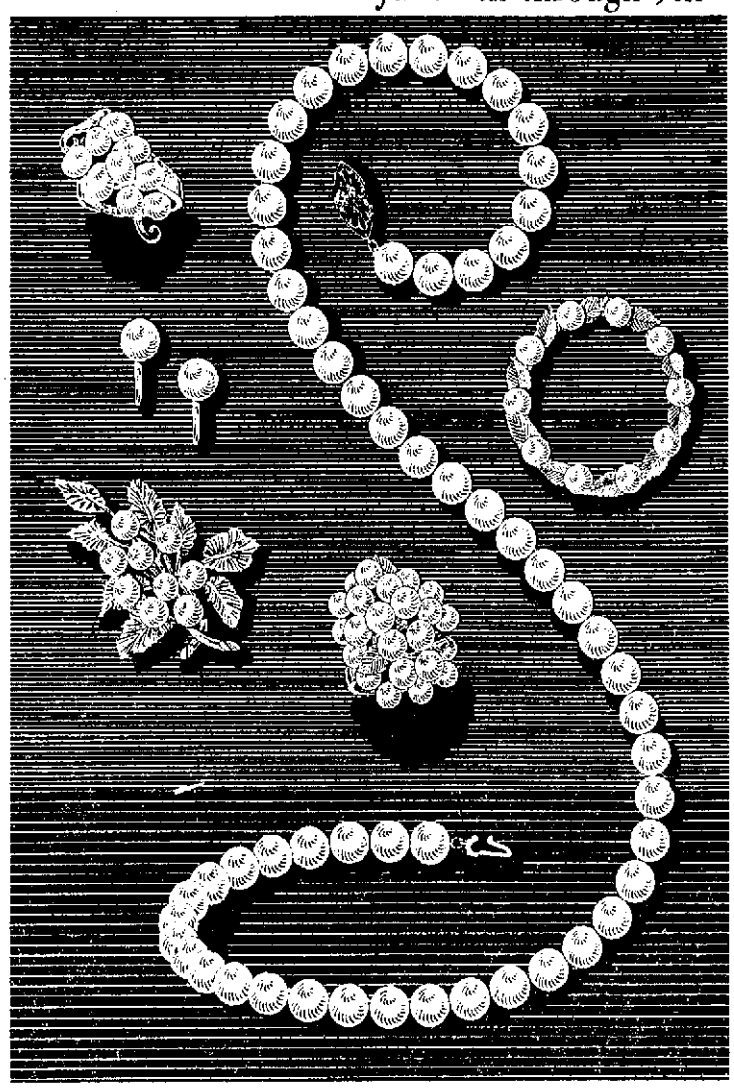

"I'm saying if he saw the turnstile and weighed 300 pounds he wouldn't have been stupid enough to go into it in the first place."

"Look," I said heatedly, "I am sick and tired of having you disagree everytime I open my mouth. You contradict me with every sentence, protest every remark and dispute my every word. You wouldn't believe me if I told you Wednesday followed Tuesday!"

"Where did you hear that?" he asked cocking his head.

cated he had been taken prisoner. I also identified him in a propaganda photo taken in North Vietnam."

Asked if she had second thoughts about the picture today she said, "I suppose it could be someone else but I still think it is Steve."

During those first two years, government policy on prisoners of war was silence. "I didn't know women who lived ten miles from me who were wives of POWs and MIAs," said Carole.

Before the lid of silence was lifted, she began speaking before local organizations. "I brought the story of Steve's plight before the public. I'll never forget how it was received by the Marine Corps. I wasn't too popular. Generally the services were advising wives to refrain from public attention."

But the movement to be heard was non-stop and in May of 1969, the government changed its public policy. "I believe this was due to pressure from the families."

IN THE MEANTIME, wives were becoming more and more active. "I designed the first bumper sticker and went all over the neighborhood getting votes on the best slogan. Finally we decided on 'Mias POWs — Don't Let Them Be Forgotten."

"I remember taking an armload of them to a luncheon on the Los Angeles Air Force Station and had to pass them out in the ladies room because a colonel frowned on the use of bumper stickers," she laughed.

About this time, Mrs. Sybil Stockdale, whose husband, Navy Capt. James Stockdale, was a POW, began to organize the National League of Families of POWs and MIAs.

Carole was a member of the ad hoc committee to organize the League and was speaking before any group that asked in those early days.

"Some of the wives were afraid to speak out publicly. One asked me to take a speaking engagement for her as she was afraid it would be used against her husband in prison."

"In the fall of 1969, Bob Frishman told about the treatment of prisoners and it corroborated what we were saying."

Also in 1969, Carole took a trip around the world accompanied by other Family members, meeting high level government people.

"From then on the speaking snowballed. I can still picture myself with a projector under one arm and bumper stickers under the other. Sometimes I wonder how I did it."

BY THE FALL of 1971, Carole was elected chairman of the League of Families. From appearances before local service groups she suddenly was in demand for nationwide television talk shows and magazine interviews.

"I was still speaking — sometimes 20 times a week as well as traveling back and forth to Washington, D.C., two or three times a month.

During television appearances she tried to clear up misconceptions about the war in Vietnam. "The hardest thing to get across is that North Vietnam controlled the whole thing — Laos, Cambodia, South Vietnam.

"I couldn't believe it when the prisoners were coming home, the news media would talk about POWs who were brought up from the South or from Laos to be released. I wanted to scream, 'It's not true!'

"Actually, they all were held in various prisons in North Vietnam except for 12 who were brought up from the Delta."

In January of 1972, she went to Europe on behalf of the League. The day she came home we were asked to appear on the Mike Wallace show.

"I considered not doing the show. My concern was with Todd — the trip was hard on him."

But Carole did go and it turned out to be her most far-reaching public appearance. "All I remember about it now is that I was one of six wives on the show. I was distressed because I was the only one supportive of our government's actions in Vietnam," support which continues to this day.

SOMEHOW a transcript of the show wound up in a prison camp in North Vietnam. "I'm sure they left my statements in on purpose. Five to one is a very unbalanced viewpoint."

"I never anticipated the response of the Prisoners when they came home. Ninety per cent approached me at the White House reception for the POWs last week.

"They said so many good things like, 'You'll never know how many times your name was tapped out on the prison walls.' And one man came up with his arms outstretched and said, 'I vowed two years ago this is something I had to do, and gave me a big bear hug.'"

Carole described this last trip to the White House as "a bitter-sweet experience for me." It also was a reminder that Capt. Steve Hanson's name was not on the official Prisoner of War list.

She remembers those final hours of waiting. "The call came through at 6 o'clock on Jan. 27. I had talked to Todd and he was prepared. After the call I told him, "Daddy is not coming home.'"

But it wasn't over yet.

"I knew the phone would be ringing off the hook so I took Todd to my folks and my dad was waiting in the driveway saying the Marine Corps had been trying to call to tell me that the list wasn't complete. There were still no names from Laos."

Wearily she recalled the roller coaster emotions she experienced. "I swung back. I couldn't help it. There I was, right back where I had been. I couldn't justify not hanging on."

The following Tuesday the list from Laos was publicized — 7 out of 324 were to be returned. The roller coaster plunged once more.

SINCE THAT Tuesday, Carole has begun to accept the fact that her husband is not coming home.

"I have based my decision on people I know and trust in Washington who have inside information. These people held a lot of hope for Steve at first. That hope has dwindled.

With this acceptance has come the decision to get out of public life.

"I'm a firm believer that you have to stop every so often and reevaluate your priorities.

"At one point I believed every speech, every contact, every bumper sticker was helping Steve and the others. I would go on speaking now if it would do any good. But, what can be gained?!

"I know there will be some who are shocked to read this but I believe the machinery has been put into action to account for our men. I trust the government will do all it can to see the men are accounted for.

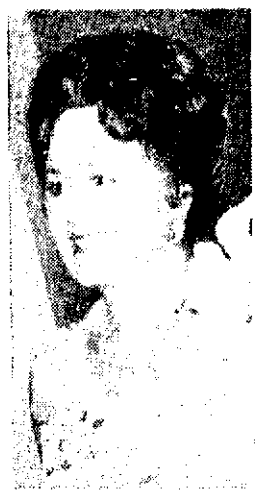

"The accounting — going back to the crash sites — will take years. The government will not wait for that determination of death.

"By the end of summer I believe Steve's status will be changed from Missing in Action to Killed in Action. That's necessary, important and final. It also forces me to make decisions about what I will do when the allotments stop."

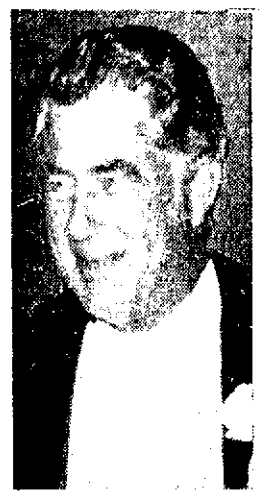

Carole has had job offers in Washington as a result of her chairmanship in the League of Families. Looking around the house she and her husband decorated together she said, wistfully, "Maybe it would be best to go away. This is Steve's house. . ."

When her husband's status is changed to KIA, Carole will have a long talk with Todd. "This is when I will cease to be Steve's wife."

With a catch in her voice she added, "None of this means I have stopped caring."

JENS A. MORLEY

Eastern Star district heralds official visit

Seven chapters of Order of the Eastern Star are anticipating the official visit Friday night of Lilas E. Haug, worthy grand matron, and Jens A. Morley, worthy grand patron.

To take place in Palos Verdes Masonic Temple, 5155 E. Pacific Coast Highway, Long Beach, the event will draw officers and members of Long Beach, Palos Verdes, Service, Searchlight, Catalina, Belmont Shore and Paramount chapters.

In charge of preparations for the official visit is Edith Pedersen, deputy grand matron and member of Paramount chapter. Approximately 140 officers and other members comprising the 77th District will participate in the event.

Rapid transit eyed by LB Voter League

Considerations regarding rapid transit in the Los Angeles area will occupy League of Women Voters of Long Beach at its final meeting of the current club year. Members, guests and those interested in attending are invited to share coffee at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the community room of Glendale Federal Savings and Loan, 5535 E. Stearns St., Los Altos Shopping Center.

At 10:30 a.m. Carol Kuiper of the Inglewood-Hawthorne League will be discussion leader and will present Lucius Collier of the Southern California Rapid Transit District. Collier will discuss plans to date of rapid transit, then answer questions.

Discussion will center upon the need for a better public transit system, commitment thus far for such a system, and if committed, what rider and community benefits should be provided, what socio-economic and environmental factors should be considered and how and how much is the public willing to pay for the system.

Zontians take time to play

A performance of "Cactus Flower" at Community Playhouse, 5021 E. Anaheim St., will be given as a benefit Thursday by Zonta Club of Long Beach. Curtain is 7:30 p.m., and tickets are $3. Tickets may be purchased at the door or from Hazel Bateman, H. C. Taylor Jewelry Co., 122 W. First St.

Poets convene

Annual party of Apollo Chapter, California Federation of Chaparral Poets, will take place Monday from 1 to 3 p.m. in Mottell's Garden Room. Guest speakers will be Sam Whitman, semanticist of Long Beach, and Helen Amestoy, librarian of Iacoboni Library, Lakewood.

Temple Israel looks to anniversary

In recognition of Temple Israel's approaching 50th anniversary, the Sisterhood is planning a "birthday countdown" at its annual fund raising event. The luncheon will take place Tuesday at 11:30 a.m. in Old Ranch Country Club, Seal Beach.

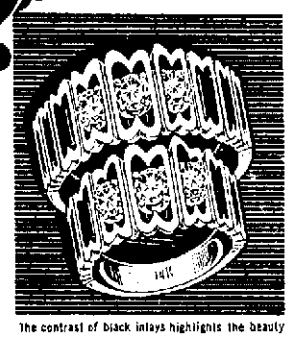

Special entertainment will be provided by Erwin Jospe, pianist and head of the Department of Fine Arts of the University of Judaism, Los Angeles. Jospe has recently returned from a year in Israel where he served as visiting professor at the Israel Academy of Music in Tel Aviv. He brought back with him a variety of music, scores, tapes and recordings of the country.

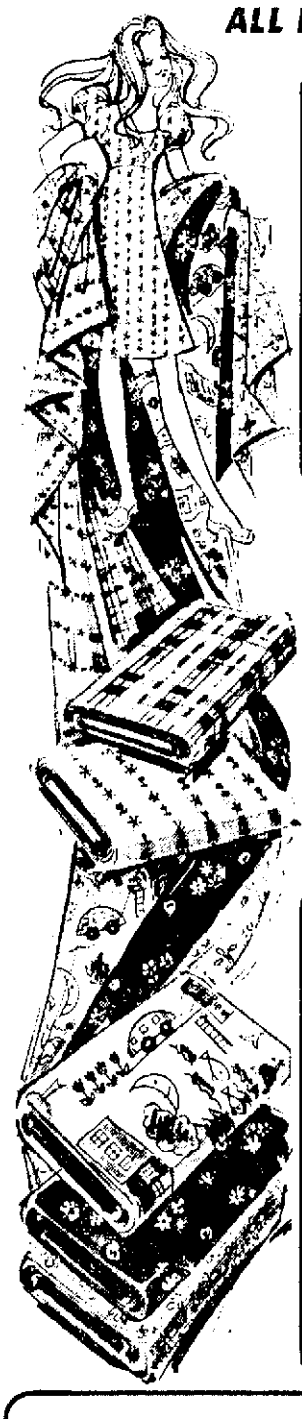

Jospe has served on the staff of the Lyric Opera Company of Chicago and as director of the opera department at Roosevelt University. He has been music director of the National Summer Institute of the Hillel Foundation since 1949.

FASCINATING FABRICS

Thread important

By FRANCES DIETRICH

You can save money by doing your own alterations of newly purchased family clothing, and by renovating or updating some of the clothes now in the closet.

In addition, you can often get great bargains by buying marked-down clothes of good styling and fabric, but poor workmanship, then resewing the seams and hem and tightening buttons.

The secret of doing the best job in this type of sewing, as well as when making clothes at home, is the right choice of thread. That little spool of thread may be the most important purchase you make. It has to hold the dress or coat together.

TRY TO MATCH the fiber in the thread as closely as possible to the fiber in the fabric. The familiar mercerized cotton thread is soft, lustrous and durable with a low stretch factor, which makes it ideal for woven fabric of 100 per cent cotton, linen or rayon. However, its nonstretch characteristic makes it unsuitable for knits of any kind. Knits need stretchability built into the seams.

In addition, all cotton thread has a slight shrinkage factor that parallels that of cotton, linen and rayon. It may cause seams to pucker, when used in permanent press fabrics, where the polyester does not have the same degree of shrinkage.

Fabrics of man-made fibers make special demands on thread. A thread is needed which will work with the ease of cotton, but have more elasticity and strength, less shrinkage.

THREAD, which is a combination of polyester and cotton, has a center of high strength filament polyester wrapped with cotton. The cotton cover provides the softness of the natural fiber and takes the same ironing temperature of all cotton. This is particularly important in pressing seams open. This thread is suitable for permanent press fabric and other wovens, which are blends of natural and man-made fibers.

Thread, which is 100 per cent spun polyester, has even greater stretchability and is ideal for stretch wovens and knit fabrics. The long, hair-like filaments of polyester are cut into pieces resembling the lengths of cotton fiber. They are twisted together in one ply.

Then three of these plies are twisted again to form a strong thread. Finally, each tiny fiber is electronically fixed in place to stabilize the twist and reduce knotting and snarling. It was developed to build stretch and recovery into the seams of knits.

NYLON thread has as many as 68 very fine filaments bonded together without twisting to make a thread with exceptional strength, translucence, stretch and recovery. It is used mainly for nylon tricot, ski wear and stretch fabrics incorporating nylon and spandex.

Silk thread in size A fine dimension should be used for silk and wool fabric. It is also used for basting, as it will not leave an imprint during pressing. Pure silk heavy duty thread, size D, is for topstitching fabric of any fiber. As silk, by nature, is not colorfast, do not use contrasting color for topstitching a garment you may be laundering, as it may bleed or smudge.

READER SERVICE: The right choice of both thread and needle is important. Write for free information sheet, HOW TO CHOOSE THE RIGHT THREAD, by Coats and Clark. It includes chart, how to sew a smooth seam, and testing a balanced stitch. Send long, self-addressed and stamped envelope to Frances Dietrich, in care of the Independent, Press-Telegram, P.O. Box 5790, St. Louis, Mo. 63121.

The Aces on bridge

by IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

Dear Mr. Corn:

Everyone at a duplicate table said I was wrong in opening a minor with AK-J762 instead of a major with AK943. Please advise.

Puzzled
Keokuk, Iowa

Answer: With two good suits headed by the top honors, I cannot agree to bidding the five-card major before the six-card minor. The hand is strong enough to bid both suits in order of length. The only case that might prove embarrassing is when the major suit is hearts and the opponents pre-empt up to four spades before you get your second chance to bid.

Dear Mr. Corn:

Please tell us how to reach the good grand slam in hearts with these hands:

West	East
♠ A K 10 9 6 4	♠ J 8
♥ Q 10 9 4	♥ A K J 7
♦ A 9 8	♦ K Q 6
♣	♣ K Q 4 2

Missed It
Glendale, Calif.

Answer: This is not an easy hand to bid using standard methods. I play a modification of the Blackwood convention, which would simplify the problem. When answering aces with void suits, I bid as follows:

Six of a suit lower than the agreed trump suit shows one ace and a void in the suit bid.

Six of the trump suit shows one ace and a void in a suit higher ranking than the agreed trump suit.

Five no trump shows two aces and a void suit.

Using this method the grand slam could be bid aggressively via:

West	East
1 ♠	2 ♥
2 ♥	4 NT
5 NT	7 ♥

There is some risk that West doesn't hold the spade king, but the risk is a small one.

Dear Mr. Corn:

I have always thought that the first bid by responder should be as informative as possible. My partner responded one spade to my opening bid of one heart with this hand. I maintain she should have bid a more descriptive two no trump.

♠ K Q 3 2
♥ 7 6 5
♦ K J 9 2
♣ A 2

Suits or No Trumps
St. Louis, Mo.

Answer: Yours is a new twist. Most of the time I hear players complain about "bidding hogs" who bid no trumps with unsuitable hands before opener gets the chance. I agree with you that responder should make the most descriptive bid possible. However, in this particular case I think the one-spade bid is superior to the two-no-trump response. It is rarely right to bypass a good four-card major suit in favor of a no-trump bid. Responder should still have plenty of bidding space to describe the hand properly.

WHY A MAN'S SKIN IS YOUNGER AND CLEARER THAN A WOMAN'S
It's the accumulation of dead cells that causes a woman's skin to age. Men shave, thereby removing the dead cells every day. That's why if you check in the areas where men shave they have:
• NO PITTING OR BLACKHEADS
• NO WRINKLES
• NO BLOTCHING
• NO LINES OVER THE LIPS
• NO CREPEY ROUGH SKIN
Since the dead cells are removed by shaving, their complexion is clearer and younger.
Peel O Matique creme process helps remove the dead cells quickly, safely and gently. In case of prior skin disorder, please consult your physician, he knows best.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Doctor masters fixing ribs

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

"Firsts" in many fields can be credited to today's Chef of the Week, Irvin Ungar, M.D., Long Beach cardiologist since 1954.

He became associated with St. Mary's Hospital in 1955, and his record of "firsts" reads as follows: He set up the first catheterization laboratory in the Long Beach area; set up the first open heart surgery program and the first artificial kidney program in the area.

In 1969, Dr. Ungar became associated full time with the St. Mary's staff, as director of applied physiology. He still finds time to serve as director of Inhalation School at Long Beach City College.

ONE OF HIS most important and rewarding involvements, however is directing the Long Beach Emergency Mobile Care System, the popular firemen's group known as Paramedics. When you hear that siren, and the red truck arrives, you can be assured the best help in the world has arrived.

While each of you is probably familiar with this worthwhile emergency care, the following details should be of interest. On Nov. 15, 1972, a Mobile Emergency Medical Care Program was begun in the City of Long Beach. In its first weeks of operation the program spelled the difference between life and death for a number of emergency victims.

Participating in the program, which was proposed initially by the Long Beach Committee of California Regional Medical Program, are the Long Beach Fire Department and four major Long Beach hospitals: St. Mary's, Memorial, Community and Pacific. Firemen-paramedics, manning rescue vehicles, can respond from fire stations to emergency medical calls anywhere within the City of Long Beach. Communications with the base station at St. Mary's Hospital can be established at the emergency scene by means of radio or telephone.

Now, to return to our "Chef," Dr. Ungar was born and reared in Cleveland, Ohio. Graduating from that city's Case Reserve University, he interned at Western Reserve University Hospital.

Dr. Ungar first fell in love with Long Beach in 1942 when he began coming to our port as a line officer in the Navy.

HE AND HIS WIFE, Norma, whom he met at Case Western Reserve, have a daughter, Susan, 21, a physics major at UC, Berkeley, and a son, Robert, who attends Minnie Gant Elementary School.

When our "Chef" finds a stolen moment, he heads for the tennis court or the backyard barbecue which, in both cases, is mostly on the weekends. Norma says, "He's mighty good at both."

Today, he's come up with a recipe for Sweet n' sour ribs, which he has delegated to the oven. Before you start preparing them, why not jot down the Paramedic's telephone number, 436-8211, and keep it handy. Just in case.

Now, let's get to the ribs.

SWEET N' SOUR RIBS

4 pounds lean short ribs
2 onions
1 large jar sauerkraut
Brown sugar
Flavoring
Rose wine

Season short ribs with salt and pepper and brown in skillet. Place three or four small pieces of garlic in the skillet while ribs are browning. Remove ribs from skillet and place in pan (without garlic), with only a very small amount of the juice. Cover with onions that are chopped very fine. When ribs are steaming, place sauerkraut over the ribs. Cover with about 6 tablespoons of brown sugar (light). Add 1 cup water.

Simmer for about 2½ hours, covered. About 45 minutes before ribs are done, pour in a cup of Rose wine. Serves 6.

IN RUSSIAN exhibit at Los Angeles Museum of Art will be 'Portrait of Doctor Rey' by Vincent van Gogh. The oil on canvas was painted in 1889 by the Dutch artist. It is on loan from the Pushkin Museum in Moscow. Other paintings include some from the Hermitage Museum in Leningrad.

Russian Art due in L.A.

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Paintings by Matisse, Gauguin, Picasso, Cezanne, van Gogh, Monet, Renoir, Rousseau, Derain, Pissarro, Sisley, Braque, Vlaminck and Leger are in the collection of 41 Impressionist and Post-Impressionist paintings from two Russian museums that will go on view in Los Angeles June 15.

Anticipating an enormous number of viewers, Los Angeles County Museum of Art, 5905 Wilshire Blvd., will go on a seven-day schedule for the first time in its history. To permit the maximum number of people to see the paintings from the Hermitage Museum, Leningrad, and the Pushkin Museum, Moscow, the Frances and Armand Hammer Wing of the museum will be open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays. The exhibit will close July 8.

The exhibition of the works in the United States was arranged by Dr. Hammer, member of the Los Angeles Museum's board of trustees. He first became familiar with the great Russian art collections in the early 1920s when, as a young medical doctor, he went to Russia to help combat typhus in the Urals.

All but two of the 41 paintings were acquired early in this century by a pair of Muscovite art collectors whose collections were nationalized after the Revolution of 1917. They are the first Western paintings ever exhibited in the United States from Russian collections. They range from early Impressionists to the beginnings of Cubism. Soviet collections of this period are considered among the finest in the world.

Russians and Americans were the first perceptive and acquisitive patrons of Matisse, considered by many to be the finest French artist of this century, and Picasso, generally acknowledged as the greatest artist of the 20th century. Ivan Morozov and Sergei Shchukin knew these and other artists and collected their works before the artists were popular. Like the Stein family from America, the two Russians began buying Matisses and Picassos around 1905. There are seven paintings by Matisse and six by Picasso in this show.

Shchukin and Morozov intended to present their collections ultimately to the City of Moscow. However, the October Revolution of 1917 overtook them and Lenin nationalized their collections in 1918. A year later, both men left Russia.

Special lectures and programs are being planned at the museum in conjunction with this exhibition. A 28-minute film prepared by the Public Broadcasting Service with the assistance of the National Endowment for the Humanities will be shown daily in the Leo S. Bing Theater.

LAKEWOOD ARTIST GUILD has presented $100 scholarships and guild memberships to four students at local schools. Chosen for awards were Jerry Swam of Long Beach City College, Josephus Medina of Cerritos College, Michelle Mahieu of Lakewood High School and Steve Peterson of Mayfair High School.

Winners of the May Popular Vote contest for the guild were Sue Hammond, first; Ruby Balton, second; Norma Hedge, third.

WEDNESDAY, the 32nd Congressional District Republican Women, Federated, will present an art show and auction by the Robert Sills Gallery in Belmont Shore Lions Clubhouse, 5107 E. Ocean Blvd. The preview and cocktail hour will begin at 7 p.m., the auction at 8:30.

Admission is free but reservations must be made in advance by calling Mrs. T. Reed Chunn Jr., 764 Santiago Ave., or Faye Newsome, 6238 Emerald Cove Drive.

THE CITY OF HOPE will benefit, in part, from an art sale and auction Friday through next Sunday in the Art Gallery of El Camino College, 16007 Crenshaw Blvd. Original art by Picasso, Chagall, Renoir, Cezanne and Miro will be included.

Sale days will be Friday from 3 to 9 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday sale hours will be from noon to 3 p.m., at which time the auction will begin. Catalogues of auction items will be available. Patrons who cannot attend the Sunday auction may submit sealed bids Friday and Saturday for auction items.

EVERYONE in Southern California is invited to enjoy Art in the Park at Furman Park in Downey Saturday and next Sunday. Says Beverly Inman, director of the event, "Free admission — fabulous food and entertainment — and everyone who wants to do so can get in the act and become an artist for the day: painter, craftsman, musician, clown, mime, dancer or whatever."

This is the 17th Arts Unlimited event co-sponsored by the Downey Museum of Art, the City of Downey and the County of Los Angeles. The two day festivities will include exhibits of entries in the annual civic art competition as well as a variety of food and entertainment.

Furman Park in Downey is located at 10419 S. Rives Avenue, one block west of Paramount Boulevard between Firestone and Florence. Art in the Park hours will be 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days.

'Too many museums are without enough fine art'

By DUSTON HARVEY

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Art patron Norton Simon, who refers to the sale of $6.8 million worth of paintings as an "editing" of his vast collection," thinks the United States has more than enough museums.

But he doesn't believe all of them have an adequate supply of artistic masterpieces hanging on their walls.

So Simon, 66, a self-made millionaire who resigned four years ago from the huge conglomerate he founded to devote himself to education and art, is helping rectify that lack.

Instead of building his own museum, and furthering the nation's artistic "edifice complex," Simon is loaning portions of his collection for long periods on a rotating basis to selected museums across the nation.

"I started to plan a museum at the site of our corporate headquarters in Southern California," he said while walking through the California Palace of the Legion of Honor, where 63 works from his French collection are on display for at least a year.

"As things went on, I decided there were too many museums already, all with too many problems. They are too busy building up crowds, acting as travel agents and adding to their collections even if a lot of what they buy ends up in storage in the basement."

Simon also decided that the $1 million or so a year it would take to maintain a museum could be better spent acquiring art works.

He built up two public collections, belonging to Norton Simon, Inc., Museum of Art and the Norton Simon Foundation, and a personal collection renowned for its works by Impressionists, Post-Impressionists and early 20th century artists.

Simon, a native of Portland, Ore., who graduated from the University of California, built a small food packing plant into Norton Simon, Inc., a conglomerate based in Fullerton, Calif., which includes Hunt-Wesson foods, Canada Dry Corp., McCall Printing, Publishing and Pattern Companies, Glass Containers Corp., Talent Associates, and other firms.

Several hundred works from the collections, which include the Duveen Collection purchased in its entirety in 1965 and Rembrandt's "Portrait of the Artist's Son, Titus" bought in 1965, have been loaned to major museums throughout the nation.

More recently, Simon has loaned large numbers of paintings and sculpture to already established museums for long periods of time, with the museums selecting works that augment their own collections.

"I wanted people to appreciate the art seriously and for young people . . . students . . . to study it and enjoy it," said Simon.

"The number of people who come to see an exhibit isn't as important as how they come to see it," he added.

One of Simon's conditions is that the museums work with nearby schools and universities which use the collection in their arts education programs.

"Art may be elitist in ownership, but the opportunity for people to see creativity and communication is not," insisted Simon, who was driven to the museum in a chauffeured limousine.

Simon, who is married to former actress Jennifer Jones and whose guests at the San Francisco opening included Cary Grant, Natalie Wood and Joseph Cotten, said art also is a type of "religous communication" between men.

"Art can help people look at themselves and at each other and to understand cultures different from their own," he said.

Simon, who mounted an expensive and quixotic antiwar campaign for the U.S. Senate from California in 1970, said he has been buying Southeast Asian art in recent years.

"Seeing images of other societies is a first step to communication," he said.

"You're certainly not going to do it with guns in Vietnam."

An exhibition of his Indian and Asian collection is penciled in for the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York in the fall. Other museums currently housing portions of the Simon collections under the rotation plan include Los Angeles County, Princeton University, Houston and Pasadena.

Simon, who auctioned off 47 paintings for $6.8 million on the day the San Francisco exhibit opened, said the "editing" of his collection reflected his changing tastes.

"Every work I've ever bought, I liked very much at the time I bought it."

Israeli musical Monday

To celebrate Israel's 25th anniversary, Long Beach Community Jewish Cultural Arts Committee will present the Southern California premiere of the Broadway show, "To Live Another Summer, to Pass Another Winter," Monday at 8:15 p.m. in Long Beach Jewish Community Center, 2601 Grand Ave. Tickets are on sale at the center.

The show, featuring young Israeli artists, is being presented as a benefit for Project Outreach, a service to the Jewish elderly poor in this area.

The rock musical traces the history of Israel from the time of Noah to the present. One song that receives ovations is the sardonic "Sorry We Won It." Hanan Goldblatt provides a dramatic moment in "Boy With the Fiddle."

The touring company includes these members of the original cast, all of them Israelis: Goldblatt, Israeli actor and film and television star; David Krivoshei, musical arranger and conductor; Sara Golan, solo singer; Nava Harari, member of the Karomon Israeli Dancers; Gali Atari, singer and recording artist; Moshe (Goli) Goldstein, singer and actor who played the role of Berger in the Israeli production of "Hair;" and Yohai Hazani, folk singer.

Advance sale date for 'Gigi'

The box office for Lerner and Loewe's new musical stage version of "Gigi" will open at The Music Center Pavilion Monday, two weeks earlier than originally announced. The advance in date was prompted by an unusual volume of calls and inquiries to Los Angeles Civic Light Opera about availability of tickets for the new production which brings Lerner and Loewe back to the musical theater for the first time since "My Fair Lady" and "Camelot."

Opening in Los Angeles July 3, "Gigi" will remain for eight weeks only. The engagement cannot be extended because of booking commitments in Eastern cities prior to its New York opening. The new musical stars Alfred Drake, Agnes Moorehead, Maria Karnilova, Daniel Massey, and introduces England's Terese Stevens who will make her American stage debut in the title role.

SIDNEY HARTH will begin Philharmonic duties Sept. 23.

Sidney Harth appointed to Philharmonic posts

For the first time in the history of the Los Angeles Philharmonic, one musician will hold the dual posts of concertmaster and associate conductor of the orchestra.

Sidney Harth will assume both positions Sept. 23. As associate conductor, he will replace Gerhard Samuel, whose three-year contract is expiring. Samuel will teach full-time at California Institute of the Arts in Valencia, will fill a number of conducting engagements in the United States and Europe and has been commissioned to write a work to be performed by the Los Angeles Philharmonic next year.

HARTH also will take over the first chair left vacant by the resignation of David Frisina who, however, will continue to play in the first violins as concertmaster emeritus. A critically acclaimed solo violinist and a conductor of wide experience, Harth has signed a three-year contract with the Philharmonic. He comes to Los Angeles from the Carnegie-MellonUniversity where he has been the Andrew Mellon Professor of Music appointee and the head of the department of music. Philharmonic subscription audiences first will see Harth on the podium at the concerts of Feb. 7, 8 and 10, 1974. In his activities as associate conductor, he will be responsible for the Philharmonic's Campus Concerts and most of its Symphonies for Youth and in-school programs.

During his first season with the orchestra, he will be away from Los Angeles for eight to ten weeks fulfilling already conctracted solo and conducting engagements in the United States and Europe.

BORN in Cleveland in 1929, Harth graduated from the Cleveland Institute of Music where he studied with Joseph Knitzer. Before going to New York to study with Georges Enesco, he began developing the multifacets of his performing career on tours in the Midwest. In 1949, he was a 20-year-old winner of the Naumburg Award, giving a debut recital in New York's Town Hall. He became concertmaster and assistant conductor of the Louisville Orchestra in 1954, holding those posts for five years. His tenure coincided with the contemporary commissioning series endowed by the Rockefeller Foundation, and as assistant conductor he premiered some 50 new compositions, including works by such composers as Gunther Schuller and Mel Powell.

From Louisville, Harth went to the Chicago Symphony, serving as concertmaster under Fritz Reiner from 1959 to 1963.

DEAR ABBY

X-rateds attract women, too

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Since this is anything but complimentary to women I'm sure you won't print it, but I'll write anyway.

When an X-rated movie comes to town, the women flock to see it in droves. Many come by themselves. I'm not referring to just mildly pornographic films, I'm talking about the really rough ones which leave nothing to the imagination.

I've attended such movies and I notice the women's reactions are no different than the men's. Occasionally someone will walk out before the end of the film, but strangely enough, it's the women who usually stay until the very end. How do you feel about such movies?

I have always heard and read that women are not turned on by the visual the way men are. If that's true, what are they doing there?

Care to comment?

MADE MY POINT

DEAR MADE: So you've made your point; the point being that you suspect that women are just as "turned on" by the visual as the men are. Could be. But most people flock to X-rated movies (at least once) because they are curious — not necessarily because they want to be "turned on." And if the morals squad would just ignore them instead of staging raids, confiscating film, and arresting exhibitors and patrons, thereby giving these trashy movies millions of dollars worth of free advertising in the press, they would die a slow death.

DEAR ABBY: My husband took me to a company party where there was an orchestra for dancing. We didn't even have one dance when my husband left me, saying he'd be back in a minute. Not five minutes later I saw him out on the floor dancing with a girl. I just sat there alone and waited for him.

After what seemed like forever my husband came back and said one of the executives asked him to please dance with his wife because he (the executive) wanted to dance with his secretary and he didn't want to leave his wife sitting alone.

What about ME? I was left sitting alone, but that didn't seem to matter.

Abby, I love to dance, and my husband is a marvelous dancer, and there have been very few occasions where we have been able to dance, and I was really hurt.

During the evening my husband left me THREE times to ask that same lady to dance, so her husband could dance with his secretary. The secretary had a husband somewhere, but he never asked me to dance.

I told my husband when we got home I was humiliated and hurt and he said I was the only woman alive who would react that way. Am I?

ODD WOMAN OUT

DEAR ODD: Not while I'm alive.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Enjoy your trip in good health

By HERB SHANNON
I.P-T Travel Editor

Having just learned a few basic principles of preventive medicine the hard way, I pass along the benefit of this education to those who may now be planning vacation trips far from the friendly family physician and dentist.

Anyone who has suffered the pangs of Montezuma's Revenge or cracked a tooth on an airline cocktail tidbit or ignored instructions to get certain inoculations beforehand knows how a happy holiday can turn into a torture tour.

Since I managed to combine all three of the above problems on a recent five-day trip abroad (originally planned for nine days), I am prepared to offer expert advice in these specific cases. In addition, the lecture will include some tips on prevention of other vacation health hazards from some people who should know whereof they speak.

THE ADDITIONAL words of wisdom are by the Council on Family Health, a public service organization sponsored by 53 medical laboratories which produce specific remedies ranging from aspirin to zolamine. The medicine manufacturers consulted practicing physicians as well as their pharmaceutical researchers to compile the information, thus following their own principal advice.

First, the matter of immunization shots. Last year U.S. Immigration & Health authorities relaxed the rule on smallpox vaccination for re-entry. Signals off this year. You may be able to come home without the official certification, but I belatedly discovered there are some countries which won't let you in for protection of their own citizens. That is one reason for the abbreviation of the recent trip.

The Council suggests checking on immunization requirements with your doctor, health department or local immigration office at least a month before a scheduled departure. Reactions to injections are often unpredictable, and some require a second shot at least two weeks after the first to be fully effective.

IMMUNIZATIONS to protect against infectious hepatitis, smallpox, cholera, yellow fever and typhoid are recommended by most physicians for travel to Asia, Africa, and parts of Mexico and South America. The Council strongly advises basic protection against tetanus, polio and diptheria, especially for children traveling. Immunizations are not required of pregnant women, provided they carry a letter from a physician for presentation where regulations may exist.

There isn't much you can do except ride it out if diarrhea and nausea strike at 30,000 feet midway in a 5,000-mile nonstop flight. But there are things you can do and shouldn't do if the hint comes at a more convenient time, say at daybreak in a comfortable hotel room with help at hand.

I DID BOTH, third day, same trip. At the first twinges, I started popping borrowed prescription pills like peanuts. Then I decided to chance a programed bus tour of the mountain hinterlands, which turned out to be a 12-hour roller-coaster ride with only three merciful pit stops.

If you are not familiar with the local sanitary standards, don't drink or brush your teeth with tapwater, the Council advises, and regard ice cubes with extreme suspicion. (Now they tell me.) Substitute bottled water or soda. To avoid contaminated food, forget uncooked vegetables and salads, request well-done meats and peel fresh fruit yourself.

Consult the doctor about medications to take along. The supply should be sufficient to last the duration of the trip, plus a few extra prescriptions for your wallet, in case luggage is lost or delayed en route.

A SIMPLE , first-aid kit recommended by the Council for traveling includes a thermometer, adhesive tape, stick-on bandages in various sizes, aspirin, scissors, tweezers, sterilized cotton, facial tissues, a plastic container of 70 per cent medical alcohol and a small first-aid manual.

There is no need to be a walking pharmacy, since common medications and prescription drugs are readily available in most large cities around the world, often under familiar U.S. brand names. But if you are in the process of dental renovation and faced with the possibility of temporary crowns or caps coming loose during an extended trip, an emergency repair kit may save the day.

Ask your dentist to give you a small supply of the powder and liquid he uses to make the cement for temporary installations, in separate plastic containers, along with instructions on how to mix the two to the proper consistency.

If you can keep from swallowing a loose cap, you'll find it easy to replace in a few minutes. And watch out for those metal foil-wrapped roasted almonds served by the smiling stewardess at cocktail time. Some are tougher than the raw material of the container.

Ships sail as scheduled

Princess Cruises 1973 Mexico-Hawaii cruises will depart as previously scheduled, following negotiations between the firm and the U.S. Bureau of Customs.

Both cruises, each of 17 days, will begin with a full day in Ensenada, Mex., and will then continue on to Honolulu, Nawiliwili, Lahaina, Kailua-Kona and Hilo, with disembarkation at the passengers' originating port.

The first cruise will depart Los Angeles on Aug. 27 and the second cruise will leave Oct. 11.

The Customs Bureau had been questioning whether Princess Cruises' submitted itineraries were in violation of the 1886 Jones Act, which limits the transporting of passengers between two American ports.

Fares for the Princess Italia cruise in August range between $845 and $1,935, while fares for the October sailing of the Island Princess range between $1,240 and $2,175.

If you're going to Acapulco looking for fun this summer, look no further than the Acapulco Hilton.

$30.50*

3 days, 2 nights "Do It Now" Holiday, plus round-trip air fare.

We put the Acapulco Hilton right in the middle of the best-equipped adult playground in the Americas.

We gave every room a private balcony overlooking the Bay. We removed the undertow from our huge beach. We put in a discotheque and an elegant supper club—informal dining, no jacket, no tie.

There's an Acapulco Bay cruise and a welcome cocktail party included in your "Do It Now" Holiday. Also available are tennis, fishing, horseback riding and sky sailing. Plus terrific shopping and sightseeing in the city.

For fun, there's Friday's "Night on Bora Bora" party, an excuse for a lot of carrying on. At our Saturday beach barbecue, the hardest thing you'll be doing is keeping sand out of your tequila. At Sunday's Mexican Night, there's marathon folk dancing with pretty swinging people.

Western Airlines has daily nonstop service from Los Angeles. Western's famous Fiesta Flight service gives you a choice of entrée in both First Class and Coach, plus First Class Legspace for everyone and, of course, complimentary champagne for every adult. (Confirmed space Youth Fare and Group Fares for 15 or more available.)

For details call your travel agent, Hilton Reservation Service at (213) ZE 2-2662, Western Airlines at (213) 537-4705 or ask the operator for the toll-free number.

New vacation programs set

Sitmar Cruises has announced two new air-sea cruise programs from Los Angeles for the T.S.S. FAIRWIND and T.S.S. FAIRSEA.

The 8-day, 7-night Caribbean package features a 7-day cruise aboard the T.S.S. FAIRWIND which sails 5:00 p.m. every Saturday from Port Everglades, Florida, for San Juan, St. Thomas, Santo Domingo and Port-Au-Prince. Prices from Los Angeles range from $355 to $915 (plus $6.00 port tax).

Through August 24, seven 15-day, 14-night Alaska and Canada air-sea cruises are offered aboard the T.S.S. FAIRSEA sailing from San Francisco. Ports include Vancouver, Campbell River, Ketchikan, Juneau and cruising via Skagway and Glacier Bay en route to Sitka and Victoria. Prices for the package range from $560 to $1680.

Both air-sea cruises also include round trip jet transportation on scheduled airlines, airport welcome services on the day of sailing by Sitmar Cruises' personnel and transfers with baggage and porter tips to shipside. Stopovers within 21 days of departure are available.

Passengers will be able to fly round trip from Los Angeles to Miami for only $75 above the regular cruise fare and there are no air transportation charges to passengers flying within the state to the San Francisco port of departure.

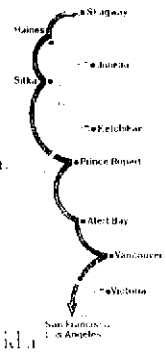

From Los Angeles, Sitmar Cruises also offers 7-day Mexico cruises to Puerto Vallarta and Mazatlan aboard the T.S.S. FAIRSEA. Prices range from $280 to $840. 14-day Mexico-Central America cruises from Los Angeles to Puerto Vallarta, Acajutla (El Salvador), Acapulco, Zihuatanejo, Mazatlan and Cabo San Lucas start at $560 to $1680.

Prices per person for the two air-sea packages, the Mexico and Mexico-Central America cruises, are based upon double occupancy and space availability and are effective now through December 15, 1973. All double rooms feature twin beds.

JOIN US THIS FALL FOR A PACIFIC VACATION: MEXICO AND THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS.

Canada & Alaska

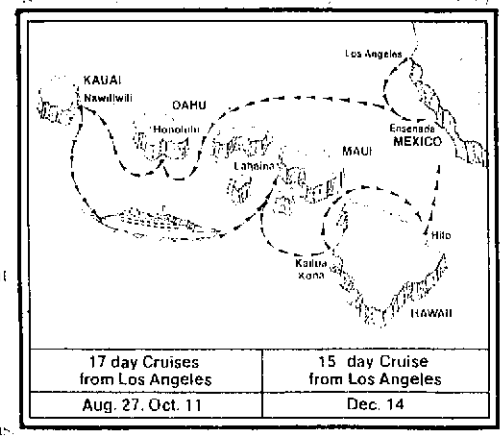

The most luxurious ships cruising to Alaska this summer are our Island Princess and Princess Italia. You sail along the spectacular Inside Passage to the Great North Country. To see more of Alaska you can add a Princess Tour to your cruise.

8 day Cruises from Vancouver	14 day Cruises from Los Angeles
June 17, 25 July 3, 11, 19, 27 Aug. 4, 12, 20, 28 Sept. 5	June 15, 29 July 13, 27 August 10

The romance of a Pacific vacation begins in Los Angeles . . . if you're on a Princess Cruise. The moment you board, you're through worrying about hectic schedules, planes to catch, constant packing and unpacking and free of the worry of hotel accommodations.

Your first port of call will be in Ensenada, Mexico, where you'll spend a full day looking for bargains and trying real Mexican food.

17 day Cruises from Los Angeles	15 day Cruise from Los Angeles
Aug. 27, Oct. 11	Dec. 14

Then your ship sails for Hawaii. And all the way there and back, you'll live like royalty, with great food, fun and dozens of activities to enjoy. You'll visit Kauai, Maui, Hawaii and Oahu, leisurely weaving through the warm waters of the Hawaiian Island chain, where you can explore in unhurried fashion many of the places you've longed to see. So see your travel agent now or mail the coupon.

Northwest Adventure

The Island Princess' maiden cruise to Canada will take you to San Francisco, Seattle, Victoria and Vancouver. You'll leave Los Angeles June 12 for a 7-day cruise/tour package that includes two nights at Vancouver's Harrison Hot Springs Hotel, then return home on Western Airlines. See your travel agent for details.

Maui prepares for Filipino celebration

Lucky the visitor to Hawaii who will be on Maui the end of June. One of the colorful events that dot the calendar-year in Hawaii is the annual Filipino Fiesta, and this year the Miss Hawaii Filipina Contest Finals, June 29, and Coronation Ball, June 30, will be held for the first time on a Neighbor Island — Maui.

The State Finals for the contest will start at 7:30 p.m. at Baldwin High School in Wailuku, while the Coronation Ball will start at 7:30 p.m. at the Maui Surf Hotel at Kaanapali.

JAPANESE-STYLE INNS ARE VERY POPULAR IN TOKYO

TRAVELING WITH DELAPLANE

A 'yen' for lower prices

By STAN DELAPLANE

TOKYO

Japan On $5 and $10 An Hour: Can't figure out how a tourist makes it in this MOST expensive city. Chinese lunch for two — three standard dishes — $40. Scotch, $3.20 a drink.

Japanese cameras in DUTY FREE stores about like U.S. (Fact, I can get a discount in U.S. and do better.) Haircut, $6.50. An XO cognac on the menu says $16!

Why? The Japanese yen has shot up. We used to get 360 to the $1. Now it's 263 — today.

Get a strong feeling that tourist business is a second class by-product. (As it is in the U.S. where Congress votes less money to tourism than Portugal.) They don't need it.

A Japanese tells me: "We spend our money selling our goods. We own the electronics market. Our Toyotas and Datsuns are better than all other foreign cars. We have made EVERY big improvement in the camera field.

"At present, Japan is third among ALL nations in production — in the Gross National Product. At current rate, by year 2000, Japan will be number one."

An American living here says gloomily: "By year 2000, Japan will own the world."

Japan builds the biggest oil tankers. Bought up enough Australian iron ore to supply all the steel the world needs for twenty years.

Staying at the plush Hotel New Otani. First Tokyo hotel to build a thousand rooms. Now there are three more. Next year, the New Otani will have TWO thousand rooms.

My room is $40 a day. In lobby, restaurants and elevators, I'd say MAJORITY of guests are Japanese.

Japanese tourists are flooding Hawaii. Most popular for Japanese honeymooners is Guam where week's stay (with air fare) costs less than honeymoon in Japan.

Best deal for Japan: Come here on an ALL EXPENSE tour. Include meals if possible. Restaurant prices are unbelievable. Went to Mon Cher Ton Ton in the gay Roppongi district. Counter service — they cook in front of you.

Brochure shows beautiful girls in evening gowns doing the steak gig. But cooks turned out to be plain Janes in cocoa brown aprons and caps — something like a chain cafeteria. Ordered scallops. Served three on a tinfoil plate: $6.

"HOW DO YOU GO INTO RED CHINA NOW THAT THE U.S. HAS BETTER RELATIONS?"

CP Air (Canadian Pacific) is flying into Shanghai and Peking in a couple of months. They should know. Presently you can make application only at Ottawa and Hong Kong. (They won't answer my letters. I thought they might send me a saying of Mao Tse Tung at least.)

Flew this one with CP Air out of Vancouver. Carries stewards — with stewardesses on the side. Stewards make a difference on overseas runs. Long time in the business. Professionals — not flying for awhile until they get married. CP Air. Qantas. BOAC. All steward-oriented lines.

". . . BEST BUYING FOR DUTY-FREE THINGS IN THE FAR EAST?"

Probably Hong Kong and Singapore. Because of the competition. Duty-free and tax free implies low prices are passed along to you. But not so. Depends on the good nature of the merchant. Which usually is made good by fact somebody next door may sell cheaper.

Example: Scotch whiskey in three free ports was selling at $3.75. He can BUY this Scotch at $1.25. HE gets it tax free and duty-free. Doesn't mean he HAS to pass it along to you. Biggest markups — outrageous markups — are in the tax free, duty-free ports of the Caribbean. Clawing mobs of ship passengers — a thousand a day — buying everything in sight.

Biggest markups apt to be in duty-free shops at airports. This is the last time around to get rid of the foreign money. And there's no competing store alongside. Monopoly is the name of the game.

ONLY way to know if you're getting a good price is to shop it at home first.

PENNYWISE TRAVELER

The tourist beware

By JANE MORSE

I have this recurring fantasy daydream in which I look out my window one not-so-beautiful day and say to myself "Hmmmm, it is not so beautiful here. I think I will shake this dreary spot and go see the bright lights of Europe." Then I walk into my bedroom, pack my perfect little all-purpose, uncrushable wardrobe in a suitcase no bigger than an attache case and saunter off to an airport.

No chance.

Unless you are really rich and or bananas, you cannot—indeed, you dare not—contemplate a trip abroad without thinking in terms of a Departure Countdown. There are just that many things that must or should be done ahead, even if you already own a perfect little wardrobe, have a wide-open selection of hotels and planes and a cast of thousands to tidy up your leavings.

NOT EVEN the rich can substitute money for the time you must allow to get a passport.

When it comes to Europe (and almost everywhere else but the Caribbean), this is the one thing you can't move without. Figure on two or three weeks for processing your application, says the U.S. Passport Office.

It might be more if you wait till peak season. Add to that whatever the gods give you in the way of postal service. Naturally you'll remember to add another 24 hours minimum to get the photos you'll need to go with your application.

What you may overlook as a novice passport applicant is the additional time it will take you to locate your birth certificate or some other acceptable proof of citizenship. If you have to write away to a state or city office for a copy of your birth record, allow at least three weeks, sometimes more. Copies of New York City birth certificates, for instance, are taking as long as four to six weeks to obtain.

SKIP EAST Europe and you don't have to worry about visas, unless you plan to stay more than three months in any one country. But there are other things to consider. For example:

—International Driver's License—You can get one in one personal visit to any AAA office (provided you remember to bring two recent photos, money and your local license).

Although an international license is now required only in Austria, Greece, Italy, Spain (if staying more than 30 days) and Turkey (and recommended for Germany), it's useful to have as identification. Printed in nine languages, it's easily understood by police.

—Credit Cards—Most of the big ones—BankAmericard, Diner's, Carte Blanche, Master Charge and National Car Rentals—have been averaging six to eight weeks for processing credit applications and mailing out cards.

American Express says it figures four to six weeks in normal periods, six to eight weeks in high season, "however, if you indicate a deadline, we'll try to meet it." Avis and Hertz estimate four and five weeks for normal applications plus whatever is added by the postal service.

— Vaccinations — You don't need a smallpox shot to get back in the United States any more, but now and again some odd disease gets loose and an inoculation becomes mandatory in one or more countries. Make inquiries and try to get any shots you need two to three weeks before takeoff to allow for possible reactions.

—Car Rentals—In high season, or if you want automatic shift or a VW bus, you're advised to make a reservation four to six weeks ahead.

—CAR PURCHASE—Depends on the manufacturer, but orders generally take four to eight weeks to fill. If you want to pick up a VW at the German factory, you can still do it on about 14 days' notice. If you want it delivered to you at your arrival point, it will take upwards of 14 days' more notice.

—Car Leasing—Figure four to six weeks ahead.

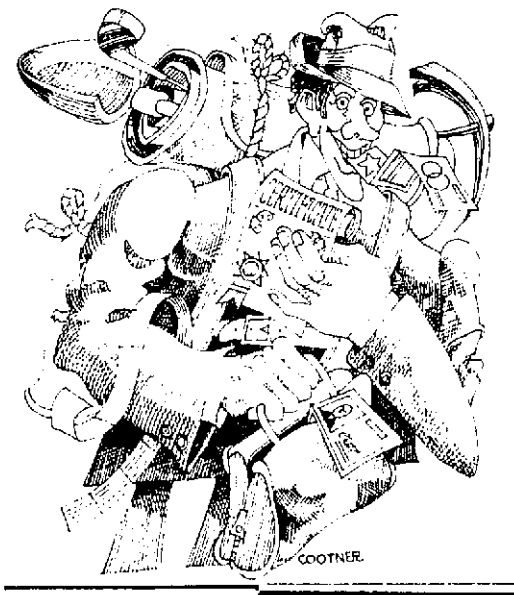

—Camping Carnet—Apply one day at AAA (with $5 and two photos) and you can generally pick up your card the next day. If you telephone for an application and then have it processed by mail, count on a week at least.

If you're not an AAA member, you'll have to join. So remember to ask for that application also and have the two forms processed at the same time. Although only a few camps insist on the carnet, it can entitle you to some useful discounts on site fees.

—Freebies and Discount Offers—Every country seems to have something like a day-on-the-house or rail and bus discount coupon plans that, if they interest you, require asking for ahead. Allow time for a double exchange of letters.

—Ferries, Hydrofoils, Helicopters—It's these little connective bits of transport that can foul you up by being fully booked just when they're essential in getting you somewhere or to something you've reserved or paid for in advance.

Make arrangements as soon as you know your plans, but don't be surprised to learn that in season, popular transportation services sell out two to twelve weeks ahead. Also remember that it takes at least a week by mail to learn if you're accepted or rejected.

National Parks

The Interior Department's National Park Service this summer will test a pilot computerized campsite reservation system in six national parks.

This year for the first time campsites may be reserved through American Express at six national parks: Yosemite in California, Yellowstone and Grand Teton in Wyoming, Everglade in Florida, Grand Canyon in Arizona and Acadia in Maine. The advance reservations will cover 4,000 of the more than 7,000 campsites in the six parks.

Micronesia

Guam, the mid-Pacific U.S. island that is the major gateway to the 2,500 scattered islands of Micronesia, is one of the fastest-growing tourist and business spots on earth, reports Continental Airlines. Ten years ago, the choicest land in downtown Agana, the island's biggest town, was appraised at $12-a-square meter. The same land today is appraised at more than $60-a-square meter. Beachfront property, if available at all, is going for more than $200,000-an-acre.

See London, Dublin Horse Show on two-week Aer Lingus vacation

One of the problems about the Dublin Horse Show in August is that during that week hotel rooms are generally at a premium; tickets for entrance to the Show are hard to come by, and no matter what party you go to, invariably the following morning you'll hear about "an even better one," from one of your friends.

To obviate all these inconveniences and put you at your ease during what is unquestionably one of the best social events of the Irish year, Aer Lingus-Irish, the Irish International Airline, and Sports Abroad (a subsidiary of Louis Fugazy Associates), have put together a vacation which gives you one week in Ireland during the Show and then off to London to unwind—with a little more of something else.

Not the least attractive part of the vacation is the price. At $765 you get round trip air travel to Dublin and London from New York; a week's accommodations at the luxurious Gresham Hotel in the centre of Dublin, venue for some of the best parties given by the various hunt clubs that come up from the country and also from overseas for the occasion. Tickets are provided to the exhibition centre as well as the jumping events at the famous show grounds in Ballsbridge.

In addition there are sightseeing tours of the City and surrounding countryside.

The second week is in London staying at the new London Tara Hotel, close to the centre of the city; with sightseeing tours of Windsor, a night at an Elizabethan Dinner, and ample time for shopping and private touring, before returning to New York.

Bob Docca, Tour Manager for the Irish carrier says that at the price this is one of the best buys of the season, pointing out that at that time of year the regular air fare alone to London would be $626.

Departure date from New York is August 5th returning from London August 19th.

Year-round cruises Mexican Riviera

Not too many years ago the Pacific Coast of Mexico was a relatively unknown area as far as travelers go. With the exception of Acapulco, only the more adventurous and inquisitive ventured to such places as Puerto Vallarta, Mazatlan and Manzanillo.

Today, these ports — known collectively as the "Mexican Riviera" — are one of the most favored vacation areas in the Western Hemisphere, attracting travelers from all over the world.

This is what Princess Cruises did. It sent ships to these ports. And for the first time, it sent ships on a year-round basis.

In sum, Princess Cruises did for the West Coast of Mexico what a number of cruise lines did some years back for the Caribbean: pioneered to make an all-year playground for everyone, not just the "beautiful people."

GAL-IVANTING

Tour uncomplicates camping

By CHORAL PEPPER

There is a superbly designed solution for the woman traveler who enjoys outdoor adventure with male companionship, but does not have a rugged man in tow to set up camps and blaze trails through back country.

Canyon Tours, Inc. of Page, Arizona has a combined water-land-air package that begins by boat on the new Lake Powell formed by Glen Canyon Dam, continues by four-wheel-drive vehicle into Monument Valley's Navajoland, and winds up returning to Page by charter plane over the remote Indian country that straddles the Utah-Arizona border. From Page, regularly scheduled Hughes Air West jets connect with all trans-continental airlines serving metropolitan airports in the West.

The tour is not unduly strenuous, but it is active. You are ready to fall-in at sundown, whether it is in a sleeping bag on a bugless, burrless, snakeless beach of Lake Powell, or at Goulding's luxurious Monument Valley Lodge. Both are on the agenda.

TOUR PARTICIPANTS are outfitted with gear and launched from Wahweap Lodge and Marina. Piloted by experienced guides, the boats skim uplake toward awesome Rainbow Bridge, the Seventh Wonder of the World, detouring along the way into sky-vaulted, fringe-straited grottos that clearly reveal why Navajos wove rust, brown, gray and black into their prayer rugs. Those are the colors of their land.

Further up the 168-mile-long lake, where canyons are less vaulted and the shoreline flattens into swirly, mocha-colored beaches, the fun of exploration begins. This is Moki country, a local name given to an unknown people whose architecture was sophisticated enough to employ solar heat and double walls filled with grass for insulation.

Before the dam raised the water level to form the lake, these cleverly concealed ruins, tucked like toy villages into steep cliffside erosions, were too lofty to be observed from canyon floors. As the lake filled, the ruins appeared one by one. Each time I have made this trip, our party has turned up something new. Once it was a previously undetected Moki ruin; another time an impressive natural arch within a short hike from shore. On a beach in this area, camp is made for the night, following a fireside steak fry.

In the morning, unless a longer time on the lake is scheduled, an air-conditioned Jeep station wagon drives over the red rock terrain to carry tour participants inland to Gouldings famous Monument Valley Lodge, where many films have been made.

ACTION HERE includes an intimate exploration of Navajoland, a world filled with unsolved archaeological puzzles and customs as bizarre to our society as are those of Berber tribesmen. Male members, with heavy drops of turquoise dangling from their pierced ears, lounge in the sun beside the hive-shaped hogans in which they live while their women, dressed in flashy velvet blouses and long satin skirts, gallop on horseback across the plains herding sheep and rounding up cattle.

Everywhere, golden towers pop up from the unearthly emptiness, joined with pyramids, blocks and spheres. The monumental fantasies are geological deceptions, though. Actually, they did not pop up — the land dropped away and left them standing.

TRADING POSTS provide a social center. Arriving by cart, horseback and truck, the Indians bring rugs woven from wool sheared, washed and carded on the reservation to trade for coffee, flour and sugar. Then they hang around drinking soda pop, courting and visiting, dressed in their vivid clothes embellished with pounds of silver and turquoise jewelry.

The Canyon Tour program is flexible, but in my opinion, their Three-day Golden Triangle Tour for $186 per person is the absolute minimum in which you can cover this vast land. Their season is all year, but it is best between April and November.

TELEVISION LOG OF THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM AND THE EVENING NEWS

Wolfman Jack's a howling success on TV and radio

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Wolfman Jack was a bit late for our lunch-time interview.

It figured, I guess. Even his "Midnight Special" on NBC-TV doesn't start until 1 a.m.

As the minutes passed, I got to thinking that maybe someone had forgotten to unlock the Wolfman's cage. Or else he never comes out until the moon is high.

Even Don Kelly, his manager, began to get worried. "Maybe he's had an accident," he said. "He doesn't drive much, himself."

Kelly and an NBC publicist had arrived at the Continental Hyatt House in Hollywood (on Sunset Boulevard near La Cienega) before I did. After some difficulty, I located them in a booth in the darkest corner of the hotel's restaurant-bar. I guess they didn't want the Wolfman to scare the rest of the patrons.

After a while we went ahead and ordered lunch, Don selecting shrimp Louie or something like that for the Wolf (I wondered if a bone wouldn't have been more appropriate).

Just before the waitress brought our meals, Wolfman Jack showed up. He was alone and not on a leash.

As Wolfman offered apologies — he'd been taping a radio show after a three-day Memorial Day weekend out of town — the rest of us wolfed down our pot roast specials of the day.

I paid special attention, though, when the Wolfman ordered something to drink. I had thought he might ask for a cup of blood, but it turned out what he wanted was just a Coke.

INASMUCH as the tab was being picked up by NBC-TV, Wolfman tried to be cooperative and started off talking about "The Midnight Special," which airs Friday nights from 1 to 2:30, right after the Johnny Carson show.

Network television's first step into the wee-small-hours-of-the-morning programming, "The Midnight Special" became a weekly NBC feature last February and is scheduled to continue in the new fall season. A youth-oriented musical-variety series, it offers a different host and different performers each week, with Wolfman Jack as the only regular. He's listed as the announcer, but is more like a co-host — and even does some singing.

The Wolfman also jokes with the live audience of about 600, tells stories and sings prior to the taping of the show each Tuesday evening at Studio 2 at NBC-TV in Burbank.

"Television was late getting into rock, but now we've got something good going," the bearded entertainer said. "Rock music is the No. 1 art form of our age — the art form enjoyed by most people.

"NBC wanted somebody on the show who wasn't a straight announcer, somebody who could do different things to give the show the kind of rock image they wanted. So they came to me."

Wolfman Jack has been a legend to millions of young listeners throughout America for years as a result of his radio shows. It is said that in the late 1950s and early '60s you could drive from New York to Los Angeles and never lose the sound of Wolfman. That was when he was heard nightly on XERF, a 250,000-watt station in Del Rio, Tex., with transmitter across the border in Mexico.

For all I know, perhaps you can still drive from Los Angeles to New York without losing sound of the popular disc jockey. He now tapes a daily rock show at his home in Beverly Hills which is syndicated — his manager reports — to 1,453 radio stations in the United States plus 432 stations in 42 foreign countries. This is a different show, he says, from the one he does nightly for KDAY.

In Del Rio, the Wolfman's income was tied to the number of mail-order sales the station made. He sold everything from chickens to pictures of Jesus that glowed in the dark, not to mention skin creams, hair creams, weight pills, diet pills and love pills. When sales began to fall off, what with the rise of neighborhood shopping centers and some clampdowns by the government, the Wolfman headed west in the mid-'60s and started doing his howling and growling for XERB (now XPRS), a Tijuana-based station with studios in Los Angeles. He owned the business end of the station, but sold it after a half-dozen years and, in the spring of 1972, joined KDAY as a star "personality."

A FEATURE of his radio show for years has been the taped howls of wolves. I asked him if he taped the sounds himself.

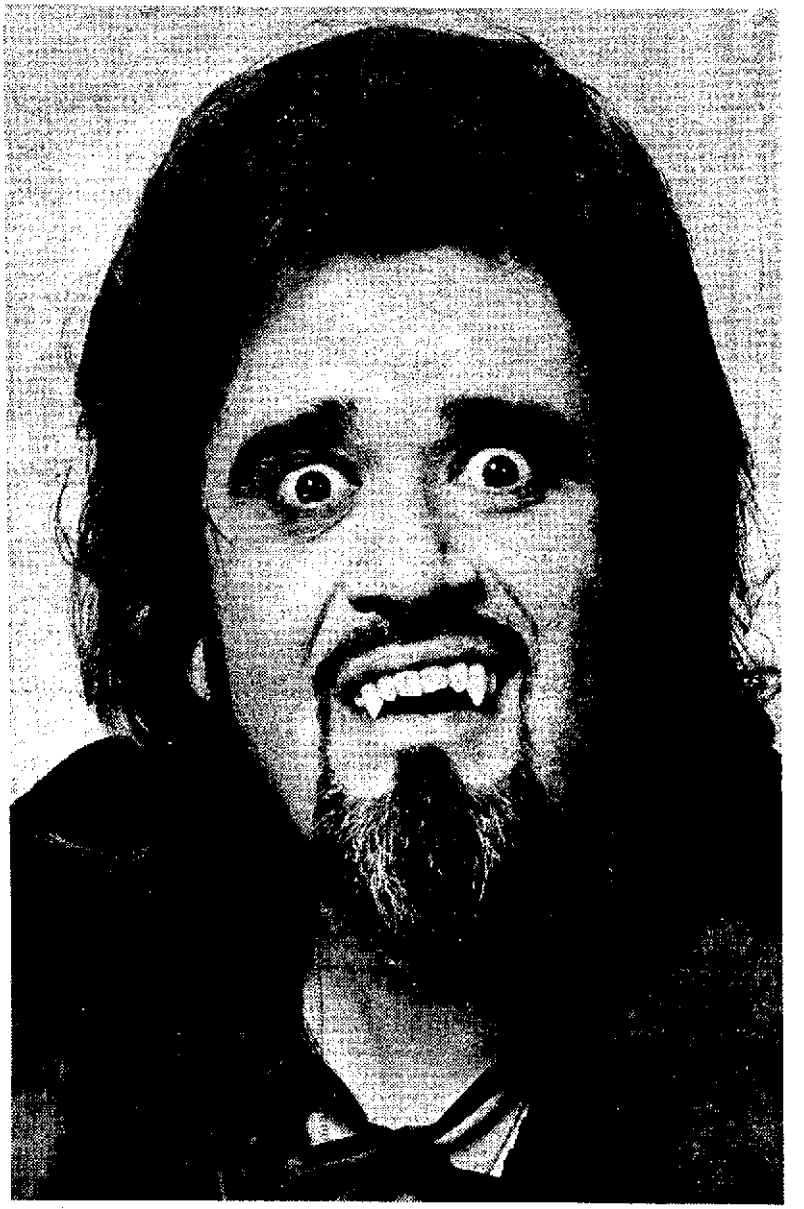

"When I was in Del Rio, I kept this big timber wolf fenced in the back yard. At midnight, with a full moon, you shoulda heard him howl," replied Wolfman Jack.

Of course, you never can tell when he's putting you on. He tells some folks he's from Transylvania and that his mother's name is Wolfman Mary.

"You're from Brooklyn, aren't you?" I asked.

"Yeah, man, I crawled outta the garbage can with the other roaches," he replied in his best on-the-air gravel voice. He sounds, though, more like he's

Emmy winner almost turned down role

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer

Michael Learned avoided commercial television for years. She was afraid of the medium, and when a chance came her way last year for a part in a series, she almost didn't take it.

Now she's the owner of this year's Emmy for best actress for her role as mother of "The Waltons" family.

"I was afraid," she admitted in an interview, adding she didn't want to leave secure positions she enjoyed with public television and with the American Conservatory Theatre.

In previous years Miss Learned had come to Los Angeles for a few interviews about roles on TV, but she said she "hated to leave my secure little home."

"People would ask me what I'd done before and I'd get unnerved," she said. "I'd pretend I didn't need it. It was really a defense."

Last year her agent asked her to read for a part in a new television series, "The Waltons."

"I said no. I was going on tour," she said. "Any excuse."

But she did read for executive producer Lee Rich and was signed for the part of the mother, Olivia Walton. Two weeks later the show went into production.

MICHAEL LEARNED

MISS LEARNED said she was cynical about the CBS series at first, believing it had little chance to succeed in its time slot against Flip Wilson and "The Mod Squad."

That it succeeded beyond anyone's imagination is now history.

A two-hour Easter show hit the top of the Nielsen ratings. And the series virtually swept the Emmy awards, winning as best series with additional awards going to Miss Learned as best actress, Richard Thomas as best actor, Ellen Corby as best supporting actress and John McGreevey as best writer for a series episode.

Miss Learned became a star so quickly that at the Emmy ceremony her unusual name was mispronounced. As the oldest of six sisters she was given a man's name. Her last name is pronounced "Lur'-nid."

"I'm stunned," she said, accepting the award. She said she wanted "to thank my own beautiful family for teaching me how to be a mother."

IN HER PRIVATE life, she is divorced and the mother of three sons, Caleb, Christopher and Lucas. "I've changed back and forth as a mother," she said. "I was loving and strict in the beginning, then I got too permissive."

Miss learned said she was put off by the unglamorous role at first but "I don't feel that way now."

She also said she was somewhat unhappy with her role as Livvie in that it made her "too rigid and stern."

"I don't think any human being is that one-sided," she said, adding, "it's been lightened up. Any mother who loves her children doesn't make them sit in the sun two hours waiting for a preacher as we did in one show.

"I felt like the heavy in the beginning. Now I feel like a well-rounded human being."

She said she would like to see the mother unbend a little more next season. "I think Livvie should take a little glass of wine now and then," she said, mindful that Mrs. Walton is a woman who says "thank God we're Baptist and can contend with evil." She'd also like to see her yell at the kids now and then and complain that her feet or her back hurt.

"IT MAY BE a little too idealized," she said, "but we're working on it. I think the house is too neat. But basically, I think we try to be honest in dealing with the daily troubles that come into the home."

Next season, Miss Learned will be seen in a cameo role on "Gunsmoke" as — of all things — a prostitute. "But a nice prostitute," she added quickly. She also appears in a two-part "Gunsmoke" as the love interest for Jim Arness in a story in which Marshal Dillon suffers amnesia.

As for her early cynicism about "The Waltons," she said, "I was won over. I think people still believe in the old principles and the old values."

PETER USTINOV portrays England's George III and is interviewed by Eric Sevareid, who assumes the view of a colonial journalist, during and after the American Revolution, on "The Last King of America," which airs Wednesday night on CBS.

ELIZABETH BAUR, of NBC's "Ironside" series, pays a visit to Los Encinos, the ranch which her great-grandfather owned and which is now a California state park. Very much the modern day girl, Liz, dressed in leather culottes, sits on the ranchhouse porch feeding a duck and flashes a big smile. Later she dons a victorian costume to be in keeping with the setting. Over the reed organ is a photo of her great-grandmother, Juanita Amestoy Gless. A mannequin of the 4-10 lady, dressed in one of her own gowns, is a feature of the parlor. Although Liz weighs only 95 pounds, her great-grandmother's clothes are too small for her.

PAN AND FAN MAIL

THE NOW DEFUNCT "Mission: Impossible" was always one of my favorite TV programs. Try as I may, I cannot remember who played the leading male role when the series first started many years ago.

He was followed briefly by Steven Hill — then, of course, Peter Graves took over. Can you fill me in?

Sharon Moore
Long Beach

(Steven Hill was the star of the CBS series when it began in September 1966.)

HERE ARE a few observations of a retired boob-tube fan:

The writers and producers of the popular Perry Mason series, repeats and all, apparently don't know their LAW. Murder can only be a result of a jury trial. In every episode a killing takes place, and almost immediately all hands call it murder, and before the case ever reaches a jury panel.

Liza Minelli has just broken off with Desi Jr. and taken on another lover-boy, reports have it. It should be almost unbelievable to her fans (me, too) that such a talented and captivating entertainer could, in her romantic escapades, appear to be as dizzy as a

'Snapshots' of TV stars

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Television snapshots:

Redd Foxx, of "Sanford And Son": One of video's all-time great comedy talents. There is no better leading man in any comedy series on the networks.

Shirley Jones, of "The Partridge Family": Sneakily sexy in a wholesome way.

Richard Widmark, who starred as a police lieutenant in "Madigan": Believable in any role.

Jack Lord, of "Hawaii Five-O": Almost as expressive as Gardner McKay.

George Peppard, of "Banacek": Almost as expressive as Jack Lord.

Bill Russell: The ex-basketball star is a video natural. Also has the silliest and most infectious laugh in broadcasting since Steve Allen's.

JAMES ARNESS, of "Gunsmoke": Has more impact, even in brief appearances, than just about any other series star. It's called presence, and you can't learn it or buy it.

Bobby Darin: His series didn't do well in the ratings, but his all-around talents were spectacular and his showmanship was nothing short of dazzling. And he will get better and better because he seems to have found his groove.

David Carradine, of "Kung Fu": A new breed heavyweight. Looks like a good man to be on the road with.

Peter Falk, of "Columbo": A million dollar face. A million dollar attitude. Looks like a good man to be in a bar with.

Howard Cosell: If I can't find an Erich von Stroheim movie on television, I figure a program with Cosell will give me the same kind of pleasure.

BEA ARTHUR, of "Maude": She plays a formidable woman, but it is her vulnerability that gives much of the basic strength to her role. And why doesn't someone find a property that she and Cosell could do together?

Dan Rowan, of "Laugh-In": One of the classic straight men of comedy.

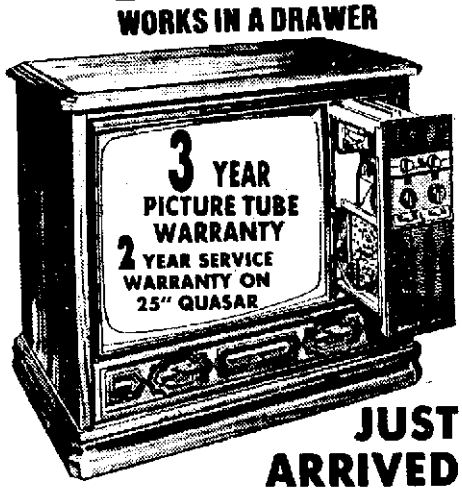

BOAT OWNER Carl Brennen takes a group of Southern California "singles" on a cruise of Marina del Rey as they comment on their roles as single people in society, as part of KNBC's documentary, "Hook, Line and Single," which airs at 10:30 tonight.

It appears to be a sad commentary on the educational training of a fat majority of TV and radio news commentators that, in referring to the Government, they pronounce the magic word "guvment," and sometimes even "gumment."

Commercials — as many as 15 in an hour-long program — will no doubt never sell a viewer ANYTHING. Tom Gray

I'M NOT WRITING to see my name in print as I don't want it to be. Also I am not complaining about what other people enjoy watching — everyone enjoys different programs.

All I want to know is if any of the regular shows (daytime) will be on at odd hours next week, such as "The Young and Restless." Or Dinah Shore.

Just don't want to miss ones I look at when I'm home. Mrs. C. N. B.
Long Beach

(Daytime program schedules were disrupted when the Senate Watergate hearings were aired by the commercial networks. The hearings resume Tuesday, but this week the three commercial networks are planning to rotate the coverage. NBC will carry the hearings Tuesday, CBS Wednesday and ABC Thursday. Check the daily logs for schedules.)

Wolfman Jack

from de cotton fields of Mississippi than the city streets of Brooklyn.

All he ever wanted to be, he said, was a deejay. "At 6 I was drawing pictures of radio stations when other kids were drawing ships or fire engines." As a kid, he bought a couple of used turntables and a mike and practiced in the cellar. He said he never got beyond the eighth grade in school. He worked at washing cars, then landed a job sweeping out a Brooklyn radio station and running errands. Then he worked his way onto the air.

"I knew if I was going to make it, I needed a far-out style," he said. "What I am is a combination of all the campy guys of the 1950s and early 1960s — Moondog, Mr. Blues, Catman, Huggy Boy — all rolled into one. But it's me!"

I asked if he ever divulged his real name.

"I don't like to, man. It's not exciting. I aim to offer the people some excitement." (I had read that his name is Bob Smith, which, you'll have to admit, isn't very exciting.)

"Do you go just by Wolfman Jack now — is that the way you sign your checks?" I inquired.

The Wolfman nodded affirmatively, and his manager backed him up: "That's right, I can assure you he does."

Next, I asked about Wolfman's fangs. I'd been trying to sneak a look at them throughout our meal, but with no success.

It turned out they're not real, after all, and are a rather recent addition to his act. "A dentist who calls himself Dr. Teethy made the suggestion he wear them and provided the plate," explained Kelly.

"The first time Wolfman met Stan Harris (producer-director of 'The Midnight Special' for executive producer Burt Sugarman) he was wearing the fangs," the entertainer's manager continued. "Harris kept giving him strange looks, but didn't say anything. Finally, Wolfman left for a minute and I said to Harris: 'Now, be sure not to say anything about his teeth — he's very sensitive about them."

Wolfman got the job, anyway.

IT LOOKS like a big year all around for Wolfman Jack. In addition to his radio and TV shows, he has concert engagements coming up, a record album coming out this month and a movie that's due to be released this summer.

The record is called "Wolfman Jack Through the Ages." It was turned out by Wooden Nickel Records and will be distributed by RCA. Release date is June 17.

The movie is titled "American Graffiti" and Wolfman is featured as himself. It's set in 1962 in a small town in Northern California, and focuses on teen-age life and love. Francis Ford Coppola (of "The Godfather" fame) was the executive producer, and George Lucas directed.

Next Saturday night, in the Long Beach Arena, Wolfman Jack will be special guest star in the "Ike and Tina Turner Revue." What will he do? "I'll freak out the audience, man. I might appear in a puff of smoke, or come out riding a camel. Or I might pull an Evel Knievel on a motorcycle. One way or another, I'll freak out the audience."

All the Wolfman has ever wanted to do — on his radio show or in anything else — is to entertain people, he said.

"I'm not into politics, I'm into entertaining," he went on. "I just want people to have fun, I'm not trying to cure the ills of the world. There's enough on the air waves putting people on downer trips. I'm an upper! I want people to be able to tune in on my program, lay back and enjoy for a couple of hours."

Apparently Wolfman Jack is offering what a lot of people want. You won't find any wolf at his Beverly Hills door.

Cable TV: Grubby infant or an awakening giant?

By JOHN J. O'CONNOR
(C) 1973 New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — No area of the "communications explosion" demands more attention than cable television, and no area is more ignored and less understood by the general public.

Everyone agrees that cable TV could eventually have vast social and political ramifications. Yet discussions on the development of cable have generally been limited to special interests.

In "The Cable Fable," a valuable spring 1972 special edition of the Yale Review of Law and Social Action, Kas Kalba, the co-editor, underlines one of the key issues:

"Like Humpty Dumpty, our broadcasting system is about to hit a hard reality, that of technological breakthrough and innovation. And it is unlikely that the transformation the medium will undergo as a result will not have profound ramifications on our social fabric, just as television has already affected family life, schooling, politics, the movie industry and international relations. What remains at issue is the extent to which the transformation must be clouded by fable.

"More specifically, can we apply a social development model to this new technological phenomenon or must we be subject solely to the traditional exigencies of hurried economic growth."

WITH ITS greater channel capacity, cable promised a "television of abundance." It would provide not only clearer signals but, with two-way capabilities, a number of "blue sky" services, from utility-meter reading to medical checkups. The future knew no limits.

By the end of 1971, however, Business Week magazine was reporting that "for all the promise that has intrigued some of the best minds in industry and government, CATV is a grubby infant."

Grubby perhaps, but not neglected. Cable was, and still is, getting the close attention of the White House, the Federal Communications Commission, various think tanks, local municipalities and, not least, corporations and corporate conglomerates. In the past two years, some of the shifting power alignments have been dazzling.

Warner Communications has provided what the Network Project's notebook calls "perhaps the most dramatic case of this conglomerate trend." Warner had no cable interests until about 18 months ago. Today it is second in the field only to Teleprompter Corp.

In December, 1971, Kinney Services Inc., split to become Kinney Services and Warner Communications, which immediately acquired the cable systems of the Continental Telephone Co. The following month Warner merged with Television Communications Corp. Last September it acquired Cypress Communications. And a few weeks ago it agreed in principle to buy, for $20 million in cash, the deficit-ridden operations of Sterling Manhattan, which covers the southern half of Manhattan.

ALONG THE way Warner also acquired a majority interest in Goldmark Communications Corp., which is headed by Peter Goldmark, former head of CBS Laboratories, where he participated in developing the long-playing record, the first color television broadcast system and the first video cassette system.

Other Warner operations include Panavision, Warner Seven Arts Records, Warner Bros. Motion Pictures and Elektra Records. All of which prompts the Network Project to observe that "if these production units are used to supply programming for Warner cable systems, they will provide that company control of a significant portion of the communications process."

That, of course, remains to be seen. Warner has been moving rapidly and with undeniable flair. But it still has to prove itself, to go beyond promising plans to solid accomplishments. Its success or failure in Manhattan could well spell the future of urban cable across the country.

Meantime, in "The Cable Fable," the immense scope of the cable question has been summarized by Foundation '70, a Massachusetts cable consulting group:

"Where will cable be in 1984? Who will control it? Will it accelerate and lock in trends to centralization, or will it create complementary mechanisms of decentralization? Will cable expand the economic base and sources of social power, or will cable aggravate present distortions in the body politic? Will the system serve people, or will people serve the system? . . . The pattern of cable is being formed at the centers of population by major market municipalities.

"The major municipalities are future-makers. So are all those individuals, groups, agencies and institutions which are formulating advice, policies and laws intended to help shape the municipal CATV franchise. The quality of thought and information invested in the cable process at this embryonic stage will determine whether cable becomes a tool of growth or stagnation, of liberation or oppression."

Again, no area demands more attention.

The BIBLE Says

Question: Is temptation a sin?

To be tempted is NOT o sin. The Bible says, Jesus "was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin" (Heb. 4:15). IF it had been a sin to be tempted, then Jesus would have been guilty of sin, because Jesus was tempted by Satan. But Jesus, though tempted, was without sin, which demonstrates that simply being tempted is not a sin.

Sin is the result of YIELDING TO TEMPTATION. If Jesus had ever yielded to temptation (which He never did), the result would have been sin. Jesus was sinless because He never yielded to temptation. The Bible account of Jesus' temptation by Satan in the wilderness illustrates how Christ resisted temptation, and thereby remained "without sin." (Read Matthew 4:1-11). Christians are promised in the Bible that there will always be a way to resist temptation — if they will seek it. The Bible says, "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way of escape, that ye may be able to bear it" (1 Cor. 10-13).

People should not feel guilty because they experience temptations to do wrong; BUT people should feel guilty whenever they yield to those temptations, because such yielding results in sin, and that sin, if unforgiven, will damn the soul to Hell.

SPECIAL

THAT CERTAIN SUMMER (7), 8:30—Scott Jacoby won an Emmy for his performance as the son of a homosexual (played by Hal Holbrook) in this highly controversial adult drama. Another star in the show, Martin Sheen (who played a second homosexual), made Emmy history by declining his nomination for an award.

PILOT FILMS (2), 9:30—You can get a preview of one of the shows that will be on your tube this fall when CBS unloads a series of pilots tonight. "Bachelor At Law" and "Cops" didn't quite make it but "Roll Out" will be featuring comic Stu Gilliam as a smooth-talking driver of an army supply truck during WWII when the new shows gleam on your screen in September.

HAL HOLBROOK (right) and Scott Jacoby star in "That Certain Summer," TV drama being repeated on ABC's "Tuesday Movie of the Week." It's about a boy who learns his divorced father is a homosexual.

MARY TYLER MOORE, as Mary Richards, meets an old boyfriend (Michael Tolan) who proposes marriage on "Mary Tyler Moore Show" repeat Saturday night on CBS.

SPECIAL

THE LAST KING OF AMERICA, (2), 8 p.m.—Peter Ustinov stars in this CBS salute to America's forth-coming bicentennial with narration by Eric Sevareid. The style on this program gives a modern-day setting to the final rages of George III, whose conduct hastened and insured the drive of colonial America for independence. It has an almost "You Are There" flavor about it.

WACKY WEEKI WACHEE AND SILVER SPRINGS SINGING AND COMEDY THING (7) 8 p.m. — Tony Randall hosts an all-star cast for this comedy-variety show in a pair of Florida's scenic and wildlife attractions.

THE METHADONE CONNECTION (7), 10:30 p.m.—A subjective view of the misuse of the synthetic opiate Methadone, this program deals with the abuses of a drug which was introduced in the hope it would curb heroin addiction. But, the progam seems to be asking, what good is beating heroin if the users wind up "hooked" on a substitute drug?

LARRY HAGMAN is one of the stars of "Here We Go Again," Saturday night comedy series on ABC.

MARC BOLAN, British star, performs on "In Concert" late Friday night on ABC.

A HUSBAND and wife participating in the Methadone Maintenance program for rehabilitating heroin addicts receive the required daily dose of Methadone in an orange juice mix from a nurse (left) in the ABC News special "The Methadone Connection," airing Wednesday night.

THE BURNOR CONTACT LENSES

from early morning

A concept in the fitting of contact lenses has recently been introduced by John L. Burnor. These lenses are known as Burnor Contact Lenses.

24-HOUR "SLEEPING" LENSES

. . . The Burnor Contact Lenses are designed for 24 hour wear. Patients are able to wear their Burnor Contact Lenses comfortable (under the supervision of their eye specialist) from 5 to 7 days continuously.

The Burnor Contact Lenses are available through dispensing locations certified by Lens Craft Research and Development Co., Inc.

Through the Burnor design process, this lens is custom fit to enable the patient to wear the lens eight to fifteen hours the first day with comfort.

8 to 15 Hours of Wear the First Day

The Burnor Contact Lenses are offered on a guarantee basis. Please call for full information on this new product.

By appointment only . . .

. . . through late evening.

★ SPECIAL

THE SHOES OF THE FISHERMAN (2), 8:00 P.M.—Anthony Quinn, winner of two Academy Awards, heads a distinguished cast of performers including Laurence Olivier, David Janssen and John Gielgud. Quinn as the newly elected Pope is faced with averting a world war.

LOVE, AMERICAN STYLE (7), 10:00 P.M.—Jack Klugman of "The Odd Couple" and his wife, Brett Somers Klugman portray a different kind of "odd couple". He insists that she date other men so that he won't feel guilty about dating other women. Other love vignettes revolve around a Peeping Tom and his pet chicken, an amateur show host trying to enjoy his honeymoon, and a girl who wants to marry a bear.

PEGGY CASS and Werner Klemperer have conflicting emotions as they learn their 30-year-old daughter is bringing home a potential suitor in "Love and the Unbearable Fiance," a repeat Friday night on ABC's "Love, American Style."

SPECIAL

THE CHILDREN EXPERIMENT (4) 3:30 p.m. — Students at the Claremont Graduate School are learning about children but the children are learning, too. It's all happening at the Mary B. Eyre nursery on the school campus where the small fry—some as young as 18 months—are doing things differently from most nursery schools. One facet of the program includes learning to read as a part of growing up, not as something special.

TWO ARCTIC TALES (28) 7 p.m. — This dramatization of two North Pole explorations—Sir John Franklin's in 1845 and Charles Francis Hall's in 1871—features narration by Raymond Massey. Franklin's expedition simply disappeared but Hall's, which was to search for Franklin's team, found a single canister indicating Franklin was dead. Hall reportedly went mad on the journey and claimed someone was trying to poison him. The U.S. Navy initially reported that Hall died of natural causes but when his body was found in the 1960's—still frozen but in good condition after 97 years—arsenic was found in his body. The special uses dramatic recreations and documentation to tell this eerie story.

SPORTS TODAY

BASEBALL 11:15 a.m. (4) Curt Gowdy and Tony Kubek will call the game wherever it is but the network said at press-time the contestants hadn't been decided.

BELMONT STAKES 2 p.m. (2), will see Secretariat bidding for the third leg of the Triple Crown. The pony has already won the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness. Jack Whitaker will host with Heywood Hale Broun lending color, Frank Wright adding commentary and Chic Anderson delivering the race call.

WIDE WORLD OF SPORTS 5 p.m. (7), concentrates on two of the year's competitive high points—the 52nd Annual NCAA Track and Field Finals at Baton Rouge, La., and the 73rd U.S. Open Golf Tournament at Oakmont, Pa. Eric Segal and O.J. Simpson headline the commentators for the track showdown while Chris Schenkel, Bryan Nelson and Dave Marr will deliver expertise on the golf play.

WRESTLING 8 p.m. (13), will have Dick Lane and Gene LeBell doing their most awesome descriptions on the debut of Mike Boyette—also known as the Psycho—as he rassles a top foe.

PRODUCER RICHARD COCHRAN (left) and host Stan Myles Jr. (second from right) of KABC-TV's "I Am Somebody" public affairs series are presented a citation commending the program from the state Senate and Assembly. Also accepting is the station's general manager, Don Curran (right). Making the presentation is Assemblyman Frank Holoman.

We're looking for a few good men and women in the Harbor Cities.

The Marine Corps is not after quantity – we are after quality. Men and women who want to learn a useful trade or profession and put this knowledge to a worthwhile purpose.

As a member of the Marine Corps you can, if qualified, have the opportunity for training in many useful and challenging fields: such as personnel administration, logistics, electronics, data processing, aviation maintenance and technology, construction, heavy equipment operation and maintenance and many, many more.

The opportunities are available to you if you qualify and have the desire and initiative.

However, we promise you no bed of roses, what the Marine Corps offers is a challenge and a chance to compete effectively in today's world.

Send in the attached reply card or drop in and see us. We'll answer your questions with straight and sincere talk.

We are looking for a few good men and women here in the Harbor Cities.

Zenith National Life Insurance Company's California Cancer Plan

AGE AND HEALTH
This policy may be purchased by anyone of any age in any state of health who has never had cancer.

COVERAGE STARTS
This policy provides full benefits for any cancer which is first diagnosed 60 days or more after the policy effective date. Pre-existing conditions are not covered. Any cancer first diagnosed 60 or more days after the effective date is presumed not to be pre-existing.

OTHER INSURANCE
This policy was designed to supplement your existing health insurance program to better provide for the expense of cancer; therefore, this policy pays in addition to Medicare or any group or individual insurance you may carry.

ELIGIBILITY, TERMINATION AND DEPENDENTS
Eligible for this policy are yourself, your spouse, and all of your unmarried children under 21 who live with you. Children born after the Policy Date, or legally adopted children under age 21 are automatically insured if the policy is issued on a Family Plan basis. The insurance on any dependent child will terminate on the first renewal date following his marriage or 21st birthday. The insurance on your spouse covered under this policy terminates upon divorce or separation.

RENEWABILITY PROVISION
This plan is Guaranteed Renewable for life. As long as you make your timely payment of premium, we guarantee not to cancel or refuse to renew your policy for any reason whatsoever.
Your rate cannot be increased individually unless there is a general rate increase on all persons of the same class as you. You cannot be singled out for a rate increase because of claims, bad health, or advanced age.

LIMITATIONS AND EXCLUSIONS
This policy does not cover any loss caused by or resulting from any disease other than cancer, or any cancer first diagnosed prior to 60 days after the effective date of insurance as to each covered person.
No benefits shall be payable for or on account of (1) any supplies or services for which no charge is made in the absence of insurance or for which the insured is not required to pay, or (2) charges made for professional services by a close relative.
Cancer must be diagnosed by a microscopic examination of human tissue or fluid by a qualified pathologist. (This is a standard medical practice for diagnosis of cancer.) The maximum benefit payable to any one insured shall not exceed $60,000.

BENEFIT INCREASES AND REDUCTIONS
If cancer causes loss occurring prior to your 45th birthday, the benefits will be increased 50%. If cancer causes loss which occurs after your 65th birthday, the benefits will be reduced by 50%. The maximum $60,000 benefit will apply regardless of age at inception of loss.

BENEFITS FOR EACH INSURED FAMILY MEMBER

The company will pay the actual, customary and necessary charges for the following expenses incurred up to the maximums specified:

Hospital Room and Board Benefits
$50 per day for the first 12 days of hospital confinement, $30 per day thereafter. When patient re-enters hospital more than 30 days after discharge, the $50 per day again applies. No limit to number of days.

Private Nurse Benefits
$25 per day in hospital toward charges by registered nurse as long as the nurse is not a member of your family.
Maximum benefit — $1500.

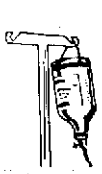

Convalescent Hospital Room and Board Benefits
$15 per day if physician requires patient to enter a convalescent hospital within seven days after a hospital stay of five days or more. No limit to number of days.

In-Hospital Physician Benefit
$10 per day for expense incurred while confined in the hospital or a convalescent care facility for physician other than surgeon. Maximum of one visit per day.
Maximum benefit — $1000.

Surgical Benefits
$18 to $840 per operation as outlined in the Schedule of Operations in the policy. $1200 maximum for each period of confinement. No limit to number of operations.

Blood and Plasma Benefits
The company will pay the expense incurred for blood and plasma necessary for treatment.
Maximum — $500 during any twelve month period.

Anesthesia Benefits
15% of the amount payable under the Surgical Expense Benefit toward charges for the services of an anesthesiologist not employed by the hospital.
No limit to number of operations.

Ambulance and Transportation Benefits
$50 per trip to or from a hospital where admitted as patient. No limit to number of trips.
$250 per round trip, 100 miles or more away from residence to hospital, providing treatment not available locally.
Maximum benefit — $500.

X-Ray, Radio-Active Treatment Benefits
$100 per treatment (excluding diagnostic x-ray).
Maximum benefit — $1500.

Drugs and Medicines Benefit
10% of the total daily Room and Board Benefit toward the cost of drugs and medicines incurred during a covered period of hospital or convalescent hospital confinement.
No limit to number of days.

EXTENDED EXPENSE BENEFIT

Regardless of age-up to $5,000 per month or $167 per day

For hospital confinements exceeding 90 days, the company will pay 100% of the actual hospital charges for care and treatment from the 91st day of confinement until discharge from the hospital without deductions for sums previously paid.

This benefit is in lieu of the Hospital Room and Board Benefit, In-Hospital Physician Benefit, Blood and Plasma Benefit, and Drugs and Medicines Benefit.

All other benefits are paid in addition to the $167 per day rate.

Combined benefits, including extended benefits, shall not exceed a total of $60,000 per insured person.

Is religion hazardous to their health?

Verily I say unto you, Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven.

But whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea.

Wells Report

The Land Remains

"They all do it, all them politicians," the barber says. "You know it yourself. Jeez, for two months all you hear about is Watergate. You'd think there'd be something else on the news. I'm getting tired, man."

You leave the barbershop and drive down the shoreline through Belmont Shore. It is almost summer and the girls are out. The girls in their summer dresses and the girls in their bikinis. The all-news station can't compete with them. You turn it off. Watergate. I'm getting tired, man.

That is the tragedy. The revelations are so numerous, the scandal so wide it ceases to shock and begins to bore. There is the widespread opinion they all do it. Who does? The politicians. Do what? Bug, lie, cheat, spy, sell favors, buy.

You wonder when it was that the American people lost faith in their government, in the political process itself.

The long line of traffic wends its way patiently down Second Street through the Shore. No one hurries. There are the girls to watch and the water and the boats.

For the first time you begin to realize how the Soviet bureaucrats and Russian people must have felt after Khrushchev made his famous speech detailing the crimes of Stalin. Guilty, uneasy, angry, not at Stalin, but at the man who pulled the halo from him. Why tell us, man?

Watergate is like that for Americans. Why tell us, man? We can't do anything about it. We got to live with him for another three years. It's all politics.

You stop at Seaport Village and walk by the Alamitos channel where an obviously homemade sailboat is tacking futilely, a menace to the weekend line of power boats and vice versa.

You feel sorry for Congress, for the other politicians. It isn't all politics. The rest of politics may be bad, but it's not as bad as the mess disclosed by Watergate. How do you tell that to the American people? How do you restore their faith in the democratic process?

You wonder about the presidential system itself, a system born way back in the 18th century. No other great democracy in the world has it. In any other democracy, the solution to Watergate would be simple and available. The government would resign. A new government in which the people had confidence would be formed, or the compromised leader of the old government would take his case to the people in special elections.

That's the parliamentary system, but not the presidential. The only recourse is impeachment, the unthinkable word, the unthinkable act.

The sun glitters on the water with a thousand prisms, hurting your eyes even through the dark glasses. You wonder what would have happened back there in February 1868 if one of those courageous Republican congressmen — Grimes of Iowa, Trumbull of Illinois, Ross of Kansas, Fessenden of Maine, Van Winkle of West Virginia, Fowler of Tennessee, Henderson of Missouri — had had a little less courage and voted with their party for the dismissal of President Andrew Johnson.

That impeachment procedure failed by one vote. American historians are fond of implying that it demonstrates that some sort of special Providence looks over this Republic.

But what if the President had been voted out of office a century ago? If Congress had once dared to do the unthinkable, it would dare again. The slippage of power from Congress to the President, which has continued from the Civil War to this day, would have been checked. Each President would have been forced to realize that he ruled with the consent of Congress, not merely for legislation but for tenure in office.

If Johnson had been found guilty of the charges brought against him, we would have had a modified parliamentary system. It would have been a defective parliamentary system because it would not have had the great check-and-balance of the system — the right of the chief executive to appeal over the head of the parliament to the nation in a special election.

Still, once Congress's power of removal had been established, The Constitution very probably would have been amended to provide for some form of national plebiscite.

Would not our people feel less powerless and more a part of government if they knew that they would have to decide any fundamental dispute between Congress and the President?

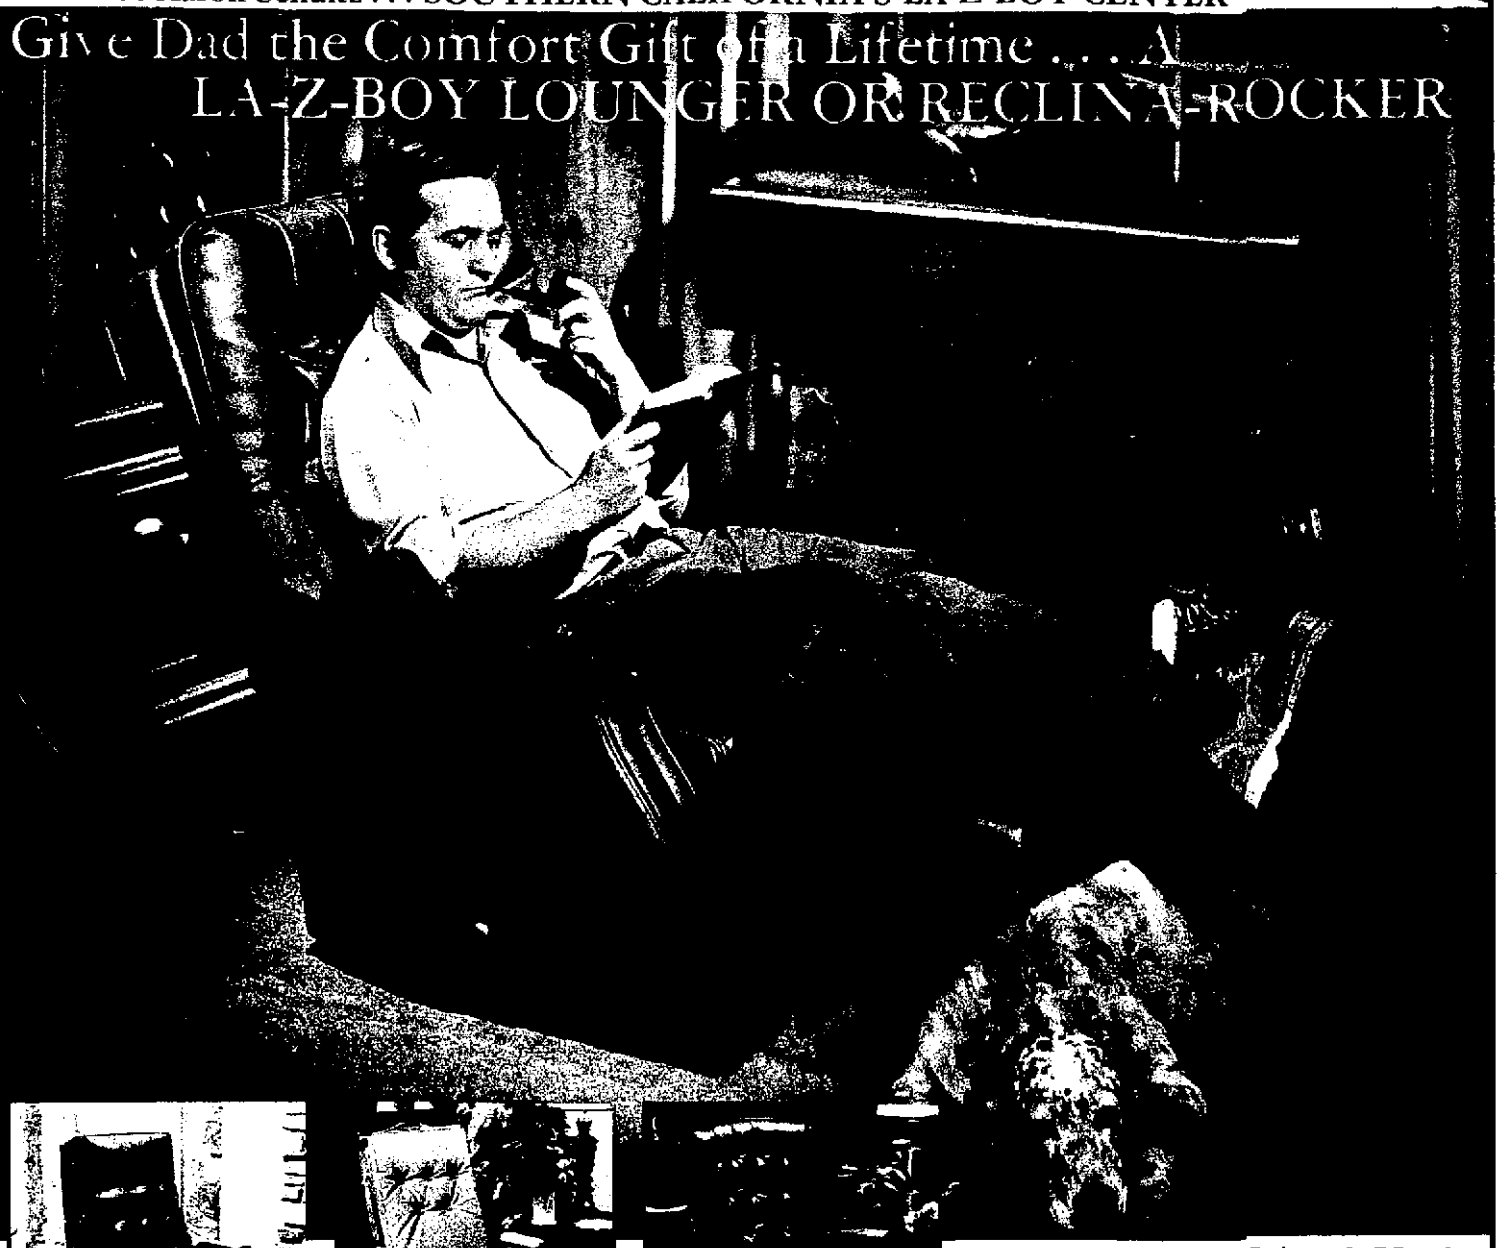

Musing, you get back in your car and drive down the coast. At Bolsa Chica the surf is up and black silhouettes slide the great shining slopes. In Huntington Beach you are stopped every block by great herds of golden girls moving beachward on the pedestrian crosswalks.

Politicians pass; the land remains.

Ex-Sen. George Murphy . . . consults in Washington

Harry S. Truman . . . his funeral plans were changed

Walt Disney . . . Elias was his middle name sked that!

GARDNER

Q: I'm curious about what ex-Sen. George Murphy has been doing since he retired from politics. Can you ask him? — Mrs. Miriam S., Pasadena, Calif.

A: George Murphy has a consulting office in Washington, D.C., where he represents varied clients. Among them are a group of scientists which has made an exciting breakthrough in the field of radiography; a top architect who specializes in designing hospitals, colleges and retirement homes; a bilingual children's television group; and a group of industrialists from the Republic of China.

Q: I hear that Marlon Brando's Los Angeles home is very modest — only three rooms. Is this true? — Bertha D., Cincinnati.

A: No. The tango-dancing Godfather lives in a palatial hilltop home with a breathtaking view of Beverly Hills — previously occupied by another lonesome man of means, Howard Hughes.

Q: In the clampdown on pornography, why don't local lawmakers insist that drive-ins which show X-rated movies erect high fences so kids can't sneak glimpses of the depraved films? — Mrs. Lulu R. (a worried grandmother), Scranton, Pa.

A: Several city councils have proposed such a measure. But so far as I know, no such law has been enacted — yet.

Q: Do U.S. Presidents have to see and approve plans for their own state funerals? — Dominick R., Burlington, Vt.

A: One who did was President Truman. Said he, "A damn fine show. I just hate that I'm not going to be around to see it!" (The widow Truman, however, didn't like it. She decided on a less lavish, military service.)

Q: Why the mystery about that onetime singing star, Deanna Durbin? Why won't anybody reveal her whereabouts or what she's doing today? — Mrs. A. Meitzner, Cleveland.

A: Nothing mysterious about the "disappearance" of Miss Durbin. She simply quit movies when she was ahead of the game and also getting a little too plump to romp in the cinema. Married to movie director Charles Henri-David, they enjoy privacy in their home in the Paris suburb of Neauphie-Le-Chateau. They have two children, Peter and Jessica, her daughter from a previous marriage.

Q: I understand that Walt Disney dropped his middle name. What was it? — Sandy Kirschner, Brooklyn.

A: Elias. From his father, an active member of Chicago's St. Paul's Congregational Church when Walt was born. (If he had used his middle name instead of his last, Disneyland might be known today as Eliasland.)

Religion as preschoolers see it

Satisfaction or frustration: religion can bring either

By ELI S. CHESEN

Religion is not unlike sex: Those with a healthy attitude can derive a great deal of satisfaction from it while others only become frustrated.

I once read a question submitted by a child to a newspaper question-and-answer column. The boy complained that his mother was forcing religious beliefs upon him, insisting that he attend church, study the Bible and participate in related activity.

The columnist advised the child that his parent was acting correctly and that he should feel grateful. He went on to quote the commandment "Honor thy father and thy mother" and instructed the youngster that God was referring to mothers like his.

I was aghast. I interpreted the answer as, "Do what you're told, you ungrateful kid!"

For a child to write such a letter, he must sense a significant conflict about his religious attitude vis-a-vis his parent's beliefs. The fact that the child perceived a conflict indicated that he was attempting to think and act with an air of independence; this is unequivocally a healthy trend in any child.

His rigid parent, on the other hand, was not about to stand for such dissension, but was, rather, bent upon stuffing religion down the child's gullet.

The columnist, via his authoritarian answer, supported the misguided parent and threatened the child with a punishment in the form of an injunction from the Ten Commandments.

This implies an 11th commandment: "Thou shalt love and honor thy religion and not question it," an injunction that may eventually smother this child's independent thinking processes.

Worst of all, the inquiring child is certain to feel guilty. What kind of rotten kid refuses to honor his parents? Furthermore, if this parent continues to force religious beliefs on the child, the latter may tend not only to resist the beliefs but to rebel against the mother in general. The outcome will certainly be one of two probable scenarios:

The child's independence and resistance will begin to break down and he will tend to assimilate the mother's beliefs. The child will grow up to be arbitrary in his spiritual thinking. He will tend to inflict religion similarly upon his children. (Do unto others as they have done unto you).

Or he will continue to resist his mother and her efforts and will begin to develop a more personal and flexible mode of religious thinking. His relationship with his mother may become relatively distant, and he may eventually give up religion completely or convert to another.

I begin with this example not because it is so negative but so typical. It demonstrates the parental attitude that alienates many children from religion.

Two factors are of special importance if the child is to develop a healthy attitude toward religion. The first is the manner in which religious material is taught; the second is the age or stage at which specific material is presented.

In the teaching of religious attitudes throughout the various stages of childhood, the parent must be aware of certain characteristics inherent in each of these stages if he hopes to do a thoughtful job. The dividing lines between the stages vary with each child, but they can be approximated arbitrarily by age: preschool (up to six years of age), school-age (ages six to 11 or 12) and adolescent.

The preschool child has relatively immature thought processes and thinks on a very different plane from older children. He thinks, so to speak, in a vertical direction; he is able to perceive and learn, but only on a very concrete level. He is able to learn about whatever he sees but is less able to integrate abstract material.

He can identify and later recognize, for example, a ball or a dog, but he cannot fathom such concepts as "energy," "gravity" or "tranquillity." Even though the word "energy" may be in his vocabulary, he is not able to grasp the actual concept.

Similarly, the preschooler is unable to appreciate the real meaning of death. He may know that Uncle George died, but he is unable to understand Uncle George's fate and therefore may not be particularly upset about it.

It logically follows that he is unable to grasp such concepts as God, heaven, hell and a multitude of other related abstract religious concepts. Nevertheless, he is exposed to these concepts in many Sunday schools. Because he cannot realize an abstract meaning for God, he must substitute a very naive concrete meaning.

His interpretation of the most elementary Biblical presentation is therefore highly unpredictable. No matter how proficient and benign the Sunday school teacher might be, he cannot be certain that his five-year-olds understand much of the instruction.

At first glance it seems completely innocuous for children to labor over Biblical coloring books, sing religious hymns and parrot back Biblical tales. A closer look, however, reveals that much of this is far beyond a child's ability to understand. What occurs, then, is a very undesirable phenomenon: learning that precedes understanding.

The child "learns" a variety of stories about God, Jesus and so on; the material is reinforced repeatedly and mastered on a very concrete level. But it is not understood; it is memorized. Not until years later does the child begin to conceptualize what he has "learned" so well.

There are dangers lurking in this seemingly routine "cramming." The preschooler's immature mind is prematurely programmed with a barrage of religious intangibles. His memory of the material is rote and his confusion plentiful — as five-year-old Johnnie's questions demonstrate:

RELIGION

Johnnie: Mommy, where does God live?

Mommy: God lives in heaven, Johnnie, with all of the angels.

Johnnie: What's an angel, Mommy?

Mommy: Oh, don't worry about that now, Johnnie.

Johnnie: Mommy, does God sleep in a bed like people do?

Mommy: Uh, oh (gasp) no, Johnnie, He, ah, doesn't sleep. He just stays up in heaven.

Johnnie: But doesn't He get tired being up there all day without sleeping?

Mommy: Let's talk about this some other time, Johnnie. You should be outside playing on a day like this.

This very typical exchange was grossly mishandled by the mother. Anybody would be hard put to find a good answer to Johnnie's original question. It stemmed from Johnnie's inability to deal with the abstract concept of a God which was presented to him at Sunday school.

Johnnie's mother has answered the question by invoking an equally abstract concept: heaven. As a result, Johnnie's confusion was compounded. His next question might just as well have been. "What is heaven?"

A somewhat more helpful exchange might proceed in a very different direction:

Johnnie: Mommy, where does God live?

Mommy: God doesn't live in places the way people do, Johnnie. He just lives. I know that this is hard to understand, but as you get older I will help you to understand.

Johnnie's mother has not sidestepped the issue — she has just delayed dealing with it. She has also avoided using one abstract concept to explain another. Her procrastination was wise; it was done in the spirit of honesty. The insightful mother was admitting to herself and to her son that the time for this discussion was later. Her reassurance to Johnnie — that she would later help him to understand these concepts — was indeed thoughtful.

The entire dilemma could have been avoided if Johnnie's formal religious exposure had begun at a more reasonable age.

I feel that all preschool religious education is to be deplored; these children just cannot comprehend religion. If, however, the preschooler is enrolled in Sunday school and does make such inquiries, the second example should generally be followed.

That is, avoid answering a question with the use of abstract concepts and avoid overly detailed answers. Always assure the child that as he gets older he will be better able to comprehend what he now questions.

A basic rule is that a preschooler, regardless of how bright he may be, is puzzled and frustrated by abstract concepts.

In addition to the immediate confusion that results from premature religious indoctrination, the stage is set for later problems in religious interpretation. Early religious training fills a child's mind with symbols and ideas that he is unable to deal with or correlate. The ensuing misconceptions may lead to uneasiness and even fear.

I recall a five-year-old who was taught about Passover. He was exposed to the Old Testament story about the lamb that was sacrificed on Passover; the lamb's blood was smeared on the door lintels of Jewish homes so that the Angel of Death would pass over and spare their first-born sons while taking the sons of the Egyptians. The story terrified the boy. He developed a very real fear that when Passover came, someone was going to "sacrifice" his dog and smear the blood on his front door — not a far-fetched notion for a five-year-old.

Eastertime fills the Sunday school classroom with equally terrifying and violent tales of Christ being tormented and nailed onto the cross. I question the wisdom of exposing children who have not even begun school and may not even have witnessed a good bombing on television to such gore.

I even question the justification for teaching the Ten Commandments to preschoolers.

Is it necessary specifically to teach a child of five that he should not kill? I wonder how many children ever considered the thought of killing — prior to Sunday school stimulation. Similarly, how should a six-year-old interpret, "Thou shalt not commit adultery"? And is it really necessary to "teach" children to honor and love their parents?

Though I am not enthusiastic about Sunday school training for children younger than age seven or eight, I think much can be done to make the experience more benign for these younger children. Biblical tales should be kept to a minimum and on a superficial level; time might be better spent teaching general religious traditions and customs.

For example, at Hanukkah time I see little harm in teaching a five-year-old the traditional candle-lighting ceremony. The bloody basis for the holiday could be saved for later. Similarly, the Christmas custom of tree-decorating, family togetherness and Christmas carols can be introduced to children early; however, the idea of the "Son of God" being born of a "virgin" could be postponed a few years.

I am, of course, fully aware that children may pick up these concepts away from home, from the mass media and so on. But this could be handled appropriately, just as Johnnie's mother — in the second example — handled Johnnie's query about where God lived.

Let us look more closely now at a slightly older school-ager, the preadolescent, for it is now that a youngster really begins to define religious concepts for himself. The entity most commonly shared by Western religions is that of God; it is important to keep in mind that the child's God may become an unconscious source of guidance and identification; his idea of God may become an integral part of his conscience.

It is therefore exceedingly important to introduce boys and girls to a reasonable and easy-to-live-with God. The child who sees his God as punitive lives with unneeded fears and begins to generalize his fear of God to include other things. In other words, he begins to perceive the world as angry and harsh.

The concept of hell is also useless and harmful. Never, in punishing a child, tell him that he is going to end up in hell! This only results in an unfounded fear that may return someday in the context of a neurotic or psychotic disturbance.

Fear not: Children develop a conscience without the use of such nonsense. In fact, every child, as a result of (or in spite of) his religious experience will eventually develop a philosophy of religion.

The parent must be willing to limit his own use of imagination in order to let his child imagine. I emphasize again that one should avoid presenting overly structured details and dogma to children; let the child fill in some of the blanks with his own competent judgment.

The wise parent will allow organized religion to provide only a superstructure for childhood religious guidance. His own best judgment must determine which of the religious dicta are of importance for him and his child; he must also allow the child to use his judgment in accepting the ideas. The parent, not the church or synagogue, should be in charge of his child's introduction to religion; this serves to avoid the creation of double messages. □

SENIOR CITIZENS! AVOID "BARGAIN" MEDICARE SUPPLEMENTS

Look for the excellent Health Care protection you find with BLUE SHIELD'S MAJOR MEDICARE...PLUS!

If you are 65 or near 65, you should be looking for good health care protection for the years ahead. But don't be fooled by the price tag on so called bargain plans. Often they pay only a few of the costs Federal Medicare misses. That may not be enough protection when illness or accidents strike, especially now that recent changes in federal coverage have increased the amount you must pay for services. At Blue Shield we provide health care coverage you can count on. Our medical care experts have designed Major Medicare–Plus! to give you broad coverage when you need it most. Not only does Major Medicare–Plus! supplement Federal Medicare benefits, but it also pays benefits for services not covered by Medicare—such as prescription drugs and in-hospital private duty nursing. And now Major Medicare–Plus! will cover pre-existing conditions from the day you enroll. Study the fine print before you subscribe to any Federal Medicare supplement and be sure you have the kind of protection offered by Blue Shield's Major Medicare–Plus! Act now! For a limited time you can enroll in Major Medicare–Plus! and no health statement is required. Offer expires June 30.

Faces in the crowd

By ISOBEL SILDEN

Thirty minutes and 30 miles north of Long Beach—if the freeways are cooperative—is Tinseltown, U.S.A., also known as Hollywood. There, in cavernous concrete sound stages, make believe z is created, in the form of movies and television shows. Stars are made there, in an overnight which can take up to 10 years or more. And there, too, work the unknowns, those faces in the crowd known as extras. They much prefer being called "atmosphere players." Image is everything, even when one earns only $35.65 a day, less 40 per cent.

There are some 18 Long Beach-born extras registered with Central Casting Corp. And symptomatic of the movie industry today, only one of these really earns her living as an extra and stuntwoman. She is Evelynne Smith, who attended Poly High and City College here, and proudly proclaims, "I'm a graduate of Muscle Beach." At 5 feet 3 1/2 and 122 pounds, Evelynne strongly resembles the late Sonja Henie or Betty Hutton, giving doubt to her boast, although true, that she held the Pacific Coast weightlifting championship for seven years. "It's concealed muscle," she joked.

Evelynne and husband Sewell Foster now live in Van Nuys. Her huge living room overlooks their Olympic-sized pool. Oscar, the dachshund, settled into her lap, while Rodney, the rabbit, ate his lunch under the couch.

"I can't even tell you how long I've been in show business. I'm terrible about dates. But I lived in Hawaii for 10 years, running swim schools at the Hawaiian Village and Princess Kaiulani hotels. I did several Hawaii 5-0's, and the movies Hawaii, The Hawaiian and Donovan's Reef. Sewell and I married in 1968 and came back to the mainland in 1969. I work extra and also stunts. In the movie Doctor's Wives for Columbia, I did the drowning sequence; stayed down so long they had to rap on the side of the pool for me to come up. I held my breath one and a half minutes that take," she said proudly.

"I did a dream sequence as a bareback rider in the movie, Alex in Wonderland. I just finished a Mod Squad. I'm in The Shoop Sisters with Helen Hayes, and I do several Owen Marshalls each season.

"Of course I'd rather do stunt work than extra. I get $110 a day for stunts, plus $8 for body make up and another $6 for wardrobe. But I haven't had many stunt calls lately, so I just keep calling into Central and the other casting offices for extra jobs."

Mrs. Smith doesn't depend on extra work to support herself. Her husband is steadily employed at KABC-TV in Hollywood. Relatives in the area include her mother, Mrs. Pansy Grace Smith of Long Beach Boulevard; her sister, Mrs. Dorothy Roberts, and her brother, Robert L. Smith, both of whom live in Lakewood.

Pretty Marianne Lah is a Sigma Chi princess at the University of Southern California this year. She is a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority. She claims Long Beach as her birthplace, but has lived in the San Fernando Valley since she was 4. Her father, Fred, is an engineer with Lockheed. Marianne is a business major at SC.

"I became an extra because I was dating a boy who was earning a pretty good living at it two years ago. I figured if he could, I could too. I just walked into Central Casting cold. They told me they'd stopped interviewing extras two years ago! I was so disappointed. Well, I just sat down, speechless. Dorothy Dahlgren, who's the executive secretary in the office, felt sorry for me. She took me in to her boss, Doug Dakin. He's general manager at Central, and they agreed to let me register. But I still didn't have a job."

Business majors learn to be enterprising. Marianne became very scientific in her quest to become an extra. "I went to visit every casting office at every studio. I got to know all the people, and pretty soon I got jobs. Mostly on Room 222 during the summer.

I love to ski. It pays for that. Not school expenses. SC's much too expensive, you know. I don't often call in except in the summer. But I did want to work with Robert Redford on the new movie he's making with Barbra Streisand, The Way We Were. I worked with him one day last week. I fox trotted all day at the Beverly Hills Hotel. And got $100 for it. They wanted me back the next day, but I just couldn't and keep up with my grades. I'm carrying 16 credits, you see."

Will Marianne pursue an acting career after graduation? "Well, maybe some aspect of it. Not regular acting. Everything actors do reflect

The Hollywood extra game

Among the faces in the crowd of Hollywood extras are Kris Pennington, upper left, resident of Long Beach who works in a store when she isn't in the movies; Evelynne Smith, right, a native of Long Beach who lives now in Van Nuys; and Roger Cannon, born in Long Beach and at present an English teacher at Miraleste High School in Palos Verdes.

their own personalities. I don't know if I'd like that. But I do like commercials. I did a lot of those this past summer, for gum, breath mints and tennis rackets. When I lose some more weight, I'll start thinking about it more seriously."

At 5 feet 8 and 128 pounds, with her long blonde hair and green eyes, Marianne appears ideally suited to sell almost any consumer on the product she's pitching.

Extra Robert Cannon appears to have found himself the best of all possible worlds. Nine months a year he teaches English at Miraleste High School in Palos Verdes, and is assistant basketball coach at Cerritos College.

In the summers, he calls in to Central and works extra to finance his numerous trips to Europe.

"I was a French major and it's important to keep up my language. I just received my master's degree from Whittier College, and the money I made working extra was like receiving a scholarship."

Roger was born in Long Beach Community Hospital and was graduated from Long Beach State University. His father, Kermit, is a claims

It's summer work for some negotiator for Douglas here. The family lives in Downey where his mother is executive secretary to that city's fire chief. His sister, Sue Cannon, still lives in Long Beach. She, too, is a teacher.

It was a very good summer indeed, this past one, for Roger Cannon. Among the shows in which he has been, or will be seen, this season are two Doris Day episodes, The FBI, The Rookies, Mod Squad, Ghost Story, The Partridge Family, Emergency, The Outside Man, and an upcoming Ann-Margaret movie, The Outside Man.

But for pretty Kris Pennington, also a graduate of Poly High, showbiz hasn't been so kind.

"Central agreed to register me, but I can't get a job. I call in all the time. And just nothing. And I do want to work."

Admittedly, Kris has no special talent—like being able to fox trot all day, as can Marianne Lah. "I know. I've got to learn to do one thing very well."

Meanwhile Kris sells wigs at the White Front store in Long Beach. And dreams a lot. (Her father, Edwin Williams, is a stationary engineer with Procter and Gamble. They live in the California Heights area.)

Are these typical Hollywood extras today? Very much so.

Central Casting was formed in 1924. Doug Dakin has been its general manager for 29 years. He says, "The business has changed incredibly. In 1945, 46,800 extras worked at MGM alone. From 1926 to 1937, some 20,000 extras earned around $4 million a year. Today we have three switchboard operators and 80 trunk lines. We average 800 calls from extras every day, seeking work. I estimate less than 10 per cent of our members work five days a week."

Screen Extras Guild lists 2,800 members, of which approximately 1,500 are actively working extras. Central is a non-profit corporation subsidized by the Motion Picture Producers of America. Its services are paid for on a flat percentage basis by the studios which utilize its services. By teletype, each studio throughout the day advises Central how many extras are needed at what hour next day at which location, with a breakdown of women, men, ages, types, minority groups and required wardrobe.

Extras are registered with Central and also with the three independent competitive casting companies, Hollywood, Allied and Independent. These firms bid to service extras for independent movies and TV shows. They charge the production companies for their services. Nothing is charged the extras for obtaining them jobs.

It costs a $250 initiation fee to join the Guild plus $36 dues twice annually. But unless a prospective extra is between 18 and 25, there is no chance of the Guild's accepting him. According to SEG president Norm Stevens, no more than 100 have been able to join this year, to replace those who have left for other jobs.

The minimum pay a day is $35.65 less deductions. There are, however, countless adjustments and negotiated payments. If Evelynne or Marianne wore an evening gown and mink as a "dress extra," she would receive an extra $10. If Roger owned his own Los Angeles police department uniform, cost $110, and brought it to a Mod Squad or Rookies, he would receive $4 for bringing it; another $10 for wearing it.

Then there are whammys or bumps. The expression is derived from an old funny joke. To extras, it's not funny. It's money. If the extra is given additional business to do, it's termed a whammy or a bump. It pays him an extra $11. If he is given even more improvised business on the same show, he gets another whammy for another $11. Whammys are paid in multiples of $11 and are termed negotiated or adjustable payments.

Louise De Carlo and her husband own a San Fernando Valley cocktail lounge, purchased from her salaries working as an extra. But Betty Van Valkenburgh of Seattle considers herself lucky if she can get two days' work a week.

It's true. Men have it easier working extra than women because more men are used on TV shows.

Colette Perissi of Milwaukee sums it up best:

"I'm firmly convinced any girl can be a star if she wants it bad enough. She needs only average good looks, she has to be willing to sacrifice all family ties, be on time and reliable at all times, keep up her contacts, be prepared, know how to dance and sing and have a good wardrobe. Of course, luck plays a big part in it, but if you're ready and the timing is right, it can happen. I've seen it. Me? It's not that important to me. My three children are what count. But my eldest daughter, Jennifer, is just 18. The Guild took her in because she's the right age and she's cute. I warned her though. There are a million other girls just as cute. So she's working at it. Her first month in the Guild, she had 10 days' work.

"That's fantastic. I know Jennifer will make it if she wants to. On the other hand, if she decides to settle down, marry and have a family, she can still call in when she wants a day away from the house. It's really an ideal situation for a girl. And it's a heck of a lot more interesting than a 9 to 5 job in an office."

And so they dream. The question comes up, however. How many latter-day extras have made it to stardom like Errol Flynn, Tyrone Power, Walter Brennan and Clark Gable in Hollywood's "golden era"? Only Dennis Cole, Bob Fuller and Barrie Chase come immediately to mind, among the encyclopedic memories of the casting directors at Central.

But there's always tomorrow, and there's always the big break that might come along. Extras sustain themselves on that, probably more than the $35.65 less deductions that they take home each night that they work. If they work. □

COLOR can be used in so many ways in room decor . . . and most particularly in large areas of color such as room size rugs or wall-to-wall carpeting.

Use color to visually alter the size of problem rooms. The strong hot colors that are "in" right now, such as the family of reds and yellows and rust colors, make a room look smaller and warmer. The colors move toward you. They are also good in dark, sunless rooms.

The cool, pale hues, such as the icy greens called after celery or vermouth, the pale lilacs and ever-popular whites and off-whites, are colors that recede visually. They make mini-rooms look larger.

While color in carpet can and should be used as a personal fashion expression, avoid going too far toward "fad" colors. They're fine in clothing, but apparel items are not designed to be seen every day over many years. Carpets are. They will outlast the fads of today . . . and you'll be better off without an obsolete color that was briefly modish.

We can help you select the right carpet colors . . . not only because we have a tremendous selection in every shade, but we can also bring color samples to your home for on-the-spot shopping and selection. Come in . . . or give us a call for shop-at-home service.

A cookware primer for men. (Brought to you by Farberware, in light of the way things seem to be going.)

So here's what to look for when you—or even your wife—shop for your kitchen.

Pots and pans. The longest lasting are made of stainless steel. But aluminum is a better conductor of heat. Our pots and pans are made of stainless steel with aluminum-clad bottoms.

Coffeemakers. The hotter the water when it hits the coffee, the better the results. So we put a ceramic sleeve around the stem the water travels up, to keep it hot through the colder water near the top. What's more, our coffeemaker makes two cups in 2½ minutes. Because nobody wants to spend a lot of time in the kitchen, regardless of sex.

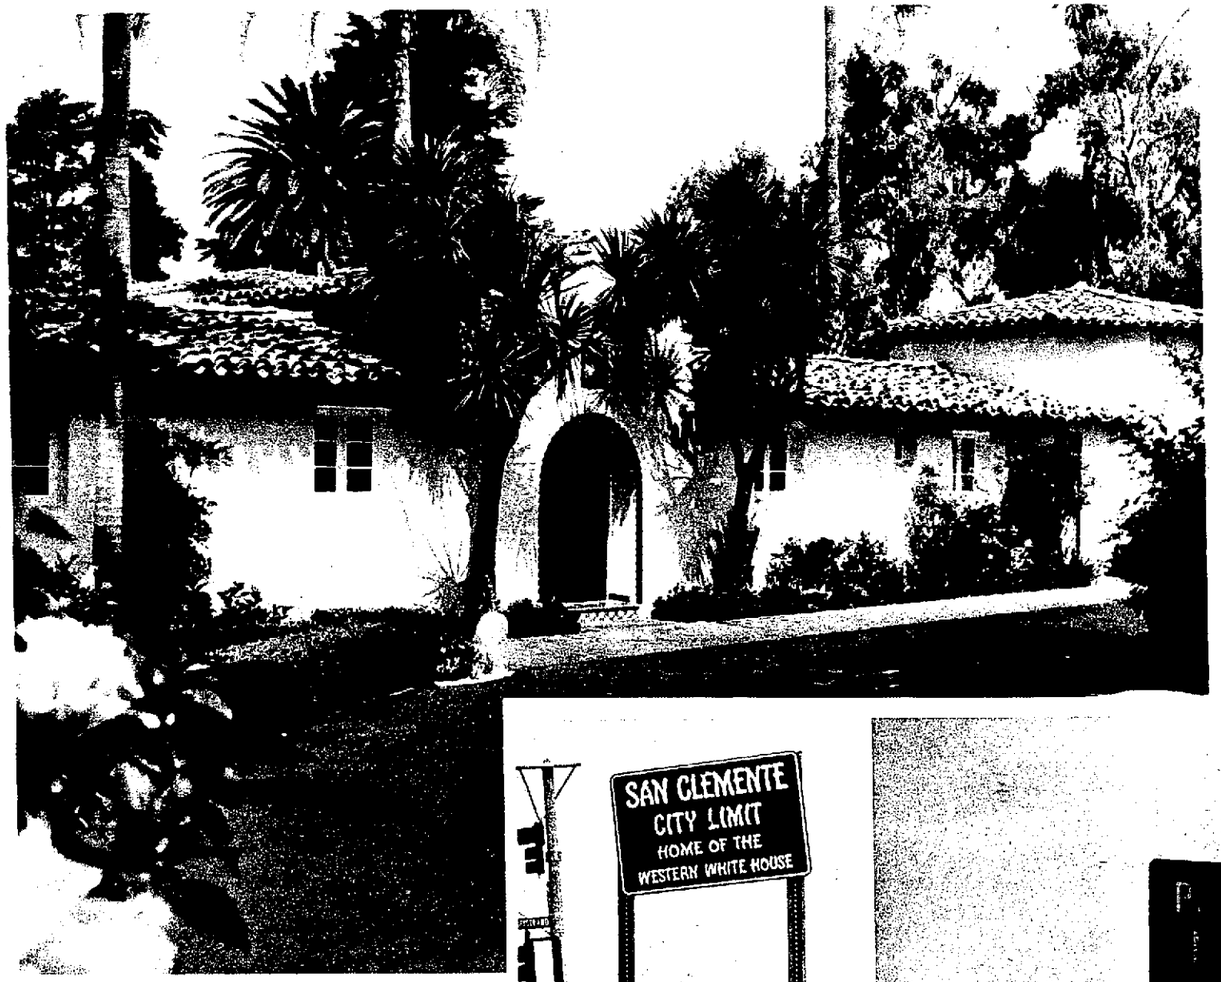

Broiler/Rotisseries. First of all, the Farberware Open Hearth® Broiler/Rotisserie* is smokeless and doesn't spatter, a feature you'll enjoy now that you're doing some of the cleaning up. Also, the fat from the meat drips down through a specially designed heating element into a drip pan. Which can be helpful to you in maintaining a healthy diet.

We make lots of other things, too. Electric fry pans, electric mixers, can opener/knife sharpeners, toasters. When you see them in the store, you'll be able to tell right away that they're well constructed and designed to serve you long and well.

Men know more about such things.

The town with presidential growing pains

The coastal retreat with the best climate in the world

By RICHARD TRUBO

When President Nixon first announced that his Western White House would be located in San Clemente, the standing joke in the small California beach town was, "Well, there goes the neighborhood!"

After all, San Clemente was not accustomed to international publicity and an epidemic of activity. Instead, it was one of those sleepy communities that never quite made the local travel maps, much less a map of the world. Its residents were quite content with having the annual school homecoming game as the major event of the year. Tourists who inadvertently chanced upon it could never quite remember its name — only that it was "that scenic little town midway between Los Angeles and San Diego."

But the community with the stucco buildings and the red-tile roofs has finally had progress forced upon it. In 1940 the census-takers could only find 479 people there; now more than that stop by each day on the tour buses alone. A swarming population of 18,150 is now permanent, with the number continually rising.

Today everyone wants to see "Mr. Nixon's town." Suddenly, San Clemente has acquired all the mystique and glamor that Hyannis Port assumed during the Kennedy era. The well-manicured public beaches, which had traditionally been a secluded retreat for a small but loyal group of sun worshippers, are now a tourists' haven. Some sightseers have brought empty olive jars with them to fill with beach sand — presumably hoping to collect a grain or two that may have drifted over from the presidential hideaway. The 1,200-foot-long fishing pier not only offers fishermen the chance at halibut and perch, but it also now allows them a distant view of the Western White House.

Nixon's isolated five-acre hacienda is snuggled atop a bluff overlooking the Pacific. He selected his West Coast residence in 1969 after a sojourn to nearby Mission San Juan Capistrano.

Now after four years, he has become quite comfortable in his 10-room, $340,000 home. It is located on the southernmost tip of San Clemente, surrounded by dozens of towering cypress, eucalyptus and palm trees. All of the rooms in the one-story house open into an inner patio garden, which has both a free-flowing fountain and a fireplace at its center.

The Spanish-style villa is bordered on the west by a stretch of private beach about as long as a football field. The extravagant price tag on Nixon's property can be partly attributed to luxuries like his own four-hole pitch-and-putt golf course and a 24-by-44-foot heated swimming pool.

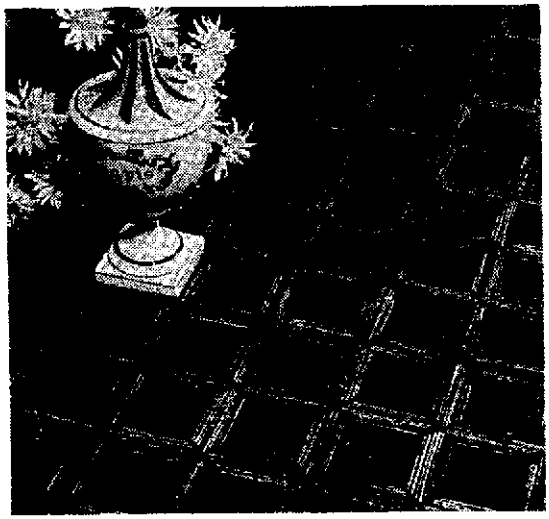

Taxpayers pay about $100,000 a year to maintain the Western presidential home. That includes the upkeep of security surveillance equipment, including spotlights that have been installed to illuminate the beach and the ocean at night to detect trespassers.

The First Family's choice of a site for their second home — and their future retirement estate — was not really surprising. San Clemente, after all, is located in Orange County, where the President was born and spent his childhood. Nixon's birthplace is just 27 miles to the north in Yorba Linda.

Orange County was also appealing to the President for political reasons. The county has always proudly heralded itself as the home of "California conservatism." Not only is the area predominantly Republican, but it also openly displays its patriotism with more American flags per square mile than anywhere else in the country.

The political leanings of Orange County traditionally touch all facets of its people's lives. The San Clemente school system was recently put in an uproar when the high school's graduating class decided to give the school a peace symbol as its class gift. The large symbol was set into the ground next to the campus sundial. At a school board meeting, one mother protested, "I object to it because it is being used by the revolutionaries in our country." Another claimed that the peace symbol was "an ancient symbol of evil and anti-Christ." Despite the loud dissent, the symbol was allowed to remain.

In addition to the politics and the hometown advantages of the area, President Nixon says he was also lured to Orange County by the weather. San Clemente's local newspaper carries the slogan, "World's Best Climate." And if you believe what the Chamber of Commerce tells you, Nixon's coastal retreat enjoys 342 days of sunshine a year and an average temperature of 67.2 degrees.

This is not the first time that San Clemente has played host to political dignitaries — including even another President. In the 1930's Franklin Roosevelt occasionally visited the very mansion where the Nixons now reside. The estate was then owned by oil magnate Henry Hamilton Cotton, who was also the Democratic Party's finance chairman. Cotton once threw a "small affair" for Roosevelt — an outdoor barbecue with 4,500 guests, horse racing on the beach and enough food to nourish an army.

But today the flavor is completely Nixonesque. When the Nixons moved into the Cotton estate, they had the home completely redecorated in golds and yellows. Before long, the city limit signs of San Clemente were officially identifying the community as "home of the Western White House." The main public street adjacent to the Nixon house was renamed Avenida Del President.

It seems like almost every store in the business district has somehow been affected by Nixon's presence. Dime stores and souvenir shops sell 49-cent pennants that promote San Clemente as the locale of the Western White House. And the local markets keep a large supply of macadamia-nut ice cream now that the President has revealed that the exotic dessert is his favorite flavor.

The public, however, has yet to see much of the First Family themselves. A conspicuous sign reading "No Sightseers Beyond this Point" serves as a warning at the only access road to the Nixon retreat. And if the sign is not enough of a deterrent, guards are stationed at the entry gate to keep the mansion free of all tourists.

As yet no unauthorized visitors have penetrated past the tight security of the Secret Service. On one occasion, some determined Santa Barbara citizens went to extremes when they were refused an audience with the President to discuss off-shore oil drilling. They perched their protest signs atop sailboats that they anchored near the private beach where Nixon takes his daily strolls. But before the President could ever see the signs, the Coast Guard forced the boats so far away from shore that their messages were all but unreadable.

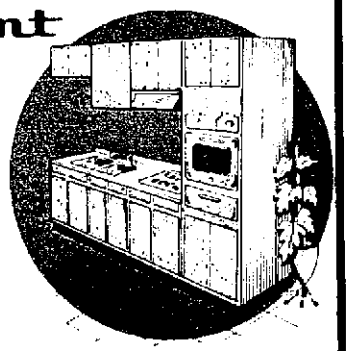

Thousands of other people have caught a glimpse of the Western White House — but probably didn't even realize it. When traveling on Interstate 5, if you look to the west at just the right moment, Nixon's retreat is visible for a second or two.

Although security forces have generally kept the President's accessibility to a minimum, the community is conscious that he is there. The San Clemente police department cancels all its days off and its officers work overtime when Nixon is in town. Presidential helicopters are frequently landing and taking off near the Western White House, bringing in both dignitaries and written briefs from Washington.

Since the President selected San Clemente as his second home and official voting address, almost 1,000 new telephone lines have been linked into the city to handle government affairs. One of the new phone connections is a direct hot line from the Western White House to Moscow.

Although some residents of San Clemente find all this activity rather exciting, others hope that things might return to normal when Nixon leaves the Presidency. They appreciated the tranquility and anonymity that their town once had before all the automobiles with out-of-state and government license plates appeared.

Some hope it'll return to normal

Until the President's arrival, there were few events of significance in San Clemente that long-time residents could recall. Some remember when swimming champ Johnny Weismuller outraced another well-known swimmer, Duke Kahanamoku, to celebrate the opening of a private beach club pool in 1927. Then there was the time that Charles Lindbergh flew a plane from San Diego to San Clemente, as a warm-up for his flight to Paris a few years later. And some oldtimers still talk about the huge riptide that destroyed 700 feet of San Clemente's pier in 1939. But things had generally been so routine that when a Los Angeles radio station once decided to sponsor a celebration in honor of San Clemente, they couldn't uncover a single event in the city's history worth celebrating.

San Clemente was founded in 1925 by a Norwegian named Ole Hanson. He was a prominent political figure of that era, almost capturing the Republican presidential nomination in 1920 from Warren Harding.

Hanson designed the city of San Clemente according to his own tastes. The mansions he built were all made of white stucco walls and tile roofs. He constructed a school and a hospital at his own expense, because he felt the town needed them. He organized enormous land sales jamborees, bringing people in from miles away to receive the hard-sell sales pitches.

The pioneer's grandson, Bob Hanson, who is a San Clemente real estate broker today, recalls how the town has changed since he arrived in the city more than 45 years ago. "San Clemente wasn't crowded then," he says. "It was quiet. You might say it was desolate, but only if you consider paradise desolate."

Some of San Clemente's residents continue to long for those days of "desolation." There were loud protests when the name of the street bordering the Nixon home was about to be changed to Avenida del Presidente. Residents of the street were polled, and they decisively voted against altering the name. But despite such sentiments, the city council decided by a vote of 4 to 1 to bring about the change anyway.

So it appears that San Clemente will never again be the quiet town it once was—especially since there are now plans to build a Presidential library and museum near the First Family's mansion. The Richard Nixon Foundation has already purchased 16 acres of land to house his Presidential mementos—and turn San Clemente into a permanent tourist attraction. One long-time resident, obviously bewildered by the transformation of his little town, says, "One day this place was a farm. The next day it was a city."

Of course, the news of the museum has not been met with total disapproval. Many property owners are particularly pleased with the influence of the First Family's presence.

Property values throughout San Clemente have taken healthy leaps since Nixon's move into the neighborhood, and that should continue if the people keep coming. The affluent Cyprus Shores housing development, located adjacent to the President's estate, has skyrocketed in value, with homes now priced from $40,000 to $225,000.

New housing tracts are being planned where there are now only barren hills. Dozens of modern apartment buildings are in the blueprint stages, and new shops and restaurants are opening as quickly as the dedication ribbons can be cut to handle the growing tourist trade. Since only half of San Clemente's 9,270 acres is developed, it will likely be experiencing growing pains long after Nixon has retired from the Presidency. Says City Manager Ken Carr, "Even if our boundaries don't expand, we could easily accommodate 70,000 people."

Most people anticipate that the First Family will make themselves more accessible when they finally leave Washington for the last time, and retire to their San Clemente home. The only glimpse that President-watchers have had of Nixon himself thus far is during his occasional visits to the community's restaurants and stores.

He once casually strolled into the Bay Cities Hardware Store and purchased three beach balls. The city's 18-hole municipal golf course has frequently hosted the President as well as both Julie and David Eisenhower.

Tourists have always been lured by the bells of nearby Mission San Juan Capistrano, but the crowds have been even larger since the President visited there. The famous attraction at the Mission is the flock of about 2,000 swallows that are there during the months of March through October, arriving each spring from Argentina 3,000 miles to the south. While in San Juan Capistrano, they build their mud nests under the eaves of the two-century-old mission buildings.

The birds instinctively depart the mission on St. John's Day (Oct. 23), and return again on St. Joseph's Day (March 19). On those occasions, tourists numbering up to 20,000 crowd into the community in the predawn hours to watch the arrival and departure of the swallows.

When Nixon visited the mission, he was greeted by senoritas in long flowering Spanish gowns. "I much prefer these to miniskirts," he told the young ladies, showing a favoritism for traditional wear. But before he left the mission, the President shook hands with a young artist dressed in a miniskirt eight inches above the knee. Nixon asked her to send him one of her works. She promptly did: It was a painting of three doves of peace.

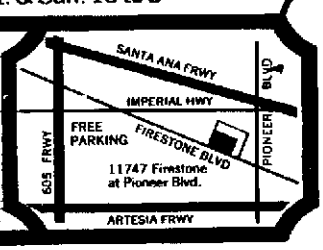

El Adobe, a fashionable Mexican cafe in San Juan Capistrano, recently spent 24 hours preparing a meal for the First Family and 78 newsmen when it learned they would be dining there the following afternoon. The chili dish which Nixon ordered is now officially called "The President's Choice" on the menu. Brass plaques immortalizing the President's visit have been affixed to the chairs where he and the First Lady sat, and an autographed menu decorates the restaurant's entry.

When tourists are not trying to outguess the President's next move, they are often peeking around corners in the lobby of the San Clemente Inn. The word is now out that the stylish hotel hosts government aides and the press when Nixon is in Southern California. Maybe it's not quite as impressive as seeing the President himself, but mingling with Kissinger, Rogers and Klein—not to mention Walter Cronkite—isn't bad at all. □

The documents of the nation:

By ANNE LEAR

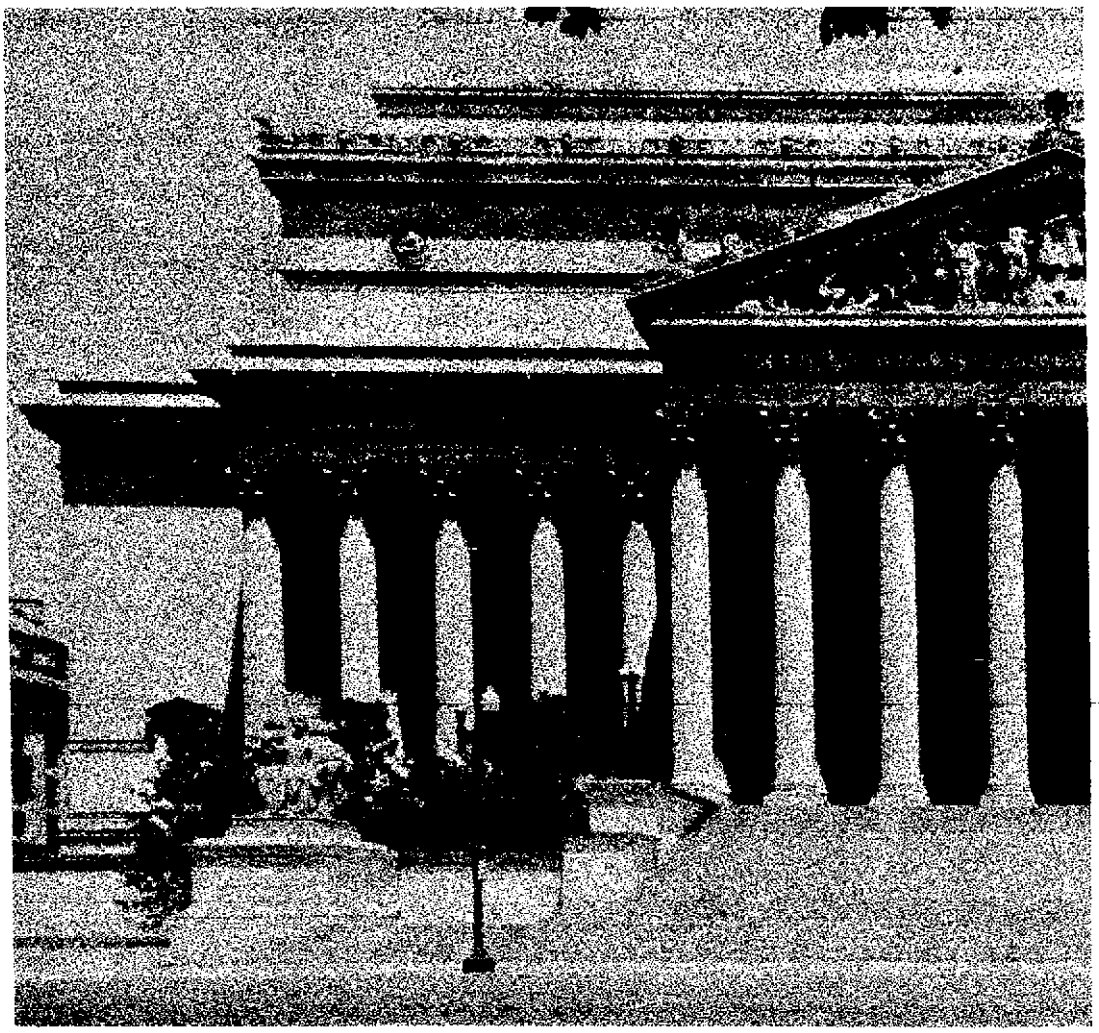

The historical core of the United States is at Eighth and Pennsylvania NW in Washington, D.C. There, in an elaborate set of bronze cases, in a special vault in the National Archives Building, which is itself a vault, are the originals of the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States and the Bill of Rights. These documents, upon which the sometimes frenzied busyness of the capital and the wider life of the nation are founded, are open to public view on all days except Christmas and New Year's Day, because it is to the public and to no one else that they belong.

The National Archives has two functions. It is responsible for sorting out and preserving those federal records worth saving and for making them available to the public. Anyone who visits the Archives, whether or not a citizen of this country, may examine any document, picture, tape or map in the stacks. Mathew Brady's original photographs, captured film World War II, the voices of Tokyo Rose and Lord Haw Haw, George Washington's expense accounts (including such items as payments made "to induce" spies to enter British held towns), monthly reports of frontier military posts and records of slave sales are all there and all open to inspection.

The physical facts of the building are astonishing. The classical structure, with its 72 Corinthian columns and massive allegorical statuary, conceals the fact that the Archives building is a fortress impenetrable to anything short of a nuclear blast, if that. The stack areas and the Exhibition Hall, where the three founding documents are displayed, are enclosed in a heavy shell of steel, concrete and marble. The use of wood for doors, panelling and so on is reserved for the office and research areas which are clustered along one facade of the building and outside of the shell. There is very little wood or other flammable material in the main part of the building, except, of course, for the precious papers themselves. Highly sophisticated smoke detectors and sprinklers are everywhere. The sprinklers have just been added, as earlier models were not considered sufficiently delicate to operate only in case of genuine need, and water at the wrong time can be nearly as damaging as fire itself. Temperature and humidity are kept at the levels current studies show to be most suitable for the preservation of parchment and paper.

Sixty-eight concrete compartments make up the protected stack areas, and each of these is 22 feet high and is divided into three floors by steel plates six inches thick. While the stack floors have communicating stairwells, the concrete compartments themselves are sealed, with no openings between them.

Theft is a danger too, although as John Byrne, head of the Educational Programs Division points out, it is hard to imagine where you would find a "fence" to sell the Declaration of Independence. A good look at the safeguards, however, suggests that it would be even harder to get it, or any other Archives how they are preserved and used document, in the first place. All doors to the stacks are locked most of the time, and only members of the staff have keys. At the front, rear and delivery entrances huge bronze doors, the front ones believed to be the largest in the world, slide silently into place at closing time each night, sealing the building like an enormous safe. The founding documents themselves have special protection, a vault of their own 25 feet below the ground. At night or in the event of any threat, they are lowered on scissors jacks, bronze cases and all, into their vault and there guarded from every threat their custodians have been able to envision.

The threats to these precious relics are more than just those of fire, theft or war. Like others of the older documents preserved, they are deteriorated and dangerously susceptible to further deterioration from the effects of light and air. Indeed, the Declaration is nearly illegible, so faded it is. Therefore, each page of the founding documents is sealed into a bronze and glass case filled with helium and provided with special filters. These cases are stacked in racks in their vault when they are not on display, the middle pages of the Constitution, for example, being brought out only on Constitution Day and for certain other special occasions like the forthcoming bicentennial celebrations.

Just now the display hall is closed to the public so that it may be cleaned and renovated for 1976. The walls and domed ceiling are being sand-blasted and repainted for the first time since they were completed in 1934. The new color is a shade lighter than the previous beige, but only a shade, as the light in that room is carefully limited. All the documents normally kept there have been removed for safekeeping during this work, including the Articles of Association, The Articles of Confederation, Washington's letter announcing the American victory at Yorktown, the Treaty of Paris - 1783 and Washington's Inaugural Address of 1789, all part of the regular "Formation of the Union" display.

In the fever of cleaning, even the great bronze doors are being polished, which should create a striking effect from outside.

There are three aspects to the archivists' job. Documents which come to their attention must be sorted, which is probably the most frustrating and time-consuming aspect; preserved, which requires and exercises tremendous technical ability; and made available to the public, which involves a degree of courtesy and what a former archivist called "a spirit of helpfulness," rarely encountered in public or private service. Wayne C. Grover, archivist of the United States from 1948 to 1965, used elsewhere in his "Archivist's Code" the phrase on which the nearby Smithsonian Institution was founded, declaring that archivists should work "for the increase and diffusion of knowledge," probably as succinct a definition of scholarship as has ever been offered.

If you wish to use the Archives, you go first to an office where your name, address, aca- 30 demic or occupational status (for the sake of appropriations), and present interest are inquired into and you receive a researcher's card. The only identification required is for your name. No one is ever turned away who complies with the basic rules concerning respect for the materials and for other researchers.

The next step is the office of one of the research consultants who discusses with you just what materials you need and how to get them, and then, if it seems helpful, calls ahead to the appropriate department and gives you directions on how to get there. If your consultant is John Lind, he will draw you a careful map to show you exactly which of the baffling corridors to use and which of the elevators in your area is most reliable. (The service elevators are just service elevators, however cranky, but the main elevators are a lovely combination of vast, carved mahogany splendor and dithering insanity of operation, oddly fitting in the grandiously archaic structure.

Then off you go to the impressive main reading room, the new mircofilm viewing room, or perhaps through non-flammable hallways and stacks to one of the special departments such as Military Records. At your destination, unless it is the microfilm viewing room, you notify the attendant of your arrival so that the materials you need may be brought to you promptly when they arrive from wherever in the bowels of the building they are stored in. In the viewing room you are theoretically supposed to hunt out your own films from their storage drawers, but William Stewart, who is in charge, generally goes along to help uncertain researchers through the maze.

check. Don't allow an unnecessary delay to come aggravating. This is not bureaucracy as it is usually practiced, but it is really the way it works at the National Archives.

Touring the stacks is a curious, not to say an arresting, experience. Labels and titles like SLAVE SALE RECORDS, GEORGIA 1854 and RECORDS OF THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS leap to the attention, with a slight shock as you realize they are genuine. However, the Audio-Visual Division is probably the most fun. The walls of the office spaces and research area are covered with huge matte blowups of fascinating portraits and historical moments. Do you wish to see a picture of some "Saloons and disreputable places of Hazen" (Nevada) in 1905? Thumb through the Brady file? Perhaps you would be interested in a shot of Miniconjou Sioux Chief Big Foot either in a seated half-length portrait or, a slightly later effort, lying dead and frozen on the snow-covered battlefield of Wounded Knee? There are pictures of Judge Roy Bean in his saloon-courthouse in Langtry and of the 1890 "Dodge City Peace Commissioners" including Bat Masterson, Wyatt Earp and Luke Short. In a lighter vein are the 1909 shot of Justice William O. Douglas and friends celebrating their discovery of Rainbow Bridge, Utah, with hunks of watermelon, and an 1870 study of "champagne corking" at the Buena Vista vineyard in Sonoma.

More recent history is not neglected, in spite of the preference of some of the archivists for material "at least 25 years old." World War II is especially well covered, for it is here in the Audio-Visual stacks that the captured enemy films and other records are stored. Just inside the stack door, on a top shelf, is a little group of girlish photo albums, most of them covered in gingham or floral print cotton. They look out of place among the offical boxes surrounding them, and Byrne is amused to be asked what they are. "Would you believe this?" he asks, brushing away a hanging ribbon to reveal the printed label on the shelf. But even then, until you have looked through the albums at the all too familiar faces in relaxed, and occasionally formal, poses, it seems unlikely that they could really be the private photo collection of Eva Braun.

It is a trifle alarming that the next stop on this private tour should happen to be the basement, where the first thing to loom up is a very large steel box with a heavy door and a lot of dials. "This is our gas chamber," says Byrne cheerfully, and when you have recovered, he explains that he is speaking the literal truth. All books and documents coming into the building are fumigated at once to destroy insects and molds which may have got into them and which would, of course, be a danger to the entire collection if they survived.

Elsewhere in the basement are laboratories where incredibly fragile pages of crumbling paper and parchment and other record-keeping materials are pieced together, restored as nearly as possible and sometimes laminated between preserving layers of cloth and plastic. The facilities, although crowded, are sophisticated and elaborate, as is the training of the men and women who use them.

The National Archives Building is not the only repository of American historical documents. There are 22 installations of the National Archives, all told, including the individual presidential libraries, a sort of halfway house in Maryland, where are kept documents which are either of only minor importance or have not yet aged enough for proper determination of their historical significance, and various regional branches scattered about the country. Documents considered most appropriate to a particular area are sent there, either in the original or on microfilm, so that local people can use them conveniently. There are two Archives branches in California, one in San Francisco and one in Los Angeles.

All federal agencies must turn over to the Archives any records dating back 50 years, but some, unfortunately for the archivists, prefer to do it sooner. There are 12 million cubic feet of storage space throughout the entire Archives facilities, and at 2,500 pieces of paper per cubic foot, that comes to something like 30 trillion papers already partially sorted and processed. But there is still plenty of work to be done even on these, and every year the federal government produces another six billion cubic feet of paper. If that were not enough to give an archivist nightmares, some of the material agencies send over is still classified, although as little of that is allowed in as possible. The Navy, for example, has sent to the Archives a large number of classified photographs, requiring the addition of a special staff to get them declassified and out of their special vault just as quickly as the Navy will allow. The medical records concerning the death of the late President Kennedy are in the classified vault too, available only to authorized investigators. The archivists say they would prefer to have no classified material at all, as they are concerned to make national records available freely and without restriction to the public.

Aside from the massive quantities of paper involved, the reason for the Archives' incomplete labors is that it was not established until 1934. Until that time federal records had been lying about in various offices, attics, basements and even garages. A few were well kept, but many had been allowed to deteriorate into moldy tatters. Congress had begun to take steps toward creation of a proper storehouse for federal documents in 1916, but World War I delayed the project until President Coolidge pushed it during his administration.

President Hoover laid the cornerstone in 1933, and two years later the building was complete. In 1949, when the General Services Administration was organized, the National Archives and Record Service joined the other agencies gathered under that umbrella. The special vaults were completed in 1952, and the Constitution, the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights were moved over from the Library of Congress in that year.

One of the most popular uses for the Archives is as a source for genealogical research. Old census records, pension lists and military rosters fill the screens in the busy microfilm viewing room, as Americans search for their ancestors. Ship's passenger lists are helpful too, and all the other curious lists wherein our names have been entered over the centuries and events of the country's history.

Black Americans come in increasing numbers now to seek out their interrupted backgrounds. According to James Walker, the Archives' genealogy and local history specialist, interest in black genealogy took a sharp upturn when Alex Haley began lecturing on the subject in 1969. His article, Roots, which appeared in the Washington Post in December 1971 provided a further stimulus, although Walker says that part of the interest may simply be traceable to a renewed general interest in genealogy which is now being taught in some colleges. Black ancestor hunting has 34 some obvious frustrations, one of which is the tendency of the old slave records to list people as "Susan and her daughter, Sarah," which is less than helpful.

American Indians, too, are finding a renewed interest in their lineage and in what the Archives can tell them about it.

On the Pennsylvania Avenue side of the National Archives building is a small triangular plot of grass with a few shrubs and flowering trees and a patch of tulips. Among the tulips stands a very simple white stone inscribed, In Memory of Franklin Delano Roosevelt 1882-1945. In front and slightly to the right of the memorial is a small bronze tablet set into the ground, and it explains the situation in properly Archival fashion: "In September of 1941 President Franklin Delano Roosevelt called his friend, Supreme Court Justice Frankfurter, to the White House and asked the Justice to remember the wish he then expressed: 'If any memorial is erected to me, I know exactly what I should like it to be. I should like it to consist of a block about the size of this (putting his hand on his desk) and placed in the center of that green plot in front of the Archives Building. I don't care what it is made of, whether limestone or granite or whatnot, but I want it plain, without any ornamentation, with the simple carving, In Memory of —. A small group of living associates of the President, on April 12, 1965, the 20th anniversary of his death, fulfilled his wish by providing and dedicating this modest memorial."

It is a perfect companion to the Archives, this memorial — the physical record carefully maintained and the source neatly documented; in combination, making a moment of United States history suddenly and vividly present. □

WORKSHOP

Their home away from home

By STEVE ELLINGSON

Children need their play to grow on just as much as milk and spinach. So why not keep them off the grass, out of traffic and away from trouble with a playhouse of their very own? Furthermore, it will make mother's job as recreation director much easier. Once the house is built, she doesn't need to worry about planning activities to keep the youngsters busy.

Unlike most children's playthings, this one has many useful years after the children grow up—for instance, as a potting shed and garden-tool storehouse. It's an easy project, designed for economy as well as appearance. You will notice it has dutch doors, windows, a large overhanging roof the same as an adult's home. Here kids can play at housekeeping, have club meetings and give tea parties to their heart's content.

The house is easy to construct when you use the easy-to-follow plan. The principal material used is exterior plywood. The design is such that the walls and roof may be made inside, in your work shop, and taken outdoors for quick assembling.

To obtain the easy-to-follow plan No. 224 for building the playhouse shown here, send $1 (add 25 cents extra per pattern for airmail delivery) by currency, check or money order to:

ANSWER TO CROSSWORD
(See Page 39)

GOURMET

by Tedd Thomey

"Restaurant work is much harder than the public realizes. You work crazy hours. You work Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. You work late at night, and you're forced to eat your own meals at odd times. It takes a very special kind of woman to be a good waitress under such conditions. . ."

That statement was made by restaurateur Carl Nickoloff who has spent much of his life in the food and beverage industry. He is the owner of Nik's Restaurant and Viking Room, Cherry Avenue at Wardlow Road, which for many years has enjoyed an enviable reputation for the high standards of its food and waitress service.

Nik's waitresses rank with the best in town. They try to be cheerful even under the most trying conditions. They are hired because they have pleasant personalities and have higher-than-average devotion to their jobs.

"In our business," says Carl, "a good waitress is the one who realizes there is more to her job that material rewards. She works for the satisfaction of knowing she is doing good work. That's why quite often we hear a customer say, 'Gee, I enjoyed my meal. The service was so great!'"

Now in its 16th year, Nik's is an attractively designed, immaculate restaurant open for breakfast, luncheon and dinner. The food is always fresh and delicious and the prices are modest. Every day, including Saturday and Sunday, Nik's features a daily special, $1.85 for dinner and $1.35 for luncheon. The entrees range from sirloin tips, beef stew or perhaps pork chops to meat loaf or chicken-fried steak.

The regular menu emphasizes seafoods which win constant praise from the patrons, such as superlative grilled halibut steak, fish sticks, jumbo shrimp and deep sea scallops, $1.70 to $2.35, all with choice of soup or chilled tomato juice or a fine salad with gourmet dressing. Also featured are veal cutlets, ground round steak, top sirloins and New York cut steaks, $1.95 to $3.95.

Other attractions include the "sandwich of the day" with soup or salad, $1.15, deep-dish fruit pies and fancy sundaes.

GUIDE

ANOTHER RESTAURANT with unusually outstanding waitress service is the bay view Captain's Inn, 215 Marina Dr.

Several times recently, customers have phoned this department saying, "Put something nice in your column about those girls at the Captain's Inn. They're really the best!"

Owned by George Heinrich, the inn uses an employes' manual which helps its waitresses maintain consistently attractive appearance and work habits. The manual, written by George, gives them instruction on everything from breath care and hair grooming to following the inn's philosophy that "the customer is king."

The inn, which opened in 1957, has a prize location at the water's edge in the Long Beach yacht marina. It serves dinner every night and luncheons on Saturday and Sunday. George, who is a professional chef as well as a restaurateur, offers such superb dinner entrees as filet of Petrale sole delmonico, the mariner's platter, dolphin with a pulao of crab and shrimp, baby lamb chops and the finest, pampered steaks, $5.45 to over $7.

Monday through Friday nights from 5 to 6:30, the inn features early bird dinners which are beautiful affairs with many entrees in the $2.95 to $3.95 range. They include relish tray, soup or salad, potato, vegetable du jour, beverage and dessert.

The inn's plush but friendly Commodore's Lounge has entertainment seven nights a week. The artistry of Don Lee Ellis is featured Wednesday through Sundays. He's an award-winning Hammond organist who has recorded four albums. He is one of Long Beach's most talented performers. His romantic baritone is thrilling on such works as The Impossible Dream and a variety of other pop favorites.

Don is a friendly, gracious fellow who enjoys performing audience requests. The same is true of Dick Cramer, who performs Monday and Tuesday nights. He's a youthful organist-vocalist with a sparkling style and lots of personality.

Medicine & You

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

"Chemical surgery" is one approach to saving sight threatened by glaucoma, an eye disorder.

The knifeless surgery is used by Dr. Monte G. Holland and colleagues at Tulane University, according to a report in the periodical Research and Invention.

Glaucoma is characterized by excessive fluid pressure within the eyeball. The buildup of pressure can damage the optic nerve and retina, to lead to blindness.

For most persons, administration of drops which affect the production or outflow of aqueous humor, watery fluid in the eye, reduces the pressure.

For some patients, surgical techniques have been the only means of holding down pressure, but for others they are too risky, the report says.

Dr. Holland's surgery is injecting or bathing the eye with a drug known as 6-hydroxydopamine (6-HD). This inactivates nerve endings for six weeks to more than four months, leaving the eye extremely sensitive to further treatment with pressure-reducing medicines.

Repeated chemical surgery is required, but 6-HD has remained effective for Dr. Holland's patients over a two-year period.

What happens is that the 6-HD, in inactivating the nerve endings, stops them from draining away the drugs that can control intraocular pressure.

"What we have is not a substitute for conventional therapy," says Dr. Holland, "but an adjunct for desperate cases, patients who are beyond the reach of therapy and faced with almost certain blindness."

An oddity of human anatomy plays a role in a peculiar football injury that occurs sometimes when a defensive player grabs the ball carrier.

The injury occurs when the runner twists and pulls away from the grasp of the would-be tackler.

The injury is to the ring finger.

The anatomical oddity can be illustrated by the following demonstration:

Hold up your hand and make a fist.

Straighten out each finger, one at a time.

Notice that the ring finger won't straighten out by itself as easily as the other fingers.

The football injury causes a sharp pain, and later the finger swells and stiffens. A tendon has been torn apart.

If not repaired promptly by surgery, the result might be a permanent stiff finger.

The injury is known to surgeons as profundus digitorum tendon avulsion.

Dr. Dennis R. Wenger of the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics, Iowa City, says the injury often goes unrecognized or is improperly treated. It is occurring with increasing incidence in football players. The ring finger is most often involved because it cannot be extended independently.

"Team physicians are generally unaware of this injury and therefore diagnosis and treatment are delayed," Dr. Wenger says. "Such delays prevent optimum return of function."

Other medical researchers have reported such injuries in Australian rugby players, he says.

Details appear in Archives of Surgery, a journal published by the American Medical Association.

A study of 196 consecutive patients with cancer of the cervix (neck of the womb) has not confirmed any increase in the disease among women who use oral contraceptives.

The study was conducted by Dr. John G. Boyce and associates at State University of New York, Downstate Medical Center.

The patients were compared with an equal number of women who had normal cervical smears, according to reports in Obstetrics and Gynecology, a medical journal, and in Ob. Gyn. News, a newspaper for doctors.

New research suggests that there may be new thinking regarding the way in which the common cold is transmitted.

It may be, says a researcher, that handwashing is more important than covering up coughs and sneezes in preventing the spread of colds.

Dr. Jack M. Gwaltney Jr., head of the division of epidemiology at virology at the University of Virginia, says that viruses that cause colds can be transferred to practically any object by the hands. And they then can be picked up by another person.

He and his associates are now trying to learn if this is the main way in which colds are transmitted from one person to another.

Under study are organisms known as rhinoviruses.

If it is true that these viruses spread skin to skin, then there may be some merit in looking for hand preparations and surface cleaners as control measures, Dr. Gwaltney says.

The report is in Medical World News, a newsmagazine for physicians.

WALTER SCOTT'S
Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Want informed opinion? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 3rd Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. If Richard Nixon knew nothing about the Watergate crimes and the political sabotage of his subordinates, why didn't he?—R.S., Washington, D.C.
A. If he knew nothing because of untrustworthy, incompetent subordinates who lied to him or declined to tell him all, then he is guilty of poor judgment—the same accusation leveled against Sen. George McGovern when he chose Sen. Tom Eagleton of Missouri as his running mate in the 1972 Presidential race.

Q. Steve King, the former FBI agent who, according to Martha Mitchell, manhandled her in Newport, Calif., last summer—what's happened to the poor guy?—B. T., Baltimore, Md.
A. King has gone to work for Earl Butz, Secretary of Agriculture.

Q. Is it true that Dean Martin's wedding to Cathy Hawn cost him $300,000?—Renee Hershkowitz, Philadelphia, Pa.
A. About half that sum, including a $50,000 wedding ring.

AT THE RECEPTION:
DEAN MARTIN WITH BRIDE CATHY HAWN

Q. Can you tell me why WBIR-TV, a local station here, refused to show Ingmar Bergman's play, The Lie?—D.B., Knoxville, Tenn.
A. Of the 197 stations affiliated with the CBS-TV network, three declined to carry The Lie in which an actor and actress appeared partly nude in a bedroom scene. The three are WBIR-TV in Knoxville, KOTV in Tulsa, Okla., and WCAX-TV in Burlington, Vt.

LOU ADLER AND BRITT EKLAND

Q. Britt Ekland, the Swedish actress who was once married to actor Peter Sellers—I understand she is pregnant by Lou Adler, a Hollywood record producer. When is the baby due?—Amy L., Hollywood, Calif.
A. Any minute—if the baby hasn't already arrived.

Q. Elliot Richardson, the newly appointed Attorney General and former Secretary of Defense who closed so many military and naval installations in Massachusetts—isn't he politically a dead duck in this state? —Pat Doyle, Brockton, Mass.
A. Richardson once had dreams of running for the U.S. Senate or the Governorship of Massachusetts, now probably thinks he might make it as the Republican Vice Presidential nominee in 1976. Hope springs eternal in the breasts of all politicians, and Richardson is one of the most hopefully ambitious of them all.

Q. I have heard rumors that during the course of the Pentagon Papers trial, the judge in charge of the case, Matt Byrne, had his telephone bugged. Can you confirm?—P. W., Pasadena, Calif.
A. No one knows for sure. At one point Byrne joking suggested to friends that it might well be true.

Q. Is it true that Sammy Davis Jr. owns the most expensive auto in Hollywood?—Karen Bart, Toluca Lake, Calif.
A. One of the most expensive. He paid $37,000 for a Stutz Bearcat.

Q. In retrospect why were Bob Haldeman and John Ehrlichman so widely disliked by the White House press corps?—L. Glazer, New York, N.Y.
A. Arrogance, real or fancied.

Q. Is it a fact that actress Mia Farrow can have no more children of her own, which is why she is adopting some?—Lee Kaiser, Miami Beach, Fla.
A. Mia Farrow, 28, is capable of having more children if she so desires. She and her conductor-composer husband, Andre Previn, however, recently adopted a 3-months-old Vietnamese orphan girl named Kym Lark. The infant arrived from Saigon under the care of Terre des Hommes, a private French organization concerned with the adoption of Vietnamese and Korean orphans. The Previns have a pair of boy twins, Sascha and Matthew.

THE PREVINS: MIA FARROW AND ANDRE WITH KYM LARK AND THE TWINS

Q. Have they found an actress to play Eleanor Roosevelt in the TV version of her life?—Karl Marsh, Hempstead, N.Y.
A. Yes, Rosalind Russell, 62, has met the approval of the Roosevelt family to star in the Eleanor Roosevelt teleplay.

Is Astrology a $100 Million Hoax?

by Mort Weisinger

Four top stars in the world of astrology

ZOLAR

MAURICE WOODRUFF

CARROLL RIGHTER

A few weeks before the historic orbiting of the moon by the Apollo 8 crew, the Federation of British Astrologers made a dire prophecy: "The probability of serious personality changes among the three astronauts during this voyage is very high," they announced. "Jupiter and Uranus are in conjunction for the first time in 14 years, and the influences of these planets are very strong."

Undaunted, NASA officials ignored the warning. The mission went off exactly as programmed and the spacemen splashed down safely and as sound as ever.

Obviously, our space agency takes little stock in astrology. But to countless believers, the 6000-year-old concept that the celestial spheres affect human lives and global events is as unshakable as a witch doctor's faith in his voodoo spells.

Millions of believers

In the U.S. alone, an estimated 10 million people are convinced their future is written in the stars. And an army of these believers regularly consults the nation's 200,000 professional and amateur astrologers.

All this is literally manna from heaven for the astrology merchandisers. Millions are spent on things like forecast wheels, zodiac charts, astrology books, magazines and paperbacks ranging in title from How to Play the Horses Horoscopically to Cooking by Astrology. Bulls, rams and goats gallop over cravats and cufflinks, plateware and waterbeds.

The astrology craze knows no boundaries. In Monaco, Princess Grace hosted a Scorpio Ball, with guests appearing costumed as Madame Curie, Marie Antoinette and other Scorpios of history. In West Germany, the magazine Der Spiegel commissioned a high-priced priest of astrology to chart the Jackie and Ari Onassis horoscopes. In France, President Georges Pompidou says he follows the daily horoscope broadcasts of Madame Soleil, the country's leading astrologer.

'What's your sign?'

Today, at a cocktail party, you are as likely to be asked your sign as your name. Jackie Gleason, gung-ho on the subject, refuses to fly ever since he got a reading that danger would stalk him in the air. Resort managers lure spouse-hunting singles by seating couples with compatible signs around the same dining table.

What is the principle behind astrology? How is it supposed to work?

Astrologers hold that the solar system influences human affairs. The early practitioners believed that the location of the sun, moon, planets and stars at the moment a child was born had a direct impact on his character, and charting their position at any time after his birth, would reveal his destiny.

Modern astrologers have jazzed up this explanation. They hold that at the moment of birth the infant's genes are struck by radiations from the stars and planets. Exposure to the mix of these rays triggers various influences on the infant. These forces will alter his genes biochemically and program his personality.

They further assert that by analyzing the subject's birth chart, and correlating it with classic histories in their annals, they can read his traits, emotions, weaknesses, and guide him in matters of health and wealth, love and marriage, success and failure, life and death.

Contend the astrologers: "Our art is based on a wedding of astronomy, physics, mathematics, biology and psychology."

But the scientific community says that equating astrology with the legitimate sciences is like comparing alchemy with chemistry or faith-healing with medicine. The few predictions which come true are attributed to coincidence.

Says Dr. Harold Spencer Jones, distinguished HM Astronomer of the Royal Observatory in Greenwich, England: "I have had shoals of letters, many of them tragic, telling how the belief in it [astrology] has ruined homes which until one of the partners took it up were very happy ones. I have never yet seen any argument put forward in support of astrology which would bear the least scientific investigation."

Psychological harm

Dr. Charles Wahl, professor of psychosomatic medicine at UCLA's Neuropsychiatric Institute, puts it even more harshly: "I've seen astrology and the reliance on horoscopes do decided psychological harm, and my view corresponds with almost all scientifically educated persons, in that astrology is a system of belief maintained without any shred of scientific proof and, like all species of irrationality, it does, in the long run, incredible harm. It also gives charlatans an enormous advantage in preying on the minds of the easily influenced."

Amram Scheinfeld, a leading geneticist who lectures at Yale, Cornell and Columbia, and who is also the author of You and Heredity, torpedoes astrology's basic cornerstone with this observation: "Their position that cosmic forces affect an infant's personality at the moment of birth is genetically untenable," he told me. "For this theory to be valid, the influence on the genes would have to occur at the moment of the child's conception, not at his birth. So, even if you accept their charade of cosmic cause and natal effect, all their charts are plotted nine months too late."

An Aries or a Pisces?

Professor Owen S. Rachleff, who teaches a course at New York University that debunks the occult arts, invariably convinces his students that astrology is snake oil because it still clings to the ancient belief which erroneously places the earth, not the sun, at the center of the solar system, and which ignores precession, or the regular shifting of the earth's equinoxes. It is precession which has caused each sun sign to fall back about 30 days in the last 2000 years, so that everyone who thinks he's an Aries is really a Pisces, and a Pisces is really an Aquarius, etc.

But enough of this astrologer-scientist squabbling. Let us zero in on the oracles themselves. How did they learn their profession? What are their qualifications?

The credentials of the big-leaguers range from the incredible to the inane. Sybil Leek claims to be a witch. Jeane Dixon is on record that she derived her powers from a crystal ball given to her as a child by an old Gypsy. Linda Goodman insists she has excellent basic training for her profession: "In a former incarnation, I was an astrologer." The Great Zolar is an ex-men's wear salesman who learned his trade from a boardwalk star-gazer who hawked $1 horoscopes in Atlantic City, N.J.

When Zsa Zsa Gabor and George Sanders wed, Carroll Righter predicted a long, happy union. Righter couldn't have been wronger.

Astrologer Righter also forecast wedded bliss for Tyrone Power and Linda Christian. Married in 1949, they divorced six years later.

Famed Carroll Righter, who calls himself "The Gregarious Aquarius," is an ex-lawyer. Although his clients include Marlene Dietrich, Peter Lawford, Robert Cummings, Susan Hayward and other Hollywood luminaries, he did not warn any of them to evacuate California before the severe earthquake there a few years ago. Nor were his planetary clocks ticking in synch for Zsa Zsa Gabor and George Sanders and Linda Christian and Tyrone Power when he advised both couples the time was propitious for a happy marriage. Each pair split.

In his book, The Psychic World of California, author David St. Clair crowns Doris Chase Doane as the "Queen" of the coast's astrologers. "Her books are read by thousands, her charts are done for some of the state's top actors and politicians."

The pull of a full moon

Mrs. Doane, who is also president of Professional Astrologers, Inc., is positive there is a relationship between the heavens and the earth. "Look at how the moon affects the tides," she says. "Ask any policeman about the marked increase in murders and rapes during a full moon."

I took her advice and checked with New York City's Police Department. "Criminals shun well-lit areas," a high official told me. "If anything, a full moon is a deterrent to their activities."

In ancient times the soothsayer who misread his monarch's stars died by the executioner's sword. If heads were to roll today for false prophecies, one notable casualty would be seeress-psychic-astrologer Jeane Dixon. She predicted that the Russians would be the first to land on the moon; that Red China would start World War III in 1958; that Nixon would defeat Kennedy in 1960; and that Senator McGovern would not be a Presidential candidate in 1972.

Another victim would be Carl P. Tobey, also a superstar in the astrology world's galaxy. He rose to the top when he forecast the assassination of President Kennedy. But he also predicted Ronald Reagan would be the Republican Presidential candidate in 1968 and that the Vietnam war would end on Dec. 26, 1968, "give or take a few days."

True believers however, remember only when their astrologers were right. "The predictions of astrologers are usually so vague that they cannot be confirmed or disproved properly. Failures are easily overlooked, while an occasional chance hit is dramatic enough to maintain the behavior of the devotee in considerable strength," observes the eminent psychologist B. F. Skinner, in his book, Science and Human Behavior.

Maurice Woodruff, perhaps the grand guru of astrology, declares he is a clairvoyant and has extrasensory perception. His astrology books have sold over 50 million copies, and he leapfrogs from one TV show to another. In 1969, here were some of his predictions for the coming year:

1. "Jackie Onassis will have a son. In spite of that, the marriage won't last more than two years, and it is he who will leave. Her extravagance will be her undoing."

2. "I doubt that Spiro Agnew will serve full time in his office. If he does, he will not stand for re-election."

3. "The great sensation of 1970 will be the discovery of a cure for cancer. When it does occur, the research men will be kicking themselves, because it had been lying about under their eyes all the time."

4. "In the field of fashion, I predict men will go back to wearing knickers."

Meanwhile, the astrology bandwagon rolls on. A few years ago, when California offered to let car-owners choose their own combinations of up to six letters or numbers on their license plates for an extra $25, overnight there was a deluge of requests for plates reading Virgo, Pisces, Leo, Libra, Taurus, etc. Drivers born under Capricorn, Aquarius and Sagittarius were out of luck, and had to settle for privately printed Day Glo bumper stickers at five bucks a throw. And now something new has been added—free horoscopes by telephone, for residents in major cities. The service is known as Dial Your Stars. When it was tested in Denver recently, it pulled 1.25 million calls in five weeks. An advertising sponsor picks up the tab.

It is estimated that this year the American public will spend $100 million on astrology and its spinoffs. Nice work if you can get it.

Wisconsin pride: Terry Anne Meeuwsen was chosen last fall as Miss America. Can astrologer pick next state to win?

A CHALLENGE

Below are 10 events which may occur by the end of 1973. We challenge any professional astrologer to accurately predict any seven. Any astrologer who does so will become the subject of a story to be published in Parade early next year.

This challenge is put only to professionals who earn more than half their income from astrology. Only one list of predictions may be submitted by each. Lists must be notarized and sent in regular-sized Number 10 business envelopes by registered mail, and all entries must be postmarked by June 15. Actual events to be predicted must occur between June 22 and 12:01 a.m. Jan. 1, 1974. Parade will not return the predictions, and reserves the right to quote the full contents or extracts from all predictions received. Send all entries to HOROSCOPES, Parade, 733 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

1) Predict the time and place (within 48 hours and 100 miles) of a major natural disaster involving the loss of more than 100 lives and state the nature of the disaster.

2) Name the athlete who will shatter a sports record.

3) Name any famous person who will commit suicide, and give the date within one week.

4) Name any famous political figure, in the U.S. or elsewhere, who will leave his office in disgrace. Give the date within one week.

5) Give the date, within 48 hours, when the Dow-Jones Industrial averages will reach their highest and lowest marks during the time period stated.

6) Name the state from which Miss America will be chosen.

7) Predict a surprise event that will appear on the front page of every major newspaper in the U.S., and give the time, within 48 hours.

8) Predict the nature of a major breakthrough in medical science, or so considered by the American Medical Association.

9) Give the names of the teams in baseball, football or basketball, which will be involved in the major upset of the year in their particular sport.

10) Name the individual or individuals who will be Time magazine's "Man of the Year" (or Woman) for 1973.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

EDITED by LLOYD SHEARER

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES.

The "Sound of Music" family today: (l. to r.) Charmian Carr, Duane Chase, Heather Menzies, Nicholas Hammond, Julie Andrews, Angela Cartwright, Kym Karath, Debbie Turner.

THE SECOND TIME AROUND

Eight years ago, 20th Century-Fox released a super-schmaltzy musical starring Julie Andrews and seven unknown children. "The Sound of Music" won five Oscars, grossed $100 million, maintained the financial solvency of the studio.

This summer, Fox is releasing the story of the Von Trapp Family singers for the second time, convinced that a new crop of filmgoers will pay almost as much as the old to see the corporation's most successful money-maker.

Although Julie Andrews and Christopher Plummer were accorded top billing in "The Sound of Music," the seven little tender Trapps ran off with the audience kudos.

What's happened in the intervening years to those magnificent youngsters who played Captain Von Trapp's lovable children?

A few weeks ago, just before Julie Andrews took off for England -- she's left Hollywood -- the studio staged a cast reunion. And the seven youngsters showed up and checked in.

Charmian Carr who played Liesl, the oldest daughter, is now 26, out of show business and married to Jay Brent, a dentist. She lives in Encino, Calif., looks after her 3-year-old, Jenny. "My husband," she says, "is sort of old-fashioned. He gave me a choice of marriage to him or an acting career, and I chose marriage."

Nicholas Hammond who played Friedrich, oldest of the Von Trapp boys, is 22, attended Princeton after working in the movie, appears regularly on TV, recently worked in the movie, "Skyjacked."

Angela Cartwright, 20, who played Brigitta, starred as Danny Thomas' daughter on his TV show for seven years and continues to work in films. "I don't believe," she says, "I've ever met anyone who hasn't seen 'The Sound of Music.'"

Kym Karath (Gretl) is 14 and works steadily in Hollywood television.

Debbie Turner who played Marta, has now, at 16, fallen out of love with show business. "When we came home from Austria," she says, "where we made much of the picture, I had a hard time adjusting, but now I've turned to modeling, because acting work in Hollywood is so scarce."

Heather Menzies, who played Louisa when she was 14, is now 22, married to an actor, and working regularly in television.

Duane Chase, 21, who played the mischievous Kurt who teased the girls, is a long-haired college student majoring in geology in Santa Barbara, Calif. "I had a marvelous time working on 'The Sound of Music,'" he recalls, "and I did some more acting for a few years after that. But everyone grows up, you know, and I guess that's what's happened to me."

Twentieth Century-Fox plans to release "Sound of Music" every eight or 10 years which is what MGM does with "Gone with the Wind," and Disney has done with "Snow White," "Bambi," "Mary Poppins," and all the others. In Hollywood such productions are called "money-in-the-bank."

$25 MILLION WORTH OF BOARDS When a sticky problem presents itself -- campus riots, heroin addiction, housing scandals -- the time-honored escape gimmick is the advisory commission.

The President appoints some respectable, non-controversial figure, asks him to form a commission to study the problem and recommend a solution.

As of last month President Nixon and the federal government had the incredible total of 1439 such groups working for them. These commissions dispense advice on cholera, agriculture, aviation, you name it. Last year their advice cost the taxpayers $25.2 million.

According to a report on advisory commissions and boards put together by the Office of Management and Budget, Mr. Nixon currently has 21 advisory committees laboring especially for him. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare employs another 367 committees. Agriculture has 172. Interior follows with 126. And the Department of Defense with 95.

Some of these committees perform yeoman work. Others work long and hard, but, if the President disagrees with their conclusions or recommendations, he simply ignores them.

As of this writing the Office of Management and Budget is requesting every federal agency to report by July 2 on whether its advisory committees should be abolished or continued or reformed.

AUSTRALIA CHANGES After five months in office, Australia's new Labor government, headed by Prime Minister Gough Whitlam, is turning that country into a welfare state.

Already he has increased the aid to the aboriginal community and moved against the acquisition by overseas financial interests of Australian corporations and resources.

He wants the aboriginal tribes to be given title to their land which was stolen when Australia was colonized in 1788. And he plans to introduce a national health scheme for all Australians.

He is preparing legislation to grant the vote to 18-year-olds, to abolish capital punishment, to give each civil service worker at least four weeks' vacation with pay.

In foreign affairs, Whitlam has recognized North Vietnam, China, East Germany, and has established diplomatic contact with North Korea. In the United Nations Australia has started voting with Third World countries.

According to Whitlam, what his countrymen want is a nation in which the people are provided with more opportunity, tolerance and equality.

DETECTING BY EAR European police are experimenting with a surprising new technique of criminal identification -- ear prints. They base this on the contention that ears are even more distinctive than the patterns that make up fingerprints.

Michael Fooner, U.S. criminologist, in his current book "Interpol," quotes one European expert: "The ear is the most distinguishing of human features. With its many cavities and undulations, there is such a wide variety of possible structures that it is almost impossible to find two persons whose ears are identical in all their parts. Moreover, the shape of the ear does not alter from birth to death."

Of course, criminals are not going to leave ear prints strewn around as they might finger prints, though there's a Swiss case on record in which a burglar was identified through an ear print he left on a door frame while leaning hard against it in forcing the door. More likely, suspects in criminal cases would be routinely ear-printed in police stations, and a central bank of such prints would be built up for identification use in future cases.

JAPAN'S TYCOONS AND THE SIMPLE LIFE

They are the tycoons behind the Japanese economic miracle --the men who have brought you Sony TV's, Toyota cars, Honda motorcycles, Hitachi electrical equipment, and a slew of other products bearing that familiar label, "Made in Japan." They are also the ones who have catapulted Japan to its present status as third in value of total production (behind the United States and the Soviet Union). And in so doing, they have won the reputation as the shrewdest businessmen in the world today.

But as dazzling as these accomplishments are, the surprising fact is that Japan's top businessmen do not live dazzling or luxurious lives. Generally speaking, they are not well-known personalities; they seldom make headlines; and when they spend their money -- and many of them have lots of it to spend -- they do not go in for yachts, or sports cars, or mansions.

Why? "Because it is not the Japanese way to flaunt one's wealth," answers Hirokichi Yoshiyama, president of Hitachi, one of Japan's largest corporations. "My wife and I live in a five-room apartment here in Tokyo and it is quite sufficient for us. In my opinion, luxuries only complicate life." Adds Masaru Ibuka, multimillionaire chairman of Sony Corporation: "We Japanese enjoy the small pleasures, not extravagance. I believe a man should have a simple life style -- even if he can afford more."

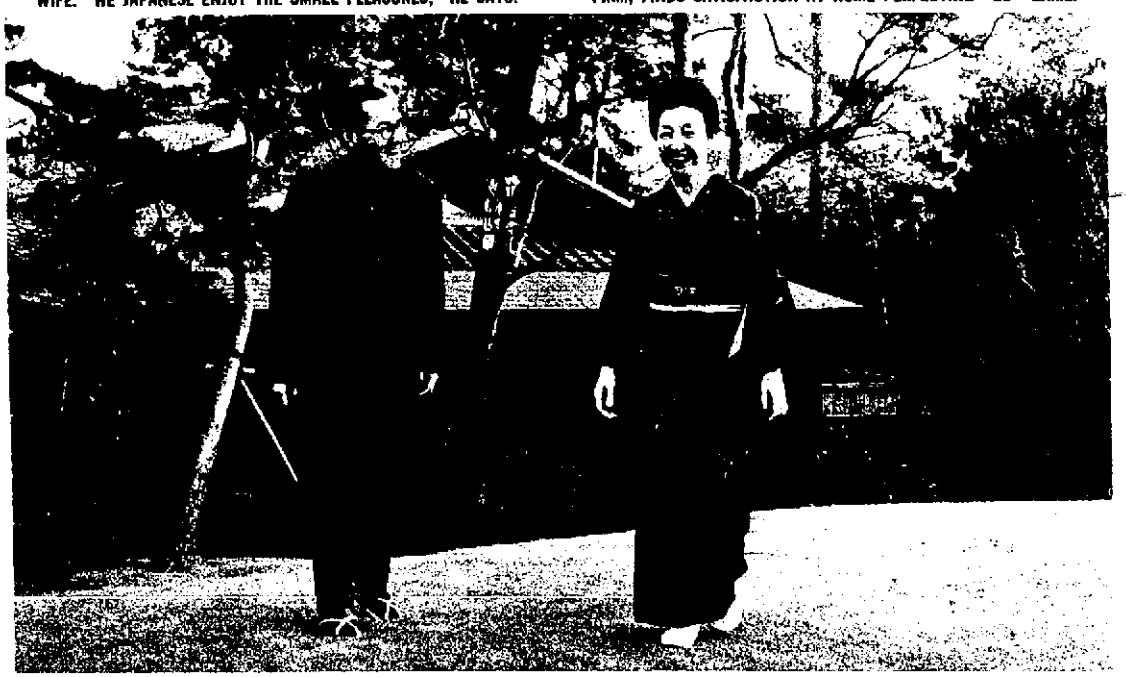

Along with this philosophy of the "simple life style," the typical Japanese executive is an exceptionally hard worker. He seldom takes a vacation, he works six days a week and sometimes seven, and his life is completely devoted to his company.

BIRD FANCIER MASARU IBUKA, CHAIRMAN OF SONY CORP., WITH WIFE. "WE JAPANESE ENJOY THE SMALL PLEASURES," HE SAYS.

HIROKICHI YOSHIYAMA, PRESIDENT OF THE HITACHI ELECTRICAL FIRM, FINDS SATISFACTION AT HOME PERFECTING "GO" GAME.

RENICHI TAKENAKA AND HIS WIFE OUTSIDE THEIR HOME. HEAD OF NATION'S LARGEST CONSTRUCTION FIRM, HE'S A DEVOTEE OF SIMPLE LIFE.

About the only luxury and leisure indulged in by these men with the yen is an occasional game of golf (usually with other businessmen) and that special Japanese custom of "geisha houses." The latter are expensive restaurant-bars where businessmen go to be wined, dined, and amused by attractive bar hostesses; and it is in such places that contracts and contacts with other businessmen are often made.

Yet, apart from these purposeful pleasures, the Japanese businessman keeps his nose to the grindstone and seems to get his kicks from the success of his work. Says Renichi Takenaka, president of Japan's largest building construction company: "Japanese corporate executives are really very simple men who live simple lives and have one simple aim: we want our companies and hopefully our country to be the very best possible. We leave the 'high life' to other people -- and other places."

Khrushchev's Wife

Khrushchev's first wife, we are told by John Nobel, a prisoner of 13 years in Communist prison camps, spent 8 years in the concentration camp of Potma, Russia. She was placed in prison by her own husband.

John Nobel adds that his wife was a Christian and was praying for Khrushchev. Khrushchev was touring the United States shaking hands and exchanging smiles with Americans. His own first wife, though, and thousands and thousands of Christians were tortured to death in Communist prisons.

A moving account of their courageous faith and stand for the Lord is contained in the book TORTURED FOR CHRIST, by Rev. Richard Wurmbrand, a best-seller in 27 languages.

Helps Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Caused By Inflammation And Infection

Also Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief in Many Cases from Pain and Burning Itch in Such Tissues.

There's an exclusive formulation which actually helps shrink the painful swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by infection. In many cases the first applications give prompt, temporary relief from itching and pain in hemorrhoidal tissues.

The sufferer first notices relief from such painful discomfort. Then this medication helps to gently reduce swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues. Tests conducted by doctors on hundreds of patients in New York City, Washington, D.C., and at a Midwest Medical Center showed this to be true in many cases.

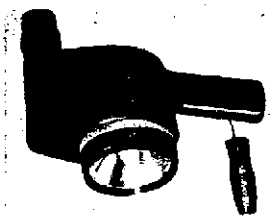

The medication used by doctors in these tests was Preparation H® —the same exclusive formula you can buy at any drug counter without a prescription. Preparation H also lubricates the affected area to protect the inflamed, irritated surface and so helps make regularity more comfortable.

There is no other formula like Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

SPOTLIGHT WITH TELESCOPE: Plug this new accessory (right) into the cigarette lighter socket of your car, and it throws a beam bright enough to illuminate a distant street sign or number—and provides a telescope viewer for clear reading at a distance. The unit has an automatic retractor that rolls up the 12' length of cord after use and a place in the handle for storing the plug. $10.95 postpaid. Fair & Fancy, Dept. PP, Box 122, Little Falls, N.J. 07424.

RACKET PRESS: With this one (right), there are no bolts and screws that you have to adjust individually. It's spring-loaded, and one flip of the clamp lever provides protection for the racket. Fits any racket. $4.50 postpaid. Golf-Fore Co., Dept. PP, Box 10, East Northport, N.Y. 11731.

CAR JUG: Fitting neatly over the floor hump of your car, this jug (right) can hold a gallon of liquid and has four recessed holders for cups in its top. It's insulated to keep cold drinks cold and hot drinks hot. An electric model you plug into the cigarette lighter socket is designed to keep hot drinks at a steady 168-degree temperature and can be used for cold drinks when not plugged in. Non-electric unit: $12.95 postpaid; electric model: $21.00 postpaid. O'Connor, Dept. PP, 345 E. 73 St., New York, N.Y. 10021.

WHISTLER RADAR FOR YOUR BOAT: A new and simplified form of radar unit (right) gives you information by sound instead of on a scope. Just scan with the readily portable 6-pound set until you get a sound response indicating you are pointing, through fog or darkness, at shore, another boat, or other object. The pitch you hear indicates the distance, with a very low rumble showing something no more than 50 ft. ahead; a very high note for 2-mile distance. There is also a range meter you can use to define object distances below one mile. Cost of a system is much less than for conventional radar. Complete details: Kimball Products Co., Dept. PP, 56 Union Ave., Sudbury, Mass. 01776.

SWIVEL SHOES FOR SPORTS: One important cause of sports injuries is the twisting that occurs during a tackle, block, or sharp change in direction when cleats lock the feet to the ground, producing great strain. Now, new athletic shoes (right) use cleat turntables for good footing while shoes—and feet—can turn above the turntables, easing pressure and strain. The shoes can be used for football, baseball and other sports—with only a change in the cleats. $29.95 in stores. Replacement cleats: about $1.95. *Wolverine World Wide, Inc., Dept. PARADE POLL

Do Americans Like Their Jobs?

by Thomas C. Sorensen

TRUE OR FALSE:

1. Many people do not like their jobs.
2. Many feel their jobs are too boring.
3. Most people think they are not paid enough.
4. The "work ethic" is stronger among older people than among the young.

If you answered "true" to every question, you agree with most of what is being written on the subject nowadays—and you are wrong.

PARADE polled a representative sampling of adult Americans from coast to coast and found that the "work ethic" is alive and well in America. Indeed, if anything, it is stronger among those just beginning their careers than it is with those nearing retirement. Moreover, there are few substantial differences in attitudes between whites and blacks, men and women, professionals and factory workers, high-salaried managers and low-paid clerical workers.

Granted, there are some complaints. In addition to a fair wage, people want —but do not always get—satisfaction from their work, the respect of their employers, the friendship of co-workers.

First, we asked our national cross-section of Americans if in general they liked their jobs. While women, especially white women under 25, were somewhat less enthusiastic, overall the responses were startling in their unanimity.

	Like their jobs	Dislike jobs	Like jobs in part
Men	91%	5%	4%
Women	84	12	3
Men/Women 18-24	70	20	6
Men/Women 25-29	88	9	3
Men/Women 30-39	92	8	—
White men	92	4	4
Non-white men	84	7	8
White women	82	15	2
Non-white women	90	3	8
People earning under $10,000	88	8	3
People earning over $15,000	90	3	6
White collar workers	87	8	4
Blue collar workers	91	5	3

Liking one's job, of course, is not the same as total satisfaction with it. We next asked, "If there were one thing you could change about your job, what would it be?" We expected proposals for far-reaching change. We were wrong again.

Nearly one in six would not change a thing. A New York taxi driver, representing a breed notorious for its vividly worded complaints, said he would change "only the pay, and even that ain't so bad."

Most respondents were exceedingly modest in their demands. Several (including a paper salesman!) begged for "less paperwork." An Alabama housemaid would "rather not have to press clothes." A Kansas woman in her 60's, trapped in her job as an unpaid bookkeeper for the motel her husband owns, simply wants to retire. Several garage mechanics complained about having to answer the telephone.

Want shorter hours

Many would shorten their hours or their commuting distances; others would like to make more money by working longer hours. Some want more responsibility; some less. A few asked for a four-day week; a Syracuse, N. Y., office worker wants a three-day week.

Some desires were of a different dimension. A black North Carolina policeman would like people to know he is "there to help and protect them," and so change their "resentment to respect." A Missouri funeral car driver generously prayed for "no one to die, even though that would put me out of work." A St. Louis construction worker and a Minnesota truck driver would settle for "perpetually good weather." And a Detroit machinist summed up most such complaints, accurately enough, by saying sadly, "There isn't much you can change."

Astonishingly, very few mentioned making their jobs "less boring" or "more interesting." One who did, a Chicago factory worker, was almost apologetic: "Don't misunderstand me. The finished product is interesting. It's just the tedium of the assembly line I object to."

Among the great majority who like their jobs, most attributed their attitudes to satisfying work, friendship of co-workers and the boss, and the respect their work brings from others. Six out of 10 mentioned the monetary rewards, and fewer than half cited "opportunity for advancement."

A solid two-thirds of those queried believe they are fairly paid. Only three in 10 feel their pay is unfairly low. A few (but very few) even think they are overpaid.

Complaints from blacks

White workers are more satisfied with their pay than blacks, who are split about evenly in viewing their compensation as "fair" and "too little." And a majority of those of all races under 25 years of age—who mostly are at the lower end of the pay scale—believe they are underpaid.

Not surprisingly, the more one earns the more likely he (or she) is to feel adequately compensated. Among those earning $10,000 or less, six out of 10 believe their pay is fair. But of those making over $15,000, the proportion is eight out of 10.

Most people must work in order to live. But what if they had enough money to tell off the boss and quit, should they so desire?

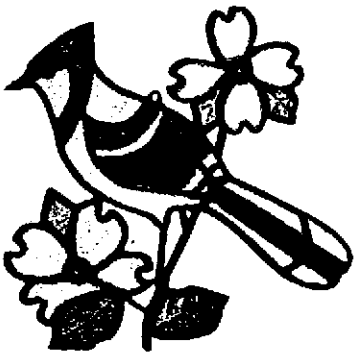

We asked, "If you inherited a million dollars, would you go on working—either at your present job or something you liked better—or would you quit work?" Again, the answers demonstrate the strength of the "work ethic," especially among the young:

	Go on Working	Quit Work	Not Sure
Men	76%	20%	4%
Women	67	31	2
Whites	74	23	3
Non-whites	69	30	1
Earn under $10,000	66	29	5
Earn over $15,000	85	12	2
Age 18-24	90	8	2
Age 40-59	67	31	2
Age 60 or more	52	33	14

Much has been made of the "mobility" of American workers, the frequency with which they change jobs. Our survey confirms this. Nonetheless, we are by no means a nation of job hoppers. Nearly half of all working men

"Women will love what they do to a window. Especially the way the sun shines through the crystaline stained glass and shows warm colors all over the room. Beautiful feeling."

I got 'em, but I never thought I'd sell any. Don't know what it is, but I sold literally thousands. Come in sets of 3—7" long—Hummingbird, Blue Jay and Cardinal—in unbreakable crystaline with lead-like frames. Create rich, stained glass effect. PARADE POLL continued over 60 have been with their present employers for 20 years or more. Another 21 percent have worked for the same firm for 10 to 20 years.

Nor are young men as nomadic as one might imagine. Half of those under 30 have worked from one to five years for the same employers, and a sixth have been with their current employers for more than five years.

Women move in and out of the job market, and thus their jobs, with greater rapidity, in large part because of changing family responsibilities. Even so, one of every seven working women has been with her present employer for 10 years or more, and an equal number have worked for the same company for five to 10 years.

Though some complain of assembly line tedium, most find pay makes up for it.

Meatballs with Sausage

by Beth Merriman
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Meat is high-priced these days, but using imagination, you can still serve some cuts inexpensively without sacrificing flavor. Ground round steak (or chuck) is an ideal candidate for low-cost menus, because it can be stretched with fillers—so the servings don't have to be skimpy.

For a hearty dish with true Italian flavor, try this original meatball and sausage dish that is bound to become a family favorite. The ground meat and sweet sausage are combined in a well-seasoned sauce, and surrounded with a ring of elbow macaroni. It's an inexpensive dinner that tastes as opulent as it looks!

In the Italian Style

- 1½ pounds ground round
- 1½ cups fine, day-old whole wheat bread crumbs, divided
- ¼ cup finely minced onion
- 1 egg
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 2 cans (15 oz. each) tomato herb sauce, divided
- 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
- ½ pound sweet Italian sausage
- ½ cup red wine
- ½ cup water
- ¼ teaspoon sugar
- ½ pound elbow macaroni, cooked
- ¼ cup minced parsley

Combine beef, ½ cup bread crumbs, onion, egg, salt, pepper and ½ cup tomato herb sauce; mix lightly but thoroughly. Form into 18 balls. Roll in remaining bread crumbs mixed with Parmesan cheese. Place on rack in shallow baking pan. Bake at 400 degrees for 25 minutes. Meanwhile, slice sausage in 1-inch pieces; brown lightly in large skillet; drain fat. Add remaining tomato herb sauce, wine, water and sugar to skillet; simmer gently 15 to 20 minutes. To serve, arrange meat balls in sauce on deep serving platter; ring with macaroni. Sprinkle with parsley. Serve any remaining sauce separately. Makes 6 servings.

This litter of puppies is undeniably heartwarming, but what it represents is chilling. Due to a pet population boom, 50 million cats and dogs have wound up as strays. Many are killed on highways or put to death in shelters.

Planned Pethood

by Jeane Westin

There's a new population bomb ticking. While Americans have reduced their own birthrate to below replacement level, their pets are breeding potential disaster in the backyard. Maybe man won't overrun this planet, but his furry pet poodles, pointers and Siamese cats might.

Nobody knows the exact number of surplus pets, but the Humane Society of the United States estimates that today there are at least 50 million homeless cats and dogs in this country—double the 1968 figure.

Many of those wind up in animal shelters, where most are eventually put to death. Others are dumped in a rural area in the belief that the animal will have a better chance to live. Not so, says the Humane Society. Domestic pets are generally unable to survive without man and most don't last long. The ones who do live form wild packs, menacing people as well as livestock and game. Many more strays are destroyed on the highway by autos.

The Animal Protection Institute of America says over 500 million dollars were spent for animal control last year —most of it to catch, keep and kill 12 million dogs and 7 million cats. "All this killing is such a tragic waste," says API president Belton P. Mouras. "Irresponsible pet owners have turned our animal pounds and shelters into so many slaughterhouses. This has caused us an identity problem: We started out as kind people who want to rescue poor, lost animals. But we've been forced to become pet executioners."

The pet population could be considerably reduced, experts say, if Americans were willing to have their animals de-sexed. But many owners are not willing to have their animals sterilized. To begin with, the operation can cost as much as $40 for cats and $100 for dogs. In some areas humane societies have pitched in to underwrite part of the cost, and in Los Angeles a low-cost, tax-supported clinic has been established, charging a flat rate of $17.50 for females, $11.50 for males. In a little more than a year that program has reduced the city's stray population by 6000 animals.

But many owners reject sterilizing their pets on other grounds. Most frequently quoted is the notion that breeding a dog is an excellent way to teach sex education to children. Phyllis Wright, director of the National Humane Education Center at Waterford, Va., finds that idea appalling. In the past several years she has overseen the grim business of destroying 70,000 unwanted animals. "When people tell me they're going to breed a dog so their kids can watch 'the miracle of life,'" she says bitterly, "I invite them over here to watch the miracle of death."

Some owner arguments

Other owners argue that a female dog or cat needs to have at least one litter to fulfill some maternal instinct; and that altered animals grow fat and lazy. Not so on both counts, say many veterinarians. Animal motherhood never experienced goes unmissed. And overweight is most often caused by overfeeding—in many cases a guilt offering by the owner for taking the pet's sex away.

Another reason for not acting has to do with the humanization of the American family pet. "The typical owner won't sterilize Fido," says Belton Mouras, "because he doesn't want to sterilize himself. Owners confuse their own sexual feelings with their animals'."

Whatever the reason for not practicing pet birth control, the resulting surplus has created some extra environmental burdens. Street and park pollution in some large cities is already a health hazard.

A decrease is needed

Clearly a dramatic decrease in the pet birthrate is called for, a kind of planned pethood. But how? Mouras says pet owners should be held accountable for indiscriminate breeding. "Allowing a pet to breed unwanted litters should bring a substantial fine."

Still, even a national sterilization drive won't totally solve the problem. It's impossible, say veterinary spokesmen, to alter millions of fertile cats and dogs, even if every vet operated night and day. "Surgery is ineffective," states Dr. Jack Morse, president of the California Veterinary Medical Association, who believes research should focus on cheaper, non-surgical methods.

Along these lines, several new types of animal birth control are being explored. Syntex, a California pharmaceutical company, has developed a hormonal pellet which can be implanted under the skin, preventing both the estrus (the heat period) and conception. However, the pellet—if approved by the Federal Drug Administration—will not be on the market for three to five years.

A look to the future

Meanwhile, immunologists are experimenting with an injection which, when given at puberty, immunizes the animal to its own sex hormones.

And theoretically at least, laser beams and controlled radiation are in the future. Someday it may even be possible for pets to be rendered sexless via a painless pill put into their food. At present, surgery is the only expedient.

Keeping Up...With Youth

by Pamela Swift

MARY JO CREED: SHE SINGS WITH THE 12TH AIR FORCE BAND.

Mary, the First

Listen, girls. Have you ever yenned to sing with a band? You can do it if you join the Air Force.

A few months ago, Mary Jo Creed, an attractive brunette who used to work as a model, quit college to become the first female vocalist in the U.S. Air Force.

Mary Jo, 19, enlisted for six years under a new specialty code which permits women to serve as band vocalists. As of this writing Mary is serving with the 12th Air Force Band at Luke Air Force Base outside Phoenix, Ariz.

"Originally," Mary says, "I wanted to be a flutist in the band. But now I prefer my job as a vocalist."

'Reverse Discrimination'

How the tides of discrimination have turned! Especially in academic circles.

In many of the nation's universities these days it's best to be a minority female if you want a staff or faculty position.

Samuel Solomon, a special assistant in the Office of Civil Rights, an ombudsman of sorts for the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, recently reported on 12 cases of reverse discrimination.

"I've been out on the campus trail in recent weeks," Solomon confided to The Los Angeles Times, "and I'm getting the impression that most institutions are engaged in some form of discrimination against white males."

Solomon pointed out that in one university he visited minority faculty members were paid more than whites who had the same experience and qualifications. In another, he discovered that the university had instituted a hiring practice of signing up one woman or minority applicant for every three white men.

In all 12 of his completed investigations he found evidence of reverse discrimination.

According to the Office of Education, however, in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, women working full time on the faculties of the nation's universities earn on the average $3500 less than their male counterparts. At universities, women faculty members average $12,325 a year, and men $15,829; at the two-year smaller colleges, women average $11,862 compared to $12,889 for men.

There is no doubt that women are getting the short end of the payroll stick. Minority women, however, are getting more academic job opportunities than ever before.

Women MD's

Almost 20 percent of the undergraduate students at Stanford University are pursuing pre-med studies. Since 1969 the number of coeds majoring in biology, physics, and chemistry has increased from 15 to 30 percent.

Why the increased interest in medicine?

According to Dr. Donald Stilwell, "People want to enter useful professions, and they want to live well, too."

MARIA IMELDA MARCOS: ON TO PRINCETON

Marcos' Daughter

Are children responsible for the politics of their parents? Last month, Maria Imelda "Imee" Marcos, daughter of Ferdinand Marcos, President and dictator of the Philippines, was one of 2063 admitees to the Princeton Class of 1977.

Immediately the announcement became public, a campus row ensued. Five students and a professor complained to the "Daily Princetonian" that "Imee," as a member of the incoming class, "constituted a threat to the academic life of the university." They pointed out that because her father was a most controversial politician his daughter would require extraordinary campus security.

Other students protested on the grounds that "Imee's" father was a dictator who had declared martial law and that the presence of his daughter on campus "will threaten the well-being of Third World students."

Uncowed by youthful intolerance, Dean Neil Rudenstine explained: "The university does not and will not apply political tests of any kind in its consideration of cases. Princeton accepts applicants on the basis of personal qualifications, not on the political beliefs or behavior of their parents."

"Imee" Marcos attended high school at the Santa Catalina School in Monterey, Calif., where Sister Aaron, vice president of the Dominican private boarding school, refused to comment on the case. Neither would the Philippine Embassy in Washington, D.C., say anything about "Imee's" entrance to Princeton. The Philippine Ambassador to the United States happens to be "Imee's" uncle, Eduardo Romualdez.

Are the sins of the fathers to be visited upon their daughters?

Lt. John J. "Sailor" Devlin makes his hourly check with police headquarters. At 88 he finds his age is no obstacle. "I'm as good as I ever was," he says.

The Oldest Cop On the Beat

by Larry Jackson

ELMIRA, N.Y.

At precisely two o'clock every afternoon a husky man strides into police headquarters here, methodically puts on a tan uniform, straps on a .38-caliber special, adjusts his cap and marches out onto his beat.

If it seems as if Lt. John J. "Sailor" Devlin has his routine down pat, perhaps it's understandable. When he first became a cop Lincoln pennies were brand-new, there was a new gimmick called the "wireless," and Cadillacs sold for $1100. William Howard Taft was President. It was 1910.

At 88, Sailor Devlin is the oldest active-duty policeman in America. A patrol lieutenant supervising the duties of men on the evening shift here, he is spry, alert and active—as good a cop, he reckons, as he was the day he was sworn in 63 years ago.

Bags two thieves

"I remember that day perfectly," he says, "sunny and cool. They gave me a badge, gun and helmet, the kind the 'Keystone Kops' wore.

"At roll call the captain warned us to keep an eye out for two fellows who'd been stealing chickens in the area. Well, I was walking my beat when I saw two men with big sacks over their shoulders. They went into a saloon, leaving the sacks on the sidewalk. I ambled over and gave one sack a kick, and don'tcha know it started cluckin' I didn't need a Supreme Court decision to tell me I had those chicken thieves."

Sailor moved in to make the arrests. The rookie, who had barnstormed the state as a professional wrestler, quickly overpowered the pair, only to find he didn't have any handcuffs. "So I sat on 'em until help arrived," he chuckles.

Devlin's been making pinches in Elmira ever since. The state's pension law allows men who were on the police force when the bill was enacted in 1942 to stay on past the mandatory retirement age of 62. He's still entitled to the pension—in fact, he could retire tomorrow and get $16,000 a year, about $3000 more than he earns now. But he won't even consider it. "They can keep their pension," he snorts. "The only way they'll get me out of here is in a box."

Sailor spends half his tour on supervisory patrol and the rest overseeing the bingo games that are popular in this industrial city of 40,000. State law requires an on-duty policeman to be present, and as a mild concession to his age, Sailor has drawn that assignment.

Still keeps busy

"I make sure the records are in order, the equipment is honest and nobody drinks or plays cards," he says. Not that he actually approves of bingo, mind you. "The state laws say gambling is illegal but bingo is okay," he says. "If bingo isn't gambling, I don't know what is. But if that's the law, that's the way it'll have to be."

During his daily tour, Sailor walks about four miles, pausing to acknowledge waves from passersby (everyone seems to know him) or to point out landmarks to the curious. "You see that church," he says. "I watched them build it in 1902. And that parking lot? Mark Twain's summer house once stood there." He's regularly beset by children, who have learned that for a tough cop, he's a soft touch.

"I always keep a pocketful of candy for the kids," he says. Occasionally a newcomer will ask about his nickname. "Once, in 1895, we had a parade in town," he recalls. "My dad dressed me in a sailor suit. The name just stuck."

Sailor isn't so certain many of the newfangled ideas in police work are all that useful. "When I started out you had to use your head," he says. "But you weren't afraid to use your fists either. We didn't have psychology and all this other stuff. Now everybody thinks more police cars are the answer. Well, they're not. Bicycles were pretty good, too. We used to ride them, around the time of World War I. People couldn't hear you coming, so you could sneak up on them. Cars are irreplaceable now, I guess, but so are good beat men."

During his daily four-mile tour he'll take time out to give candy to a kid.

In his 63 years of being a good beat man, Devlin has only missed 50 days of work—more than half of it for an appendectomy. "He's so healthy it makes me sick," says his boss, Chief Thomas J. Donnells.

Rough on stomach

Sailor partly credits his good health to daily prayer and, of course, lots of walking. He figures he's worn out 190 pairs of shoes. And if being a cop has been rough on his feet, it's nothing compared to what it's been to his stomach. His nightly meal, consumed on the beat, alternates between a couple of "Coney Island Red Hots," awash with onions, mustard and chili, or hamburgers "with the works." Every so often he says he "babies" his stomach with a dose of Italian food and eats about a gallon of ice cream a month.

"I know some people probably don't think I should eat all that stuff," he says, "but I like the taste. Besides, when you're 88, you can do anything you please."

When his shift is completed, Sailor goes home to a modest rented apartment in a stately white frame house. It is plain, but he says he hasn't needed any frills since his wife, Molly, died in 1958.

"All I need is a place to sleep," he says. "And I like this house. It was built in 1820. It's one of the few things around town older than I am."

A chat with grandson, Fireman John T. Devlin, whose father died in 1967. A widower, Sailor sees a lot of his daughter and five grandchildren.

If you don't smoke, show this ad to someone who does.

There are a lot of people in the world who don't smoke.

But since a lot of people who don't smoke know a lot of people who do, you might tell some of them about Vantage.

You could tell them that if they really enjoy the taste of their present cigarette but are concerned about the 'tar' and nicotine, they should understand that where there is taste there is smoke and where there is smoke there has to be some 'tar' and some nicotine.

You could also tell them that the thing that makes Vantage so special is that its filter is based on an innovative design concept that gives smokers flavor like a full-flavor cigarette without anywhere near the 'tar' or the nicotine.

Then you could let them know that while Vantage isn't the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette they can buy, it is the lowest one they'll really enjoy.

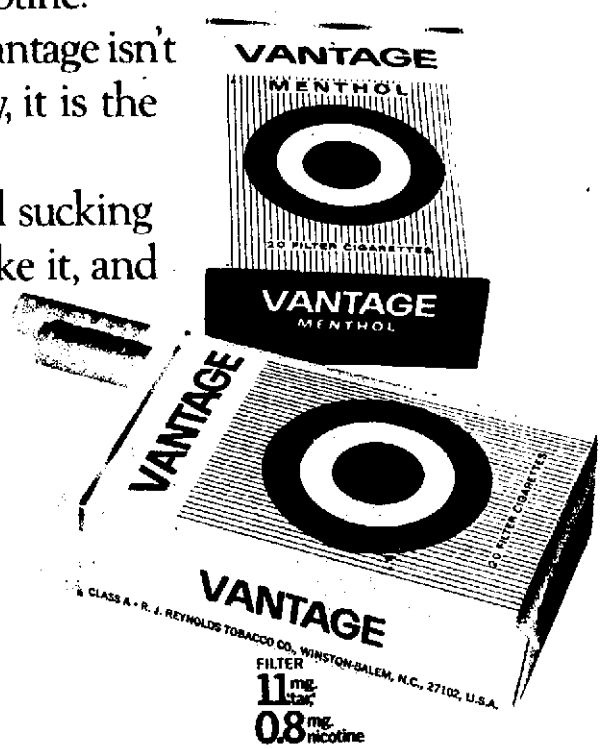

Because when people have to work so hard sucking smoke through a cigarette, they probably won't like it, and won't smoke it.

You could tell them that Vantage draws easy and tastes just fine.

You could tell them all this.

Or you could just show them this ad.

Thanks.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

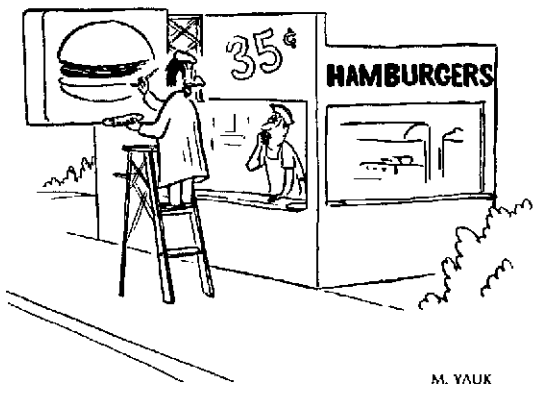

Filter: 11 mg. "tar", 0.8 mg. nicotine. Menthol: 11 mg. "tar", 1.0 mg. nicotine—av. per cigarette, FTC Report Feb. 73.

Don't Scrub.

New Spray 'n Vac™ cleans rugs without scrubbing.

Spray 'n Vac penetrates deep.

Then loosens and lifts dirt.

Just spray it on your dull, dirty rug. A special cleaning solvent in the foam penetrates deep to loosen and lift the dirt. About an hour later, just vacuum and presto! Your rug looks fresh and vibrant again. And since you didn't have to scrub, you look better too!

New Spray 'n Vac is from Glamorene®—the rug cleaning specialists. Try it, for brighter, cleaner rugs without scrubbing.

My Favorite Jokes

by Harry Hershfield

EDITOR'S NOTE: There aren't many storytellers of the quality and breadth of Harry Hershfield. The 87-year-old American institution can frame politics, music, business, and celebrity with keen stories of human nature. And, he's also an authority on the origins and evolution of American humor. For instance, he reminded us of the revival of one of the oldest war stories. "A general is yelling to his troops: 'When the enemy gets within fifty feet of our trenches, I want you all to retreat. Being a little lame, I'm leaving now.' " And his variation on that is: "Don't shoot before you see the whites of their eyes. Being color blind, I'm leaving now."

America's oldest, active cartoonist (he created one of the first syndicated comic strips, "Abe Kabibble"), Hershfield's humor has brightened virtually all the subsequent media outlets; he's guested on numerous television shows, and was a regular panel member on radio's legendary Can You Top This? He's a frequent and much sought-after toastmaster on New York City's banquet circuit. Here are some of his favorite yarns:

When Grover Cleveland was President, he was always at odds with the Senate, and always got along smoothly with the House of Representatives. One day, after a hectic tussle with the Senate, he retired at night to a troubled sleep. His butler, hearing noises in the White House, woke Cleveland and whispered: "I think there are burglars in the house." "In the Senate, maybe, but not in the House," murmured Cleveland, and fell asleep.

In the Senate it's called "Foreign Relations." In the House it's called "Foreign Affairs." Guess in the Senate they're too old for "affairs."

Callahan was dying and was being given the last rites. He was asked: "Do you denounce the devil?" He replied, "This is no time to antagonize anybody!"

The rabbi was asked: "This is a very poor synagogue, how much do they pay you?" "Ten dollars a month." "How can you live on that?" "I'm lucky that I'm a very religious man. If I didn't fast three times a week, I'd starve to death."

To avoid being called in the draft, a fellow practiced limping. He got to a point where he couldn't walk any other way. He walked into the draft board with the limp, but he was inducted into the Army anyway. He cried, "Don't you see that limp?" "Yes, but where we're sending you, it's hilly."

A fellow called up Mr. Vanderwater on Fifth Avenue one morning and asked, "Did my friend Timothy come to your party last night, uninvited?" "Yes." "Oh," said the fellow, "the curse of drink. I heard that he beat up some of your guests?" "Yes, he punched a few." "Oh, what liquor will do to a man. One more question—was I there?"

In our early Supreme Court there was much drinking. They decided on this: "Only to drink when it was inclement weather." One day, a member staggered into the Court, and this was his defense: "As the Supreme Court we represent the whole country, don't we? Well, it must be raining someplace?"

A worker fell off a barge and was drowned. He left his wife a million dollars. To the moaning widow a listener said: "He left you a million dollars? That's wonderful for a man who couldn't read or write." "Or swim, either," moaned the widow.

A very rich dowager is getting her portrait painted. After sitting for a couple of hours she said to the artist: "Does it look like me?" He said, "Hours ago. I'm now improving it."

A husband is seeing the ruins for the first time, and his wife says to him: "You know, Rome wasn't built in a day." And he says, "To me it looks like it was."
